Willkie Calls the New Dealers Irresponsible

GAMBLING RACKET IS EXPOSED

Where Crap Shooters' and Small-Fry Bettors' Cash Goes Explained to Jury in Chicago

CHICAGO, Oct. 11 (AP)—The big business side of Chicago's gambling industry and what keeps its roulette wheels turning were pictured in detail in the federal income tax prosecution of William R. Johnson, the no-limit crap shooter, which went to the jury today..

The voluminous testimony told the small-fry bettor what happens to his fifty-cent horse parlay. It also informed the big plunger how his $1,000 bets on a single roll of the dice contributed toward meeting the overhead of the system.

Government prosecutors declared in open court that Johnson was the "overlord" or the "czar" of Chicago gambling. They said he had an organization, a syndicate of at least twenty-three joints that operated with a chain store efficiency "rivaling the Federal Reserve Bank."

Really Big Business

He had, they said, a clearing house, a private telephone system—joint to joint—and a central supply depot furnishing gambling paraphernalia.

The gamblers, it was charged, also had a currency exchange serving as their bank, a repair and maintenance crew, free inter-joint bus service for the suckers (patrons) and even a school for dealers and shills—fellows who play with house money to stimulate the games.

A map of Chicago and suburbs put in evidence was studded with pins marking the gambling house locations—including the horseshoe, the D & D club, the suburban Villa Moderne and Bon Air country club.

The government alleged that Johnson received a tremendous income from all these spots—$3,377,615 from 1936 through 1939—but that he reported only $764,215. He and eight co-defendants were charged with conspiring to evade $1,887,864 in taxes on his income for those years."

The defense denied all this.

Not True, "Big Bill" Says

Finally came "Big Bill" Johnson himself—45, tall, handsome, prematurely grey, who declared emphatically that, in effect, "it isn't so."

He said crap shooting had been his principal activity for some twenty years. He kept records of his winnings, he said, reported them as income and paid his federal taxes. He produced a worn little black book and reeled off monthly winnings, from $6,500 to as high as $41,000, and totalling $769,485 from 1936 through 1939.

Perhaps his most breath-taking recital was how he walked through the loop, alone, carrying $145,000 in cash in his pockets to put down for purchase of Sunny Acres Farm, an expansive estate once owned by the late Arthur Cutten, grain trader.

Sees Failure of Democracy if FDR Is Re-Elected To Serve Third Term

Declares Dragging the War into Our Domestic Relations Is Not a Responsible Act

By WILLIAM B. ARDERY

BOSTON, Oct. 11 (AP)—Terming the New Deal "an irresponsible government," Wendell L. Willkie asserted tonight that "dragging the European war into our domestic relations is not a responsible act—it is a reckless one."

"If we have an irresponsible government in Washington during the next four years, I believe that democracy will fail," said the Republican presidential nominee in an address in the National League ball park.

"And if democracy falls in America it will perish from the earth. But if we elect a responsible government, I believe—and I know—that democracy will be saved."

Earlier, in climaxing a swift tour through eight southeastern Massachusetts cities, Willkie charged during a speech in nearby Lynn that President Roosevelt's current trip through Pennsylvania and Ohio was in "contravention" of the Hatch Act and the corrupt practices act.

Taxpayers Paying Cost

Asserting that a "substantial proportion" of the cost of the trip, which he said "ostensibly" was one of military inspection, was being paid by the taxpayers, he added:

"I make a very serious charge about that kind of thing. It is in contravention of the Hatch Act and the corrput practices act."

Democratic candidates and political leaders had boarded the train in Pennsylvania, he asserted.

"I want to give it to you straight," Willkie added. "This is no military inspection trip."

Declaring in his prepared text tonight that "the candidate for the third term has chosen this most critical time to violate one of our oldest traditions," Willkie continued:

"And what reason does he give for this? Does he tell you that there are more jobs than there were four years ago?

"Oh, no. He says that Hitler and Mussolini would like to see him defeated in this coming November. x x x He hints at it. He insinuates it. He leaves the real job to his hand-picked candidate for vice president and his hand-picked governor of New York.

"Dragging the European war into our domestic relations is not a responsible act. It is a reckless one.

"Do you care what Hitler thinks or what Mussolini thinks?

"Are you going to take either of these gentlemen into the voting booth with you next November?

London Times Hit By German Bomb

LONDON, Oct. 11 (AP) — A heavy bomb struck the building of the London Times in a recent raid, it was disclosed tonight, causing considerable interior and some exterior damage.

When The Times mentions the incident for the first time tomorrow it will carry a letter from Prime Minister Winston Churchill congratulating the newspaper on "the remarkable way in which The Times has carried on in the face of all the damage and discomfort caused by the bombing of Printing House Square."

"None of your readers," Churchill added, "could discover from the paper that your editorial management departments had been destroyed. The resourcefulness and adaptability of your staff are beyond praise."

Nazi Fliers Drop Bombs on London In Night Attack

Nearly Hit the Country Home of Ambassador Joseph Kennedy

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Oct. 12.—(Saturday—The "raiders passed" signal sounded in London around 2:30 a. m., today much earlier than usual, following a series of night attacks in which German airmen, slipping in stealthily with motors throttled down for long glides, bombed thirty-five London areas.

The Nazis stabbed viciously and repeatedly before calilng it a night but the Press Association said only a few succeeded in penetrating deeply into the city.

LONDON, Oct. 12.—(Saturday)—Nazi airmen, cutting their motors off for long stealthy glides, dumped bombs on eighteen areas of London last night and early today and demolished several cottages on an estate near the country home of American Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy.

Ambassador Kennedy was in bed at the time and was uninjured. The walls of his house trembled and lampshades fell across the bed.

This was the second close call for the ambassador. Late in August a bomb fell 300 yards from the house and recently a Nazi airplane shot down by the British narrowly missed his home in falling.

Raid Scotch Highlands

German raiders were active from the Scottish highlands in the north to the Welsh mountains in the west and the much-bombed southeastern coastal area.

Three heavy bombs sacked down in one London area just after midnight, leaving clouds of debris.

One gas main burst and one man was killed when caught in the street. Firemen fought flames started by incendiaries.

"No-trespassing" signs had whetted the curiosity of passers-by, who from a distance saw men building the underground structure.

Communists Get Place on Ballot By Court Order

Judge Melvin Orders Petrott To Certify Three Names

WALSH DECIDES NOT TO TAKE AN APPEAL

Attorney General Sees Nothing To Be Gained, He Declares

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 11 (AP) — Circuit Judge Ridgely P. Melvin signed a declaratory degree today ordering Secretary of State Francis Fetrott to certify the names of three Communist candidates for insertion on the November election ballot.

Dr. Albert E. Blumberg, Communist candidate for the United States Senate, brought the suit on behalf of himself and Earl Browder and James W. Ford, Communist candidates for president and vice-president, respectively, to enjoin Petrott from refusing to certify the candidates.

Petrott, in his answer, said he withheld certification of the candidates on the advice of Governor O'Conor. A Dies-House committee report and indictments returned by the Baltimore grand jury against Mrs. Blumberg, he said, raised a "reasonable doubt" as to the validity of the signatures on the Communist party's nominating petition.

Judge Melvin held that under the law Petrott was purely a ministerial officer and had no authority to withhold certification of the petition since it was pronounced legally sufficient by the attorney general.

No Investigation Needed

"It is not incumbent upon him.... to conduct an investigation into charges or 'suggestions' by fraud behind the petition, or to make, or attempt to support, any challenge of its validity....," the judge ruled.

However, Judge Melvin said the "suggestion" of fraud "fully justifies the apprehension shown by the governor of Maryland, by the attorney general and by the respondent himself as to the possible prepretration of fraud in connection with the nominating petition."

"If this issue of alleged fraud is to be sifted and criminally disclosed so as to annual the nominating petition, the agency for initiating this investigation...must be left to those empowered with judicial functions, rather than be undertaken by a purely ministerial officer."

Judge Melvin said the equity court could not investigate the validity of the petition because "it would mean that this court would embark on an excursion into the fields of the criminal law, where it would be conspicuously out of place."

He pointed out that the Maryland Association for Democratic

U. S. Seeking To Keep Siam from Assisting Japan

By RICHARD L. TURNER

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11 (AP)—Emphasizing its opposition to any forcible change in the Oriental status quo, the United States is actively seeking to dissuade Japan's friend, Thailand (Siam), from taking any aggressive step.

Diplomatic moves along this line were disclosed today, and at the same time it was indicated that the Dutch east indies, which are arming themselves against any Japanese inroads, would receive continued assistance from American factories.

Major M. Van Hasselen, flight commander of the East Indies air force, it was learned, is enroute to this country on an official plane purchasing mission. At a press conference today, Secretary of State Hull said the Indies had already made substantial purchases in this country, and indicated that there was no disposition to shut off such assistance.

East Indies Valuable

The Washington government has repeatedly expressed its concern lest the Dutch East Indies, following the seizure of Holland by Germany, should fall into Japanese hands. They are the source of huge imports of crude rubber, tin and other raw materials needed by American industries.

The reminder to Thailand, although disclosed only today, coin-

Britain Calls All Nationals From Rumania

Takes Action after Axis Stages Hostile Demonstration

TURKEY WARNS NAZIS AGAINST ADVANCING

Declares 2,000,000 Soldiers Are Ready with Poised Bayonets

By The Associated Press

Britain called all her nationals from Axis-dominated Rumania last (Friday) night and Turkey emphatically warned Germany that 2,000,000 Turkish bayonets are poised to thwart an Axis thrust against the near east.

Both moves came after 150 German, Italian and Rumanian planes roared in a martial demonstration over Bucharest to herald what looked like the first major step in Adolf Hitler's long-dreamed "drang nach osten"—drive to the east.

The Turks, guardians of the Dardanelles gateway to the Black Sea, are tied to Britain by a mutual assistance pact but have an out in a clause excusing them from becoming embroiled in any conflict involving Soviet Russia.

Kremlin Still Silent

Therefore the use of such bold words against such a powerful combination as the Axis might have meant they were made with a nod from Moscow. But the Gremlin itself remained silent.

Ankara had heard the word going around that the German entry into Rumania was the prelude to a squeeze play against her and another British friend, Greece.

Britain, regarding the Axis flight over Bucharest as "intimidation," ordered her nationals out of the country—some 400 of them, and there were indications she would sever relations with Bucharest as soon as the last Briton leaves. The British also followed the lead of the United States and sequestered all Rumanian credits in the United Kingdom.

Greeks Ready To Fight

The Greek army, facing 120,000 Italian troops massed across the frontier in Italian-conquered Albania, braced for any development.

The controlled German and Italian press stepped up presure against Yugoslavia, which ended extensive army maneuvers.

Hungarian students trooped through Budapest yelling "down with Rumania."

Berlin insisted all was well with the Axis and Russia and offered forthcoming Moscow conversations between Germany and Russia to prove it.

Nazi Planes Roar Over British Legation

By The Associated Press

BUCHAREST, Oct. 11.—The British government ordered all its nationals—the army of British business men and experts who have kept alive British interests in Rumania—to abandon this country tonight, a few hours after packed formations of German, Italian and Rumanian planes had roared over Bucharest to symbolize the extension of Axis influence to the Black Sea.

Marked plainly with German, Italian and Rumanian insignia, at least 150 planes roared in full-throated cry low over the British legation where Sir Reginald Hoare, the British minister, and his staff

Japs Deny They Plan To Occupy Big Settlement

But Reports Persist of Troop Movements Near Shanghai

By The Associated Press

SHANGHAI, Oct. 11 — Japanese authorities made a studied attempt tonight to spike excited rumors of impending forcible occupation of Shanghai's international settlement or French concession.

Usually well-informed quarters insisted, however, that 14,000 Chinese soldiers of the Japanese-dominated Nanking government were concentrated between Shanghai and the Wosung forts, at the mouth of the Whangpoo river, twelve miles downstream from this teeming city.

An army spokesman admitted there might have been some troop movements, but he denied that "any troops are concentrated with the idea of moving against the foreign areas."

Army and navy spokesmen joined in an official denial either that Japanese forces were building concentration camps in which to intern foreigners or were "planning to take over the settlement or the French concession by force Oct. 18 after the Burma Road reopens."

This channel of imports and exports of the central Chinese government, with which Japan has been at war for thirty-nine months, is scheduled to be reopened by Britain Oct. 17.

The navy spokesman declared that "very definitely both are wild rumors and nothing more." They probably were originated by certain

Bombardment Is Longest of War And Both Shores Are Pounded Hard

Bombing Planes Also Get into Action and German Destroyers at Cherbourg Are Attacked

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Oct. 12 (Saturday) — British and German heavy artillery fought a mighty engagement early today — the longest bombardment and counter-bombardment of the war — across the Dover strait and British planes crossed the star-lit channel to bomb heavily the Nazi gun emplacements.

British guns opened the action last night and for the first time two German batteries on the French shore opened simultaneous fire in reply, one near the Cap Gris Nez lighthouse and the other at Calais.

Some three hours later the great duel still went on.

Shells fell upon the English shore at three-minute intervals at times. The channel itself was smooth and untroubled, bright in the moonlight but overlain by mist.

Blasts Heard Across Channel

The explosions of British bombs and the quick flight of German tracer shells could be clearly seen, reddening the far horizon.

Both shores were alight with gun flashes.

It was the heaviest offensive action yet undertaken by British batteries — which in the past had spoken almost always only in reply to the German guns.

It followed the admiralty's announcement of last night that the British home fleet had turned its guns on the Nazi invasion ships massed at the great French port of Cherbourg and left pillars of flame seen forty miles away.

The big bombers of the British coastal command simultaneously struck, for the second consecutive night, at German destroyers in the big port of Brest, on the Brittany peninsula below Cherbourg. Despite dirty weather, the fliers reported that they had scored several hits and that other salvos burst on

Confederate Vets To Continue Meeting

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11. (AP)—With a hot political battle and a big parade, the United Confederate Veterans ended their fiftieth annual reunion today, voting to keep meeting every year as long as there were two Confederate soldiers alive and able to get together.

Commander-in-Chief Julius Franklin Howell had offered a resolution by which the organization could disband at any future convention provided three-fourths of those present agreed on it. But the boys in gray scornfully voted the resolution down.

The big political fight of the convention, the re-election of General Howell, a ninety-four-year-old Bristol, Va., resident, for a second term, ended in victory by a one-vote margin for Howell but with ruffled feelings among many of the old soldiers.

German Air Squadrons Report Success in Widespread Raids

By The Associated Press

BERLIN, Oct. 11—The German air force in strong squadrons dealt out hard punishment today in a wide foray over southeast England, DNB, the official news agency, reported tonight.

Canterbury (where, the British said, windows of the historic cathedral were smashed), took the worst drubbing, according to the agency's accounts.

Returning pilots reported their bombs hit "objectives" and lifted great columns of smoke above the town.

A factory in another southeast town was declared completely demolished, and bomb hits on rail facilities along the coast were reported so effective that traffic will be impossible for a long time.

Series of Dog Fights

The raiders had to fight a series of dog fights, and shot down thirteen defense planes, it was said, losing but one of their own. A patrol boat was bombed off Ramsgate, the account stated.

DNB, elaborating on the official report of last night's raids, said that London's sprawling victoria station, in the west end, was ha hard and that numerous fires were started by bombs in mid-city. Half a million pounds of bombs were dropped on London alone last night, Nazis said.

Spokesmen insisted that widespread British raids over Germany and German-occupied countries last night had caused no important damage an dnone at all to military objectives. However, they listed a score of persons killed in western Germany and eighteen in Amsterdam and said that there was "devastation" over a residential area half a mile in radius at Hamburg and that another section of the city was left "a shambles of ashes."

British Raid Germany

British raids in half a dozen western German cities were acknowledged, with non-military objects such as houses and hospitals declared hit.

Coastal batteries at Cherbourg, it was contended, sprayed a British cruiser with shells when the warship tried to bombard the port and "drove it away." Poor visibility prevented the Germans from telling whether the ship was damaged, they said.

Clergymen and Students Facing Prosecution under the Draft Act

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11. (AP)—Selective service officials said today that a young Austin, Minn., clergyman who has said he would refuse to register for conscription would be subject to prosecution for evading the law.

Although ministers of religion will be exempted automatically from military service, the law requires them to register and be classified as ministers.

Those who knowingly refuse to register are liable to imprisonment up to five years and a fine up to $10,000.

The Austin minister, the Rev. Winslow Wilson, announced that on Sunday he would tell his parishioners that as "a Christian objector to all war" he would hand the draft registration board a "statement of Christian conviction on refusing to register."

Twenty Students Balk

NEW YORK, Oct. 11. (AP)—Twenty students at Union Theological seminary announced today that they would refuse to register for selective service and, instead, submit a 1,400-word statement giving their reasons.

In refusing "to comply in any way with the selective training and service act," the students said in a written statement that "the war system is an evil part of our social order, and we declare that we can not cooperate with it in any way"

Britain's Highest Award Goes Posthumously to Late Officer

LONDON, Oct. 11 (AP) — Britain's highest award for valor in combat, the victoria cross, was awarded posthumously today to Captain E. C. T. Wilson, who held out for four days after he had been wounded by Italian forces attacking his lonely machine-gun outpost in British Somaliland.

The citation said:

"He inflicted such heavy casualties that the enemy determined to put his guns out of action.

"The enemy brought up a pack battery to within 700 yards and scored two direct hits through loopholes in his defenses, which, bursting within the post, wounded Acting Capt. Wilson severely in the right shoulder and in the left eye. Several of his team were also wounded.

"His guns were blown off their stands, but he repaired and replaced them and regardless of his wounds, carried on while his Somali sergeant was killed beside him.

"On Aug. 12th and 14th, the enemy again concentrated field artillery fire on Capt. Wilson's guns, but he continued with his wounds untended to man them.

"On Aug. 15, two of his machine-gun posts were blown to pieces, yet Capt. Wilson, now suffering from malaria in addition to his wounds, still kept his post in action.

"The enemy finally overran the post at 2 p. m., Aug. 15, when Capt. Wilson, fighting to the last, was killed."

The big bombers of the British coastal command simultaneously struck, for the second consecutive night, at German destroyers in the big port of Brest, on the Brittany peninsula below Cherbourg. Despite dirty weather, the fliers reported that they had scored several hits and that other salvos burst on

U. S. Seeking To Keep Siam from Assisting Japan

By RICHARD L. TURNER

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11 (AP)—Emphasizing its opposition to any forcible change in the Oriental status quo, the United States is actively seeking to dissuade Japan's friend, Thailand (Siam), from taking any aggressive step.

Diplomatic moves along this line were disclosed today, and at the same time it was indicated that the Dutch east indies, which are arming themselves against any Japanese inroads, would receive continued assistance from American factories.

Major M. Van Hasselen, flight commander of the East Indies air force, it was learned, is enroute to this country on an official plane purchasing mission. At a press conference today, Secretary of State Hull said the Indies had already made substantial purchases in this country, and indicated that there was no disposition to shut off such assistance.

East Indies Valuable

The Washington government has repeatedly expressed its concern lest the Dutch East Indies, following the seizure of Holland by Germany, should fall into Japanese hands. They are the source of huge imports of crude rubber, tin and other raw materials needed by American industries.

The reminder to Thailand, although disclosed only today, coin-

Japs Deny They Plan To Occupy Big Settlement

But Reports Persist of Troop Movements Near Shanghai

By The Associated Press

SHANGHAI, Oct. 11 — Japanese authorities made a studied attempt tonight to spike excited rumors of impending forcible occupation of Shanghai's international settlement or French concession.

Usually well-informed quarters insisted, however, that 14,000 Chinese soldiers of the Japanese-dominated Nanking government were concentrated between Shanghai and the Wosung forts, at the mouth of the Whangpoo river, twelve miles downstream from this teeming city.

An army spokesman admitted there might have been some troop movements, but he denied that "any troops are concentrated with the idea of moving against the foreign areas."

Army and navy spokesmen joined in an official denial either that Japanese forces were building concentration camps in which to intern foreigners or were "planning to take over the settlement or the French concession by force Oct. 18 after the Burma Road reopens."

This channel of imports and exports of the central Chinese government, with which Japan has been at war for thirty-nine months, is scheduled to be reopened by Britain Oct. 17.

The navy spokesman declared that "very definitely both are wild rumors and nothing more." They probably were originated by certain

Confederate Vets To Continue Meeting

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11. (AP)—With a hot political battle and a big parade, the United Confederate Veterans ended their fiftieth annual reunion today, voting to keep meeting every year as long as there were two Confederate soldiers alive and able to get together.

Commander-in-Chief Julius Franklin Howell had offered a resolution by which the organization could disband at any future convention provided three-fourths of those present agreed on it. But the boys in gray scornfully voted the resolution down.

The big political fight of the convention, the re-election of General Howell, a ninety-four-year-old Bristol, Va., resident, for a second term, ended in victory by a one-vote margin for Howell but with ruffled feelings among many of the old soldiers.

London Times Hit By German Bomb

LONDON, Oct. 11 (AP) — A heavy bomb struck the building of the London Times in a recent raid, it was disclosed tonight, causing considerable interior and some exterior damage.

When The Times mentions the incident for the first time tomorrow it will carry a letter from Prime Minister Winston Churchill congratulating the newspaper on "the remarkable way in which The Times has carried on in the face of all the damage and discomfort caused by the bombing of Printing House Square."

"None of your readers," Churchill added, "could discover from the paper that your editorial management departments had been destroyed. The resourcefulness and adaptability of your staff are beyond praise."

Britain's Highest Award Goes Posthumously to Late Officer

LONDON, Oct. 11 (AP) — Britain's highest award for valor in combat, the victoria cross, was awarded posthumously today to Captain E. C. T. Wilson, who held out for four days after he had been wounded by Italian forces attacking his lonely machine-gun outpost in British Somaliland.

The citation said:

"He inflicted such heavy casualties that the enemy determined to put his guns out of actidn.

"The enemy brought up a pack battery to within 700 yards and scored two direct hits through loopholes in his defenses, which, bursting within the post, wounded Acting Capt. Wilson severely in the right shoulder and in the left eye. Several of his team were also wounded.

"His guns were blown off their stands, but he repaired and replaced them and regardless of his wounds, carried on while his Somali sergeant was killed beside him.

"On Aug. 12th and 14th, the enemy again concentrated field artillery fire on Capt. Wilson's guns, but he continued with his wounds untended to man them.

"On Aug. 15, two of his machine-gun posts were blown to pieces, yet Capt. Wilson, now suffering from malaria in addition to his wounds, still kept his post in action.

"The enemy finally overran the post at 2 p. m., Aug. 15, when Capt. Wilson, fighting to the last, was killed."

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Oct. 12.—(Saturday—The "raiders passed" signal sounded in London around 2:30 a. m., today much earlier than usual, following a series of night attacks in which German airmen, slipping in stealthily with motors throttled down for long glides, bombed thirty-five London areas.

The Nazis stabbed viciously and repeatedly before calling it a night but the Press Association said only a few succeeded in penetrating deeply into the city.

LONDON, Oct. 12.—(Saturday)—Nazi airmen, cutting their motors off for long stealthy glides, dumped bombs on eighteen areas of London last night and early today and demolished several cottages on an estate near the country home of American Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy.

Ambassador Kennedy was in bed at the time and was uninjured. The walls of his house trembled and lampshades fell across the bed.

This was the second close call for the ambassador. Late in August a bomb fell 300 yards from the house and recently a Nazi airplane shot down by the British narrowly missed his home in falling.

Raid Scotch Highlands

German raiders were active from the Scottish highlands in the north to the Welsh mountains in the west and the much-bombed southeastern coastal area.

Three heavy bombs sacked down in one London area just after midnight, leaving clouds of debris.

One gas main burst and one man was killed when caught in the street. Firemen fought flames started by incendiaries.

German Air Squadrons Report Success in Widespread Raids

By The Associated Press

BERLIN, Oct. 11—The German air force in strong squadrons dealt out hard punishment today in a wide foray over southeast England, DNB, the official news agency, reported tonight.

Canterbury (where, the British said, windows of the historic cathedral were smashed), took the worst drubbing, according to the agency's accounts.

Returning pilots reported their bombs hit "objectives" and lifted great columns of smoke above the town.

A factory in another southeast town was declared completely demolished, and bomb hits on rail facilities along the coast were reported so effective that traffic will be impossible for a long time.

Series of Dog Fights

The raiders had to fight a series of dog fights, and shot down thirteen defense planes, it was said, losing but one of their own. A patrol boat was bombed off Ramsgate, the account stated.

DNB, elaborating on the official report of last night's raids, said that London's sprawling victoria station, in the west end, was damaged, they said.

hard and that numerous fires were started by bombs in mid-city. Half a million pounds of bombs were dropped on London alone last night, Nazis said.

Spokesmen insisted that widespread British raids over Germany and German-occupied countries last night had caused no important damage an dnone at all to military objectives. However, they listed a score of persons killed in western Germany and eighteen in Amsterdam and said that there was "devastation" over a residential area half a mile in radius at Hamburg and that another section of the city was left "a shambles of ashes."

British Raid Germany

British raids in half a dozen western German cities were acknowledged, with non-military objects such as houses and hospitals declared hit.

Coastal batteries at Cherbourg, it was contended, sprayed a British cruiser with shells when the warship tried to bombard the port and "drove it away." Poor visibility prevented the Germans from telling whether the ship was damaged, they said.

Her "Raid Shelter" Only for Apples

LINCOLN, Mass., Oct. 11 (AP)—Mrs. James J. Storrow, Jr., put an end today to interest and curiosity over an "aid raid" shelter she was reported having installed on her Lincoln estate.

"No-trespassing" signs had whetted the curiosity of passers-by, who from a distance saw men building the underground structure.

Nazi Planes Roar Over British Legation

By The Associated Press

BUCHAREST, Oct. 11.—The British government ordered all its nationals—the army of British business men and experts who have kept alive British interests in Rumania—to abandon this country tonight, a few hours after packed formations of German, Italian and Rumanian planes had roared over Bucharest to symbolize the extension of Axis influence to the Black Sea.

Marked plainly with German, Italian and Rumanian insignia, at least 150 planes roared in full-throated cry low over the British legation where Sir Reginald Hoare, the British minister, and his staff

Clergymen and Students Facing Prosecution under the Draft Act

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11. (AP)—Selective service officials said today that a young Austin, Minn., clergyman who has said he would refuse to register for conscription would be subject to prosecution for evading the law.

Although ministers of religion will be exempted automatically from military service, the law requires them to register and be classified as ministers.

Those who knowingly refuse to register are liable to imprisonment up to five years and a fine up to $10,000.

The Austin minister, the Rev. Winslow Wilson, announced that on Sunday he would tell his parishioners that as "a Christian objector to all war" he would hand the draft registration board a "statement of Christian conviction on refusing to register."

Twenty Students Balk

NEW YORK, Oct. 11. (AP)—Twenty students at Union Theological seminary announced today that they would refuse to register for selective service and, instead, submit a 1,400-word statement giving their reasons.

In refusing "to comply in any way with the selective training and service act," the students said in a written statement that "the war system is an evil part of our social order, and we declare that we can

Roosevelt Given Loud Reception By Pittsburghers

Many Cheer President, but Some Shout "We Want Willkie"

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL

ABOARD PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S TRAIN IN OHIO, Oct. 11 (AP)—President Roosevelt inspected bustling heavy industries in Pittsburgh, Pa., and Youngstown, O., today, saw what they were doing to help make America mighty in defense, and submitted himself to the inspection of thousands on thousands of people.

He saw a vast, low-cost housing development on a Pittsburgh hilltop where 2,653 families from slums will live in modern, clean apartments. That project, and others like it, he said, is a part of defense, too.

He saw by far the largest crowd that had turned out since he started the first of eight defense inspection trips late in July.

From Johnstown, Pa., where his special train picked up ranking Democratic leaders of Pennsylvania, on through Pittsburgh and again at Youngstown, countless tens of thousands of whooping, waving Americans of every age and color were jammed elbow to elbow along the route he traveled.

If the president was attempting to steer clear of campaigning—the White House calls defense surveys non-political—the people who saw him were not.

Calls for Willkie

Pittsburgh and its suburbs gave the biggest demonstration. There were countless flags and Roosevelt posters. At least a portion of the spectators let it be known that "we want Roosevelt." Here and there, however, came a cry of "we want Willkie."

Thirty-six electoral votes are at stake in Pennsylvania and twenty-six in Ohio in the election Nov. 5.

At the $13,800,000 terrace village housing development in Pittsburgh, the chief executive dedicated the 100,000th dwelling unit under the United States Housing Authority's program, and turned its keys over to Lester Churchfield, 26-year old mill worker, and his family of four.

The occasion called for a brief, extemporaneous speech.

Sitting in an open car overlooking a deep gash in the steel city's hills and the winding Monongahela river, Mr. Roosevelt asserted:

Speaks from His Car

"The jobs and the homes of most of the people in our country constitute a part of their stake in the nation.

"As long as they know that their government is sympathetically working to protect their jobs and to better their homes, we can be confident that if the need arises the people themselves will wholeheartedly join in the defense of their homes and the defense of their democracy.

"And so I regard these housing projects everywhere as a part of the defense program."

The president saw the actual, physical process of turning steel into sturdy materials for defense—armor, guns, machine tools—at the Carnegie-Illinois armor plate and Mesta Machine company plants in Pittsburgh. More of the same was on the schedule during a late afternoon visit to the establishment of the Youngstown Sheet & Tube company in Ohio.

Lawrence Greets Guffey

While politicians clambered aboard the Roosevelt train today at nearly every stop, they remained in the background for the most part. On the journey from Johnstown to Pittsburgh, however, a significant handclasp took place between Senator Joseph Guffey, up for reelection, and David Lawrence, Democratic National Committeeman for Pennsylvania.

They had been at odds since a bitter 1938 gubernatorial contest in the state. But today they joined in an assertion to reporters that Pennsylvania Democrats were united behind a third term.

Also boarding the train at Johnstown were Meredith Meyers, Pennsylvania Democratic campaign manager, and Luther A. Harr, state campaign manager.

DECOMMISSIONED SUBS GO BACK TO WORK

These submarines, tied up at Charlestown, Mass., said their farewell to arms after the World War. With many others, they will be recommissioned and returned to duty with the new Atlantic fleet. The Navy expects to have 36 of these undersea craft ready by January to augment the rapidly growing sea-power of the United States.

Guard Resigns, 12 Prisoners Moved, Following Riot

About 100 Start Trouble at Breathedsville Prison Farm

HAGERSTOWN, Md., Oct. 11 (AP)—One guard resigned and twelve prisoners have been moved to the Maryland penitentiary following a riot at the state penal farm at nearby Breathedsville, officials disclosed today.

Approximately 100 prisoners participated in the riot Sunday night, knocking out windows, taking fire extinguishers from the walls, unwinding fire hose and maintaining a noisy uproar for four hours.

Harold E. Donnell, state prison superintendent, said the prisoners were subdued by guards without use of firearms or any other injurious force.

He blamed the uprising on "poor judgment" of the guard who later resigned, and said the latter used language the prisoners resented when he attempted to suppress their conversation after the 9:30 retirement hour.

Some of the prisoners were talking an hour after the time they are required to retire, he said, and when the guard ordered quiet other prisoners joined in with retorts and a noisy bedlam developed in the dormitory.

Guards from other dormitories were called and quiet was restored at about 2 a. m. Donnell said he was called to the penal farm Monday but found everything calm when he arrived.

He said prison officials did not consider the disturbance serious enough to make a public report on it at the time.

Only prisonrers who have no more than five years to serve are sent to the farm. Some of the twelve transferred to the penitentiary had as little as two weeks left to serve, Donnell said, the twelve were described as leaders of the uprising.

Returning from Europe Rainer Asserts Hitler Is Like God to Nazis

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Oct. 11 (AP)—Tears of joy rolled down the cheeks of Luise Rainer today as she embraced her 65-year old father on his arrival from Europe, where he recently was freed from a Prague prison camp.

Heinrich Rainer, who once conducted a thriving export-import business in Hamburg and Brussels, appeared equally joyous at seeing his daughter and wife, who were waiting at the pier when the American liner Excambion arrived from Lisbon.

He dismissed any possibility of an internal uprising in Germany with the declamation that Hitler was almost a God to his people.

"The German people think like Hitler," he said, "because he has kept his promises to them. That is why they believe in him."

Clayton E. Whipple, 37, a native of Perry, W. Va., who had been directing rural education for the Near East Foundation at Sofia, Bulgaria, told of tenseness in the Balkans.

"The communists," he said, "have direct orders to work against the Germans in the Balkans and the Near East. The Balkan countries are still looking toward America for help."

Slayer of Parents Caught Year After His Escape from Asylum

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 11 (AP) — A collector for a weekly magazine, living quietly here for a year as a respected citizen, was arrested today as an escaped inmate from an Austin, Tex., insane asylum, where he was committed after the slaying of his prominent parents.

Police Detective Captain Clarence McLaskey said the man was Howard Merit Pierson, 26, whose parents, Supreme Court Justice and Mrs. William Pierson, were killed in Austin April 24, 1935.

McLaskey captured Pierson, who escaped from the Texas asylum April 16, 1938, on a downtown street, saying he recognized the man from a picture he had seen in a fugitive bulletin file.

Mild mannered and well dressed, the man denied his identity until McLaskey showed him a circular containing Pierson's picture. The fugitive then said "that's me, you finally caught me," the officer asserted.

Pierson was accused of luring his father and mother to the hill country northwest of Austin and shooting them. He was sent to the state asylum there soon after a district court jury found him insane.

Murder indictments are still pending against Pierson. District Attorney Edwin G. Moorhead filed an affidavit in district court at Austin today, declaring Pierson to be sane and asking that he be tried on a sanity issue to clear the way for a murder trial.

Bishop Curley 61, Deplores Lack of Respect for Laws

BALTIMORE, Oct. 11, (AP)—The Most Rev. Michael J. Curley, archbishop of Baltimore and Washington, will be sixty-one tomorrow, but he plans no celebration.

"People put too much emphasis on birthdays," he said in an interview today. "It's not the day you are born that counts, but the day you die. That's the important day and the one I'm concerned about."

The archbishop said that "internal conditions of our country are not in such a state of preparedness as I would like to see them."

"I refer," he said, "to the evils of lack of respect for law and order in our nation, to the curse of divorce that is directed against the very foundations of society, to birth control that is approved by the first lady of the land as not against her religion, but which is against the fundamental law of nature and is known as wrong to my old friends the Seminole Indians of Florida, who are pagans today."

The archbishop, who has received hundreds of congratulatory messages from all over the country, has prepared a special message touching upon world conditions which will be broadcast tomorrow night in Washington.

Turks Threaten To Attack Nazi Troops

By D. W. HANCOCK

ANKARA, Turkey, Oct. 11 (AP)—Turkey, non-belligerent ally of Britain and stalwart guardian of the Dardanelles, served emphatic notice on Germany tonight that 2,000,000 Turkish bayonets stand athwart any Axis move in this direction against the near east.

The Turks, anxiously watching the entry of German troops into nearby Rumania, specifically warned Germany any thrust across Turkey and Syria would meet with "very strong resistance."

"If it is the Germans' intention to penetrate Egypt in this direction they surely know this road is not easy, but on the contrary is very difficult," the official Turkish radio said in the military section of the evening news broadcast compiled by the general staff of the Turkish army, navy and air force.

Predict Strong Resistance

"This road across Anatolia is guarded by 2,000,000 bayonets. Such a move on Germany's part would create many political complications and meet with very strong resistance."

The radio, making the first official comment on the dispatch of German forces into Rumania, added "it seems the Balkans, and even Soviet Russia, are on the brink of unexpected war. It is best to see what the next two weeks will bring. Let us wait."

It gave three possible explanations of the German advance into the Balkan kingdom:

Three Explanations

"One, to protect Rumania's oil fields from all possible attacks by neighbors or by the British Mediterranean air force. This is not sufficient reason to explain such drastic action.

"Two, to assist in the occupation of Egypt, the Italian army has learned that an advance beyond Sidi Barrani is extremely difficult and maybe Germany has judged it necessary to advance across the Balkans, across Anatolia into Syria and Egypt."

"Three, to assist in the occupation of Egypt by occupying Greece, which would bring Germany to the Mediterranean. However, supposing Greece is occupied, it still would be impossible to get a land force to Egypt because the Axis does not dominate the Mediterranean."

Red Cross Officials To Meet Monday

FREDERICK, Md., Oct. 11 (AP)—Western Maryland Red Cross officials will meet here Monday in one of two regional conferences at which plans for one of the organization's most intensive drives in years will be drafted.

The conference will be followed by another Tuesday at Salisbury, at which chapters from the eastern shore counties of Maryland and Virginia will be represented.

Walter Davidson of Washington, D. C., assistant manager of the eastern area of the Red Cross, will be the principal speaker at both meetings.

Increased activities and obligations of the Red Cross under the national defense program will be discussed, with special emphasis on the proposed training of thousands of persons in first aid.

Mrs. Ernest C. Webb will preside at the meeting here, and Judge Hamm

Robert Willkie End Baltimore Trouble

BALTIMORE, Oct. 11 (AP)—Robert T. Willkie, brother of the Republican presidential candidate, paid a surprise visit to Republican leaders today and apparently re-established harmony within the GOP.

He visited Paul Robertson, chairman of the Republican City Committee, then went with him to talk with W. David Tilghman, Jr., chairman of the Republican State Central Committee.

Robertson last weekend asserted he was "stabbed in the back" when Tilghman canceled a mass meeting appearance of Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., scheduled for Oct. 24. Robertson said he was not informed in advance of the cancellation.

Robertson and Tilghman appeared on cordial terms following Willkie's visit. The latter said he was in Washington "and had half a day at my disposal, so I decided to come over here."

"I have visited West Virginia, Tennessee, Kentucky and other border states," he added, "and everything is looking fine for the Republican party."

INTERPRETING THE WAR NEWS

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

Significant moves by Germany and Italy on the Balkan front tend to enhance the belief that the long-heralded invasion of England has been abandoned at least until spring, but Britain is taking no chances.

Naval bombardment of Cherbourg to supplement a crescendo of British air bombing all along the North Sea-English Channel "invasion coast" illustrates that. Heavy as well as light naval craft were engaged, London said, with no casualties to ships or crews.

Of itself, that would be a mere incident of the battle of Britain. Admiralty orders exposing heavy naval craft to possible German submarine or torpedo boat attack, however, have more meaning. They indicate ever-growing confidence in London that the Nazi invasion threat is meaningless now; that it has been abandoned, or that it would result in a crushing Nazi defeat, if tried in desperation.

First Sea Attack

Nevertheless, a mopping-up campaign by air and sea against possible invasion is the first item on the daily war-book of Britain. The Cherbourg sortie is important chiefly because it is the first time British capital ships have taken part in that phase of the fighting.

These ships are England's final hole-card against invasion. Their armored decks give them a definite degree of invulnerability to air attack. It is Nazi torpedoes that most threaten them.

As the western extremity of the most dangerous zone of the "invasion coast" Cherbourg well might have been the rendezvous for Nazi submarine concentrated to protect the flank of an invasion army. They did not appear when British naval guns opened fire on Cherbourg and presumably were not there, but off preying on British cargo.

Balkan Situation Uncertain

When British leadership feels free to coscentrate on counter offensive projects, however, the developing Rumanian crisis must catch attention. There is a weak spot in any Nazi-Fascist plan to use Rumania as a jumping-off place for a new smash to the east. This is illustrated by comment in the Germanophile press in Rumania. It charges British diplomacy with conspiring to attack Rumanian oil fields by air from Turkey.

The seemingly certain break in British-Rumanian relations could open the way to just that. Even without formal war, arrival of German troops in Rumania for a sort of "watch on the Danube" makes that country a virtual axis war base. And Rumanian oil is the vital element for the Axis in the situation, the most vulnerable point for British attack if ways and means to attack it can be found.

Nor is German or Axis military penetration to the Black Sea apt to sit lightly on Russian minds. That is Russia's private sea, in Russian estimation. Across it passes the bulk of the oil necessary for the Red army and Russian industry. In the absence of adequate rail service from the Caspian oil fields, that route is as vital to Russia as Rumanian oil is to Germany and Italy. What Russia might do about the Axis push eastward to the Black Sea is the great enigma of the moment.

Sees Failure of

third term candidate. He thinks they can win for him."

The candidate argued that the administration campaign would cause embarrassment to "millions of Italian-American citizens."

"They have a right to vote just like anybody else," he continued. "But they don't want to vote on European issues. They want to vote on the American issues."

Declaring that the next administration "will bear the awful responsibility of keeping us at peace," Willkie added that "we can have peace—but we must know how to preserve it."

Against Foreign Wars

"To begin with," he said, "we shall not undertake to fight anybody else's war. Our boys shall stay out of Europe.

"But we shall appease no one. We stand for our democratic institutions and we stand ready to defend them with our lives."

Contending that the administration has failed to build an adequate defense, Willkie declared that "we have plenty of talk but few tanks; plenty of plans but few planes."

President Roosevelt, he said cut more than $500,000,000 from war department budget estimates in 1939 and "did this when the very calamity he warned against was happening."

"He seriously delayed the defense program," Willkie continued. "He delayed the procurement of tools, clothing and even essential medical supplies. Work on five coast defense batteries had to be abandoned. Work on government arsenals, looking two years ahead, was prevented."

"I say this is an irresponsible government," the candidate declared, "and I say that we can not afford to have that kind of government any longer. We must have the kind of government that gets things done. x x x We must elect such a government."

Hits at New Deal

The Republican standard bearer hit out on two separate instances late in the day against President Roosevelt's current midwestern trip. The second was at Lynn, a shoe manufacturing city, where some boos mingled with the cheering.

A few minutes earlier, in Harvard square in nearby Cambridge, before a crowd made up mainly of Harvard University students, Willkie referred to the same subject in saying the "candidate for the third term" had left Washington on "an ostensible military inspection trip."

"I notice by the noon papers," he said, "that his train, paid for at public expense, is to stop at Johnstown, Pa., and take aboard the Democratic candidate for senator and other Democratic leaders.

"That is no military inspection trip."

He told the student crowd, which booed at every reference to the president, that he considered this was "playing politics with the defense of the United States."

Before coming back to a crowded and confetti-strewn reception in downtown Boston, Willkie asserted again and again in impromptu speeches that the New Deal was trying to divide the nation into classes, while he was fighting for national unity.

Bombardment Is

Launch Heavy Attack

Light and heavy men o'war all slipped through the thick mist o Cape Contentin, leveled their dea ly barrels and pounded the ships roadstead and port, capable of she tering hundreds of vessels and least fifty warships of the line.

"Our salvos were seen burstin effectively on the targets and ve large fires resulted," the admiral reported. "These were visible fro our ships on their way home at distance of forty miles."

The Germans have light na forces at Cherbourg, the Britis said, but they made no reply to th bombardment and Cherbourg shore guns were silent until th attacking craft had come har about and headed for home, eight five miles away.

Then they opened up, but th admiralty said "no damages o casualties were sustained."

Planes Direct Fire

British planes directed the fir at Cherbourg, but that was only a incident in the Royal Air Force night of counter-attacking.

Bombers attacked from the Chan nel and North Sea shores opposite Britain to Kiel, Wilhelmshaven and Amsterdam and were reported to have devastated oil stores at Hann over, Cologne and half a dozer other points in western Germany.

Summing up this series of blows at German fuel stores, the air min istry said seven plants with a com bined annual output capacity of nearly 1,500,000 metric tons were at tacked.

These centers, it was added, were "singled out for concerted oper ations. Widespread damage was be lieved to have been caused to oil stores of vital importance to the German war machine."

(German accounts of the British counter-attacks, although denying there was military damage, plainly confirmed the scope of the raids. The Germans said at least a score of persons were killed in Germany and eighteen at Amsterdam, acknowledged the port of Hamburg was badly hit; asserted thirteen houses in a Cologne suburb were damaged; said a hospital and a medical institute were damaged at Leipzing and listed among other raided cities Duesseldorf, Magdeburg and Essen, where the big Krupp arms works are situated.)

Britain Calls

were packing up in apparent readiness to leave, and then flew in warning over the Rumanian oil centers of Ploesti and Giurgiu where British and French interests once were dominant.

The British called it an "intimidation" raid.

All British To Leave

Within a few hours London instructed the legation to remove immediately all nationals from Rumania.

It seemed likely severence of diplomatic relations between Britain and Rumania was a matter of hours.

(Relations have reached a "critical point," it was announced in London. The British blocked all Rumanian credits in the United Kingdom, as the United States had done, it was learned).

Some members of the legation staff will leave tomorrow, but it was indicated that no final announcement of rupture in Anglo-Rumanian relations would be made until the last Briton has left.

Germans Only Instructors

The Rumanian government, meanwhile, was drawing up a special communique, announcing for the first time—officially—that the German military had arrived "to act only as instructors to the Rumanian army."

Truckloads of baggage of German aviators arrived at one hotel opposite the Royal palace where two floors had been reserved for forty-five German officers, and an entire floor and other quarters were arranged for other high-ranking German officers—indicating German military plans in Rumania are extensive.

The flights over the oil centers underscored a charge published in the German mouthpiece here, the Tageblatt, that Britain had assigned to Turkey the task of destroying Rumania's oil wells by aerial attack, and that the British minister, Sir Reginald, was implicated in the plot.

Fear Pincer Movement

The Turkish press openly expressed the fear Germany was launching a 1,600-mile pincer movement against the Suez Canal to support Italy's drive from the other direction from Libya.

The Turks hoped lack of cooperation from Soviet Russia, however, would stay the German hand.

Elsewhere, uneasiness was extending through southeastern Europe.

There were reports of increasing pressure against Yugoslavia and of stepped up Axis shipments of munitions to Bulgaria.

(From Budapest, the Greek army was reported making steady preparations for any development.

(Hungarian students shouting "down with Bucharest" staged Budapest demonstrations which coincided with appeals by both Rumania and Hungary to the Axis to settle disputes over details growing out of Hungary's occupation of northern Transylvania.

Kennedy Escapes In Bomb Attack

LONDON, Oct. 11 (AP) — Two heavy German bombs fell early today in the grounds of the country home where United States Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy is staying, demolishing several cottages on the estate.

The ambassador was unhurt, but eleven other persons suffered minor injuries. Kennedy lunched with King George and Queen Elizabeth today at Buckingham Palace.

Suggestion f Fraud

"The cause of civil liberty calls for honor and decency on the part of those who seek to promote it, whereas in the pending case there is a pointed suggestion of fraud in that very decision," the judge declared.

"If the intervenors here would display the same interest and zeal in purging the petitioners' case of the taint of fraud by entering the appropriate channels and following through on that undertaking, as they have shown here in the advocacy of the petitioners' cause, they would be rendering, indeed, a notable patriotic service."

Walsh Decides Not To Take An Appeal

BALTIMORE, Oct. 11 (AP)—Attorney General William C. Walsh announced tonight that, after a conference with Chief Judge Carroll T. Bond of the Court of Appeals, "we have decided not to take an appeal" from a court decision today giving Communist candidates the right to appear on Maryland's ballots in next month's election.

The decision was handed down by Judge Ridgely Melvin in Anne Arundel County Circuit Court. Judge Melvin granted a mandamus petition by Albert Blumberg, secretary of the state communist party, enjoining the secretary of state from keeping Communist candidates off the ballot.

Secretary Lacks Power

"It has long been established in Maryland," Walsh said in a statement, "that the duties of the secretary of state are purely ministerial, and, when the petition (Communist petition to certify candidates) was filed, we ruled that it was in proper form."

"At the time this suit was filed, the secretary of state, personally, knew that the Dies Committee had found irregularities and fraud in the securing of the signatures to the petition in Maryland, and before his answer was filed, he knew that the Baltimore city grand jury had indicted for perjury committee in connection with the petition, six of the persons who secured the signatures to the petition.

"In view of these circumstances, the secretary of state felt that it was his duty to present these facts to the court in his answer, and to ask the court to advise him what he should do regarding the petition.

"The court has now instructed him to certify the candidates of the Communist party . . . and it is at least doubtful whether the secretary of state, in his position of neutrality, would have any standing to appeal from this decision.

Taxpayer Could Act

"It might be pointed out that while the court has decided that the secretary of state, being a purely ministerial officer, has no authority to question or investigate the validity of nominating petitions, any opposing candidate or any taxpayer has the right to question such validity, and any taxpayer of the state of Maryland could have questioned the present petition of the Communist party at any time since it was filed with the secretary of state last April.

"Even assuming that an appeal would be proper in this case, there is the further question whether any good purpose would be served by an appeal, in view of the limited time remaining before the candidates must be certified.

"Under the election laws of Maryland, the secretary of state is required to certify the names of all candidates to the various boards of supervisors of elections not less than eighteen days before election day, and as election day this year is on November 5, this means that the secretry of state must certify those nominated not later than October 17, 1940, which is next Thursday.

Little Time for Trial

"Even if the court of appeals would hear and decide the case tomorrow, (and reverse the lower court) the trial in the lower court could not begin before Tuesday, because it would require all day Monday to summon the witnesses, and it is obvious that testimony of so many witnesses could not be taken in the few days remaining before the secretary of state would have to certify the nominations.

"Chief Judge Bond stated that while the court of appeals would be willing to hold a special session to consider the appeal, he did not want to do this when it was clear that lack of time would prevent any decision by the lower court in case of a reversal.

"I might add that no purpose would be served in taking an appeal after the time for certification had passed, because the Court of Appeals has repeatedly held that it will not pass nugatory decrees, and any decree passed involving the secretary of state after he has made the certification, would obviously me ineffective."

State To Receive Oil Painting of Late Gov. Lloyd

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 11 (AP)—An oil painting of the late Gov. Henry Lloyd, of Dorchester county, one of the fifteen Maryland governors whose portraits do not grace the walls of the state house, will be presented to the state formally at 5 p. m. Monday.

Senator Radcliffe, a friend of the late governor, who served from 1885 to 1888, will make the presentation address. Governor O'Conor will respond.

The last legislature appropriated funds for painting of the portrait. Among those expected here for the ceremony are Former Governor Emerson C. Harrington and Henry Lloyd, Jr., of Cambridge, son of the late governor.

Recently, the relatives of William Pinkney Whyte, governor from 1872 to 1874, presented his portrait to the state.

Willkie Struck by Fruit or Vegetable

BOSTON, Oct. 11 (AP)—Wendell Willkie and one of his bodyguards were struck by a piece of soft fruit or vegetable today as the Republican presidential candidate's motorcade entered Boston—but then the mystery started.

Newspapermen close to Willkie described the missile variously as an apple and a banana. The bodyguard cast his vote for a very soft apple. But then came a police report which identified it as a boiled potato.

Whatever it was, Willkie brushed it deftly from his coat with one hand while he continued to wave to cheering bystanders with his other.

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL

ABOARD PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S TRAIN IN OHIO, Oct. 11 (AP)—President Roosevelt inspected bustling heavy industries in Pittsburgh, Pa., and Youngstown, O., today, saw what they were doing to help make America mighty in defense, and submitted himself to the inspection of thousands on thousands of people.

He saw a vast, low-cost housing development on a Pittsburgh hilltop where 2,653 families from slums will live in modern, clean apartments. That project, and others like it, he said, is a part of defense, too.

He saw by far the largest crowd that had turned out since he started the first of eight defense inspection trips late in July.

From Johnstown, Pa., where his special train picked up ranking Democratic leaders of Pennsylvania on through Pittsburgh and again at Youngstown, countless tens of thousands of whooping, waving Americans of every age and color were jammed elbow to elbow along the route he traveled.

If the president was attempting to steer clear of campaigning—the White House calls defense surveys non-political—the people who saw him were not.

Calls for Willkie

Pittsburgh and its suburbs gave the biggest demonstration. There were countless flags and Roosevelt posters. At least a portion of the spectators let it be known that "we want Roosevelt." Here and there, however, came a cry of "we want Willkie."

Thirty-six electoral votes are at stake in Pennsylvania and twenty-six in Ohio in the election Nov. 5.

At the $13,800,000 terrace village housing development in Pittsburgh, the chief executive dedicated the 100,000th dwelling unit under the United States Housing Authority's program, and turned its keys over to Lester Churchfield, 26-year old mill worker, and his family of four.

The occasion called for a brief, extemporaneous speech.

Sitting in an open car overlooking a deep gash in the steel city's hills and the winding Monongahela river, Mr. Roosevelt asserted:

Speaks from His Car

"The jobs and the homes of most of the people in our country constitute a part of their stake in the nation.

"As long as they know that their government is sympathetically working to protect their jobs and to better their homes, we can be confident that if the need arises the people themselves will wholeheartedly join in the defense of their homes and the defense of their democracy.

"And so I regard these housing projects everywhere as a part of the defense program."

The president saw the actual physical process of turning steel into sturdy materials for defense—armor, guns, machine tools—at the Carnegie-Illinois armor plate and Mesta Machine company plants in Pittsburgh. More of the same was on the schedule during a late afternoon visit to the establishment of the Youngstown Sheet & Tube company in Ohio.

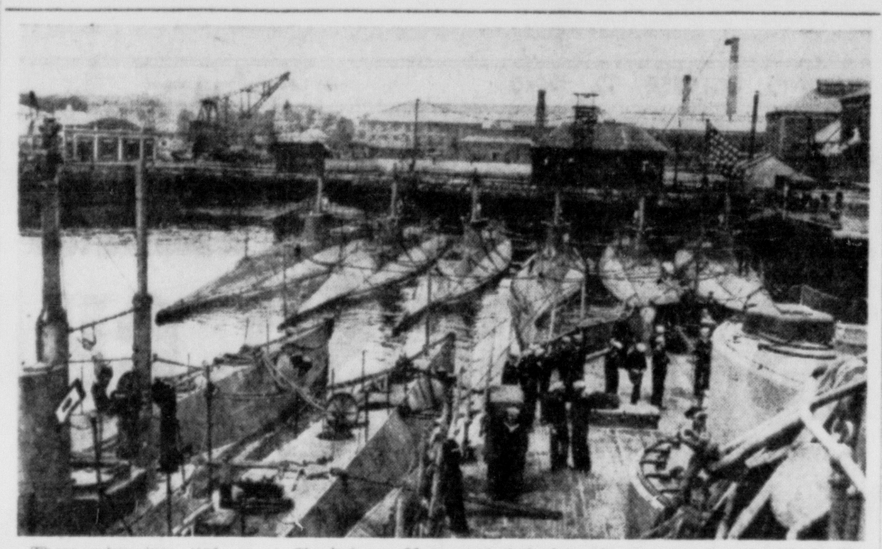
Lawrence Greets Guffey

While politicians clambered aboard the Roosevelt train today at nearly every stop, they remained in the background for the most part. On the journey from Johnstown to Pittsburgh, however, a significant handclasp took place between Senator Joseph Guffey, up for reelection, and David Lawrence, Democratic National Committeeman for Pennsylvania.

They had been at odds since a bitter 1938 gubernatorial contest in the state. But today they joined in an assertion to reporters that Pennsylvania Democrats were united behind a third term.

Also boardering the train at Johnstown were Meredith Meyers, Pennsylvania Democratic campaign manager, and Luther A. Harr, state campaign manager.

DECOMMISSIONED SUBS GO BACK TO WORK



These submarines tied up at Charlestown, Mass., said their farewell to arms after the World War. With many others, they will be recommissioned and returned to duty with the new Atlantic fleet. The Navy expects to have 36 of these undersea craft ready by January to augment the rapidly growing seapower of the United States.

Guard Resigns, 12 Prisoners Moved, Following Riot

About 100 Start Trouble at Breathedsville Prison Farm

HAGERSTOWN, Md., Oct. 11 (AP)—One guard resigned and twelve prisoners have been moved to the Maryland penitentiary following a riot at the state penal farm at nearby Breathedsville, officials disclosed today.

Approximately 100 prisoners participated in the riot Sunday night, knocking out windows, taking fire extinguishers from the walls, unwinding fire hose and maintaining a noisy uproar for four hours.

Harold E. Donnell, state prison superintendent, said the prisoners were subdued by guards without use of firearms or any other injurious force.

He blamed the uprising on "poor judgment" of the guard who later resigned, and said the latter used language the prisoners resented when he attempted to suppress their conversation after the 9:30 retirement hour.

Some of the prisoners were talking an hour after the time they are required to retire, he said, and when the guard ordered quiet other prisoners joined in with retorts and a noisy bedlam developed in the dormitory.

Guards from other dormitories were called and quiet was restored at about 2 a. m. Donnell said he was called to the penal farm Monday but found everything calm when he arrived.

He said prison officials did not consider the disturbance serious enough to make a public report on it at the time.

Only prisonrers who have no more than five years to serve are sent to the farm. Some of the twelve transferred to the penitentiary had as little as two weeks left to serve, Donnell said, the twelve were described as leaders of the uprising.

Returning from Europe Rainer Asserts Hitler Is Like God to Nazis

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Oct. 11 (AP)—Tears of joy rolled down the cheeks of Luise Rainer today as she embraced her 65-year old father on his arrival from Europe, where he recently was freed from a Prague prison camp.

Heinrich Rainer, who once conducted a thriving export-import business in Hamburg and Brussels, appeared equally joyous at seeing his daughter and wife, who were waiting at the pier when the American liner Excambion arrived from Lisbon.

He dismissed any possibility of an internal uprising in Germany with the declamation that Hitler was almost a God to his people.

"The German people think like Hitler," he said, "because he has kept his promises to them. That is why they believe in him."

Clayton E. Whipple, 37, a native of Perry, W. Va., who had been directing rural education for the Near East Foundation at Sofia, Bulgaria, told of tenseness in the Balkans.

"The communists," he said, "have direct orders to work against the Germans in the Balkans and the Near East. The Balkan countries are still looking toward America for help."

Slayer of Parents Caught Year After His Escape from Asylum

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 11 (AP) — A collector for a weekly magazine, living quietly here for a year as a respected citizen, was arrested today as an escaped inmate from an Austin, Tex., insane asylum, where he was committed after the slaying of his prominent parents.

Police Detective Captain Clarence McLaskey said the man was Howard Merit Pierson, 26, whose parents, Supreme Court Justice and Mrs. William Pierson, were killed in Austin April 24, 1935.

McLaskey captured Pierson, who escaped from the Texas asylum April 16, 1938, on a downtown street, saying he recognized the man from a picture he had seen in a fugitive bulletin file.

Mild mannered and well dressed, the man denied his identity until McLaskey showed him a circular containing Pierson's picture. The fugitive then said "that's me, you finally caught me," the officer asserted.

Pierson was accused of luring his father and mother to the hill country northwest of Austin and shooting them. He was sent to the state asylum there soon after a district court jury found him insane.

Murder indictments are still pending against Pierson. District Attorney Edwin G. Moorhead filed an affidavit in district court at Austin today, declaring Pierson to be sane and asking that he be tried on a sanity issue to clear the way for a murder trial.

Bishop Curley 61, Deplores Lack of Respect for Laws

BALTIMORE, Oct. 11. (AP)—The Most Rev. Michael J. Curley, archbishop of Baltimore and Washington, will be sixty-one tomorrow, but he plans no celebration.

"People put too much emphasis on birthdays," he said in an interview today. "It's not the day you are born that counts, but the day you die. That's the important day and the one I'm concerned about."

The archbishop said that "internal conditions of our country are not in such a state of preparedness as I would like to see them."

"I refer," he said, "to the evils of lack of respect for law and order in our nation, to the curse of divorce that is directed against the very foundations of society, to birth control that is approved by the first lady of the land as not against her religion, but which is against the fundamental law of nature and is known as wrong to my old friends the Seminole Indians of Florida, who are pagans today."

The archbishop, who has received hundreds of congratulatory messages from all over the country, has prepared a special message touching upon world conditions which will be broadcast tomorrow night in Washington.

INTERPRETING THE WAR NEWS

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

Significant moves by Germany and Italy on the Balkan front tend to enhance the belief that the long-heralded invasion of England has been abandoned at least until spring, but Britain is taking no chances.

Naval bombardment of Cherbourg to supplement a crescendo of British air bombing all along the North Sea - English Channel "invasion coast" illustrates that. Heavy as well as light naval craft were engaged, London said, with no casualties to ships or crews.

Of itself, that would be a mere incident of the battle of Britain. Admiralty orders exposing heavy naval craft to possible German submarine or torpedo boat attack, however, have more meaning. They indicate ever-growing confidence in London that the Nazi invasion threat is meaningless now; that it has been abandoned, or that it would result in a crushing Nazi defeat, if tried in desperation.

First Sea Attack

Nevertheless, a mopping-up campaign by air and sea against possible invasion is the first item on the daily war-book of Britain. The Cherbourg sortie is important chiefly because it is the first time British capital ships have taken part in that phase of the fighting.

These ships are England's final hole-card against invasion. Their armored decks give them a definite degree of invulnerability to air attack. It is Nazi torpedoes that most threaten them.

As the western extremity of the most dangerous zone of the "invasion coast" Cherbourg well might have been the rendezvous for Nazi submarine concentrated to protect the flank of an invasion army. They did not appear when British naval guns opened fire on Cherbourg and presumably were not there, but off preying on British cargo.

Balkan Situation Uncertain

When British leadership feels free to coscentrate on counter offensive projects, however, the developing Rumanian crisis must catch attention. There is a weak spot in any Nazi-Fascist plan to use Rumania as a jumping-off place for a new smash to the east. This is illustrated by comment in the Germanophile press in Rumania. It charges British diplomacy with conspiring to attack Rumanian oil fields by air from Turkey.

The seemingly certain break in British-Rumanian relations could open the way to just that. Even without formal war, arrival of German troops in Rumania for a sort of "watch on the Danube" makes that country a virtual axis war base. And Rumanian oil is the vital element for the Axis in the situation, the most vulnerable point for British attack if ways and means to attack it can be found.

Nor is German or Axis military penetration to the Black Sea apt to sit lightly on Russian minds. That is Russia's private sea, in Russian estimation. Across it passes the bulk of the oil necessary for the Red army and Russian industry. In the absence of adequate rail service from the Caspian oil fields, that route is as vital to Russia as Rumanian oil is to Germany and Italy. What Russia might do about the Axis push eastward to the Black Sea is the great enigma of the moment.

third term candidate. He thinks they can win for him."

The candidate argued that the administration campaign would cause embarrassment to "millions of Italian-American citizens."

"They have a right to vote just like anybody else," he continued. "But they don't want to vote on European issues. They want to vote on the American issues."

Declaring that the next administration "will bear the awful responsibility of keeping us at peace," Willkie added that "we can have peace—but we must know how to preserve it."

Against Foreign Wars

"To begin with," he said, "we shall not undertake to fight anybody else's war. Our boys shall stay out of Europe.

"But we shall appease no one. We stand for our democratic institutions and we stand ready to defend them with our lives."

Contending that the administration has failed to build an adequate defense, Willkie declared that "we have plenty of talk but few tanks; plenty of plans but few planes."

President Roosevelt, he said cut more than $500,000,000 from war department budget estimates in 1939 and "did this when the very calamity he warned against was happening."

"He seriously delayed the defense program," Willkie continued. "He delayed the procurement of tools, clothing and even essential medical supplies. Work on five coast defense batteries had to be abandoned. Work on government arsenals, looking two years ahead, was prevented."

"I say this is an irresponsible government," the candidate declared, "and I say that we can not afford to have that kind of government any longer. We must have the kind of government that gets things done. x x x We must elect such a government."

Hits at New Deal

The Republican standard bearer hit out on two separate instances late in the day against President Roosevelt's current midwestern trip. The second was at Lynn, a shoe manufacturing city, where some boos mingled with the cheering.

A few minutes earlier, in Harvard square in nearby Cambridge, before a crowd made up mainly of Harvard University students, Willkie referred to the same subject in saying the "candidate for the third term" had left Washington on "an ostensible military inspection trip."

"I notice by the noon papers," he said, "that his train, paid for at public expense, is to stop at Johnstown, Pa., and take aboard the Democratic candidate for senator and other Democratic leaders.

"That is no military inspection trip."

He told the student crowd, which booed at every reference to the president, that he considered this was "playing politics with the defense of the United States."

Before coming back to a crowded and confetti-strewn reception in downtown Boston, Willkie asserted again and again in impromptu speeches that the New Deal was trying to divide the nation into classes, while he was fighting for national unity.

Bombardment Is

Launch Heavy Attack

Light and heavy men o'war alik slipped through the thick mist o Cape Contentin, leveled their deac ly barrels and pounded the ships i roadstead and port, capable of sho tering hundreds of vessels and a least fifty warships of the line.

"Our salvos were seen bursting effectively on the targets and ver large fires resulted," the admiralt reported. "These were visible fro our ships on their way home at a distance of forty miles."

The Germans have light nava forces at Cherbourg, the British said, but they made no reply to the bombardment and Cherbourg shore guns were silent until the attacking craft had come hard about and headed for home, eighty five miles away.

Then they opened up, but the admiralty said "no damages o casualties were sustained."

(German sources, admitting "an attempted bombardment of Cherbourg by an enemy cruiser," said the attacker was "driven away" by fire from ashore.)

Planes Direct Fire

British planes directed the fire at Cherbourg, but that was only an incident in the Royal Air Force's night of counter-attacking.

Bombers attacked from the Channel and North Sea shores opposite Britain to Kiel, Wilhelmshaven and Amsterdam and were reported to have devastated oil stores at Hannover, Cologne and half a dozen other points in western Germany.

Summing up this series of blows at German fuel stores, the air ministry said seven plants with a combined annual output capacity of nearly 1,500,000 metric tons were attacked.

These centers, it was added, were "singled out for concerted operations. Widespread damage was believed to have been caused to oil stores of vital importance to the German war machine."

(German accounts of the British counter-attacks, although denying there was military damage, plainly confirmed the scope of the raids. The Germans said at least a score of persons were killed in Germany and eighteen at Amsterdam, acknowledged the port of Hamburg was badly hit; asserted thirteen houses in a Cologne suburb were damaged; said a hospital and a medical institute were damaged at Leipzing and listed among other raided cities Duesseldorf, Magdeburg and Essen, where the big Krupp arms works are situated.)

were packing up in apparent readiness to leave, and then flew in warning over the Rumanian oil centers of Ploesti and Giurgiu where British and French interests once were dominant.

The British called it an "intimidation" raid.

All British To Leave

Within a few hours London instructed the legation to remove immediately all nationals from Rumania.

It seemed likely severence of diplomatic relations between Britain and Rumania was a matter of hours.

(Relations have reached a "critical point," it was announced in London. The British blocked all Rumanian credits in the United Kingdom, as the United States had done, it was learned).

Some members of the legation staff will leave tomorrow, but it was indicated that no final announcement of rupture in Anglo-Rumanian relations would be made until the last Briton has left.

Germans Only Instructors

The Rumanian government, meanwhile, was drawing up a special communique, announcing for the first time—officially—that the German military had arrived "to act only as instructors to the Rumanian army."

Truckloads of baggage of German aviators arrived at one hotel opposite the Royal palace where two floors had been reserved for forty-five German officers, and an entire floor and other quarters were arranged for other high-ranking German officers—indicating German military plans in Rumania are extensive.

The flights over the oil centers underscored a charge published in the German mouthpiece here, the Tageblatt, that Britain had assigned to Turkey the task of destroying Rumania's oil wells by aerial attack, and that the British minister, Sir Reginald, was implicated in the plot.

Fear Pincer Movement

The Turkish press openly expressed the fear Germany was launching a 1,600-mile pincer movement against the Suez Canal to support Italy's drive from the other direction from Libya.

The Turks hoped lack of cooperation from Soviet Russia, however, would stay the German hand.

Elsewhere, uneasiness was evident through southeastern Europe. There were reports of increasing pressure against Yugoslavia and of stepped up Axis shipments of munitions to Bulgaria.

(From Budapest, the Greek army was reported making steady preparations for any development.

(Hungarian students shouting "down with Bucharest" staged Budapest demonstrations which coincided with appeals by both Rumania and Hungary to the Axis to settle disputes over details growing out of Hungary's occupation of northern Transylvania.

Turks Threaten To Attack Nazi Troops

By D. W. HANCOCK

ANKARA, Turkey, Oct. 11 (AP)—Turkey, non-belligerent ally of Britain and stalwart guardian of the Dardanelles, served emphatic notice on Germany tonight that 2,000,000 Turkish bayonets stand athwart any Axis move in this direction against the near east.

The Turks, anxiously watching the entry of German troops into nearby Rumania, specifically warned Germany any thrust across Turkey and Syria would meet with "very strong resistance."

"If it is the Germans' intention to penetrate Egypt in this direction they surely know this road is not easy, but on the contrary is very difficult," the official Turkish radio said in the military section of the evening news broadcast compiled by the general staff of the Turkish army, navy and air force.

Predict Strong Resistance

"This road across Anatolia is guarded by 2,000,000 bayonets. Such a move on Germany's part would create many political complications and meet with very strong resistance."

The radio, making the first official comment on the dispatch of German forces into Rumania, added "it seems the Balkans, and even Soviet Russia, are on the brink of unexpected war. It is best to see what the next two weeks will bring. Let us wait."

It gave three possible explanations of the German advance into the Balkan kingdom:

Three Explanations

"One, to protect Rumania's oil fields from all possible attacks by neighbors or by the British Mediterranean air force. This is not sufficient reason to explain such drastic action.

"Two, to assist in the occupation of Egypt, the Italian army has learned that an advance beyond Sidi Barrani is extremely difficult and maybe Germany has judged it necessary to advance across the Balkans, across Anatolia into Syria and Egypt."

"Three, to assist in the occupation of Egypt by occupying Greece, which would bring Germany to the Mediterranean. However, supposing Greece is occupied, it still would be impossible to get a land force to Egypt because the Axis does not dominate the Mediterranean."

Red Cross Officials To Meet Monday

FREDERICK, Md., Oct. 11 (AP)—Western Maryland Red Cross officials will meet here Monday in one of two regional conferences at which plans for one of the organization's most intensive drives in years will be drafted.

The conference will be followed by another Tuesday at Salisbury, at which chapters from the eastern shore counties of Maryland and Virginia will be represented.

Walter Davidson of Washington, D. C., assistant manager of the eastern area of the Red Cross, will be the principal speaker at both meetings.

Increased activities and obligations of the Red Cross under the national defense program will be discussed, with special emphasis on the proposed training of thousands of persons in first aid.

Robert Willkie End Baltimore Trouble

BALTIMORE, Oct. 11 (AP)—Robert T. Willkie, brother of the Republican presidential candidate, paid a surprise visit to Republican leaders today and apparently re-established harmony within the GOP.

He visited Paul Robertson, chairman of the Republican City Committee, then went with him to talk with W. David Tilghman, Jr., chairman of the Republican State Central Committee.

Robertson last weekend asserted he was "stabbed in the back" when Tilghman canceled a mass meeting appearance of Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., scheduled for Oct. 24. Robertson said he was not informed in advance of the cancellation.

Robertson and Tilghman appeared on cordial terms following Willkie's visit. The latter said he was in Washington "and had half a day at my disposal, so I decided to come over here."

"I have visited West Virginia, Tennessee, Kentucky and other border states," he added, "and everything is looking fine for the Republican party."

"If the intervenors here would display the same interest and zeal in purging the petitioners' case of the taint of fraud by entering the appropriate channels and following through on that undertaking, as they have shown here in the advocacy of the petitioners' cause, they would be rendering, indeed, a notable patriotic service."

Walsh Decides Not To Take An Appeal

BALTIMORE, Oct. 11 (AP)—Attorney General William C. Walsh announced tonight that, after a conference with Chief Judge Carroll T. Bond of the Court of Appeals, "we have decided not to take an appeal" from a court decision today giving Communist candidates the right to appear on Maryland's ballots in next month's election.

The decision was handed down by Judge Ridgely Melvin in Anne Arundel County Circuit Court. Judge Melvin granted a mandamus petition by Albert Blumberg, secretary of the state communist party, enjoining the secretary of state from keeping Communist candidates off the ballot.

Secretary Lacks Power

"It has long been established in Maryland," Walsh said in a statement, "that the duties of the secretary of state are purely ministerial, and, when the petition (Communist petition to certify candidates) was filed, we ruled that it was in proper form."

"At the time this suit was filed, the secretary of state, personally, knew that the Dies Committee had found irregularities and fraud in the securing of the signatures to the petition in Maryland, and before his answer was filed, he knew that the Baltimore city grand jury had indicted for perjury committee in connection with the petition, six of the persons who secured the signatures to the petition.

"In view of these circumstances, the secretary of state felt that it was his duty to present these facts to the court in his answer, and to ask the court to advise him what he should do regarding the petition.

"The court has now instructed him to certify the candidates of the Communist party . . . and it is at least doubtful whether the secretary of state, in his position of neutrality, would have any standing to appeal from this decision.

Taxpayer Could Act

"It might be pointed out that while the court has decided that the secretary of state, being a purely ministerial officer, has no authority to question or investigate the validity of nominating petitions, any opposing candidate or any taxpayer has the right to question such validity, and any taxpayer of the state of Maryland could have questioned the present petition of the Communist party at any time since it was filed with the secretary of state last April.

"Even assuming that an appeal would be proper in this case, there is the further question whether any good purpose would be served by an appeal, in view of the limited time remaining before the candidates must be certified.

"Under the election laws of Maryland, the secretary of state is required to certify the names of all candidates to the various boards of supervisors of elections not less than eighteen days before election day, and as election day this year is on November 5, this means that the secretary of state must certify those nominated not later than October 17, 1940, which is next Thursday.

Little Time for Trial

"Even if the court of appeals would hear and decide the case tomorrow, (and reverse the lower court) the trial in the lower court could not begin before Tuesday, because it would require all day Monday to summon the witnesses, and it is obvious that testimony of so many witnesses could not be taken in the few days remaining before the secretary of state would have to certify the nominations.

"Chief Judge Bond stated that while the court of appeals would be willing to hold a special session to consider the appeal, he did not want to do this when it was clear that lack of time would prevent any decision by the lower court in case of a reversal.

"I might add that no purpose would be served in taking an appeal after the time for certification had passed, because the Court of Appeals has repeatedly held that it will not pass nugatory decrees, and any decree passed involving the secretary of state after he has made the certification, would obviously me ineffective."

About an Amazing Wrist Watch That Told More than the Time—and Prevented a Murder

BY MARY DRAKE

Dr. Carlyle had no accurate means of telling what time of night it was, because the Borneo chieftain, Brazo, had taken as tribute his last remaining article of value—his wrist watch. With the night sounds of the jungle pounding all about him in the rich darkness, the explorer eased his nearly mended broken leg and thought it over dispassionately.

"You're tempting fate by going in among the Borneo natives to make a study of them, Dr. Carlyle!" the consul had advised him soberly at Zamboanga. "They're not all like the native boys you see here on the coast, you know."

"But I've been preparing for quite a while for this particular study, Trent," he hopefully answered. "It took me four long years to convince the Foundation that an accurate, really scientific breaking down of the Bornese culture would be a most valuable adjunct to their cultural collections."

"Four years, eh?" the consul reflected with a wry smile, sipping slowly at his tall lemon drink on the shaded porch.

The consul finished his drink with a little gurgle and set the empty glass upon the bamboo table firmly. He picked up the tight little packet of credentials the scientist had presented to him for inspection—passport, letter from the governor of the island, letter from the head of the Foundation, traveler's cheques. He rifled through them once more, reflectively.

"I don't mean to spoil your party, doctor, but you must be warned that a little solitary expedition like this is not exactly beer and skittles. And I'm in a way responsible for you."

The scientist straightened his broad, unprofessional shoulders with a confident air and smiled. I've been in the bush before. It won't be a new experience. Africa, China, the Maori territory in Australia—I've worked all them all just as I intend to work the interior of Borneo. I really don't anticipate much trouble worse than discomfort, and I'm inured to that."

"I can't stop you, doctor, not with all this official weight against me!" the consul declared ruefully, tapping the packet of credentials. "As a parting word, however, let me assure you that the natives are very tough customers. Good luck!"

The trip inland was not as difficult as even the most pessimistic predictions of the consul had led him to suspect it would be. The days were hot, but the sudden tropic night that fell like a stage curtain brought coolness to the air.

With the eyes of a true scientist he appraised the country as it opened up before him step by step through the teeming pungle lands. His notebook constantly at hand, he stopped incessantly to inspect, evaluate, memorize facts about the flora and fauna and the geologic formations he encountered. He took candid camera shots of the country and the two native carriers he had hired on the coast to transport his equipment.

It was his very thoroughness that brought him to grief. While backing away from a botanic group, his camera with the natural color film grinding away, he had stepped into a deep hole burrowed by some animal. Even then, the snapping of his leg bone had not seemed overly disastrous. It was when the two frightened carriers had fled taking with them more than half his provisions, that the future loomed darkly.

Two days later Brazo had appeared out of the deep green of the jungle, and Dr. Carlyle's hopes revived. The dark chief had stared for long minutes, his eyes roving greedily over the remaining equipment and the prone figure of the scientist, the broken leg neatly splintered. Carlyle had essayed a few words of dialect, and Brazo's impassive face had not changed.

Hours later he hit upon the right key, and Brazo responded. A deal was made, and at a signal from the chief the camp-to-be was suddenly filled with other dark-skinned men. At the expense of endless patience and palaver the mosquito-netted tent was erected, the camp cot set up, and strong hands lifted the doctor up and laid him upon it.

Four camp axes had been the price for that service. Since, little by little the remaining camp equipment had gone piecemeal into the native chieftain's possession for services.

A genteel sort of a racket, Carlyle percieved, as one by one the other natives failed to come to the camp. Brazo was determined to have the rest of the equipment for himself. Hour by hour he was overcoming his fear of the white man's strange and fearful inventions, and it was only a matter of time until he did what he would have done at first—killed and taken at will!

For two days Brazo alone had come to the camp. Even the tent had gone now, and Carlyle was thankful that in a day or two at most he would be able to walk again and escape from the jungle. The wristwatch had been among the last to go. That and the short, deadly automatic he wore strapped beneath his armpit under the cotton shirt. Brazo would come for that tonight, he knew, although the native had no conception of its use.

Dr. Carlyle lay immobile, breathing regularly and gently, his every sense alert for a footstep. Nothing came to his ears but the regular night sounds. A yellow-green blur, like the flight of a large firefly, moved in an upward arc before his eyes. Calmly and with scientific care he leveled his weapon at a point midway between the beginning and the end of the arc—and fired!

That morning he had fastened the expensive wristwatch upon the thick wrist of the chief, Brazo. It was good that Brazo was ignorant of a science that was responsible for the luminous dial! — Distributed by United Features Syndicate.

A Debt Theory Has A Simple Answer

THE NEW DEALERS are not concerned about debt. They will not even discuss it. The dictated Chicago platform evaded the subject entirely. They have washed their hands of it.

There is reason for this evasion. The New Deal spendthrifts cannot extenuate their folly. There is no logical excuse for paying no attention to mounting deficits, continuing a wanton wildfire of spending and letting the national debt go haywire.

Do the New Dealers really believe it will work—or are they deliberately planning for inevitable consequences from which they may reap advantages?

It is hard, indeed, to suppose the latter. Therefore, it must be assumed that it is the former.

But Wendell L. Willkie has the answer to that. It is short and to the point.

The notion that the more deeply you get into debt, the more prosperous you are, and the more power you need, is a simple formula, he said, but there are three things wrong with it:

"It never has worked, it isn't working and and it never will work."

Let any one argue around that if he can.

A Roadside Program Worth Considering

THE RESEARCH DIVISION OF THE MARYLAND LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL, in a report just issued, declares that unrestricted exploitation of the roadsides in the state is threatening the public investment in the state highways, and lists four suggested methods of dealing with the problem.

First, the creation of formal, marginal strips in which commercial enterprise would be prohibited, is recommended; second, the inauguration of limited-access highways to bar abutting property owners except at designated intersections; third, the adoption of stringent regulations for billboards and other advertising matter, and, fourth, comprehensive roadside zoning.

The division holds that no one of these methods would suffice and recommends a program embodying all four.

The four-fold formula represented a rather tough problem, particularly in cases of long established easements. But there could be no difficulty in applying it to all new highways, while some of the suggestions might be carried out on the old ones.

Anyway, the general idea is good and it is to be hoped that something in the way of an improvement over existing conditions will result. The more the beauties of our natural scenery can be seen by our highway travelers the better.

Is Politics Tainting The Defense Program?

MUCH CRITICISM is heard of the delay in the defense program. One of the hindrances is the failure of the president to fill the vacancy on the Labor board caused by the expiration of the term of its chairman, J. Warren Madden. That term expired last August but in all the weeks since no successor has been named and the board is unable to function in a good many cases without a chairman.

"Why," asks the New York Times, "has the president failed to fill this vacancy?" The obvious answer is that the appointment is being deliberately held over until after the election, because Mr. Roosevelt is running for a third term and it might affect his chances.

Thus, as observed by Frank R. Kent in his Baltimore Sun column, there appears no escape from the conclusion "that politics is in the defense program and the non-political pose is a sham." Kent further says that "the political taint with which the defense work is being smeared ought to arouse deep public indignation." It is made all the more reprehensible, he adds, by the pious pretense that the president has no thought of politics and is doing nothing to promote his third term candidacy, while he is, actually, running his campaign from the White House.

A Tax Reform That Is Direly Needed

WENDELL L. WILLKIE would revise and simplify the tax structure. He has presented facts and figures to show that the present red tape is costing businessmen of the country a terrific unnecessary sum. He has shown that big business has prospered more than little business under New Deal regulations, and he would see to it that the little business man gets a break.

That there is need for improving the business regulations is instanced by Willkie in the fact that in 1938, business had to make out nearly 136,000,000 returns of one kind or another for the federal government. "A total of 60,000,000 returns had to be made by industrial, commercial and financial concerns," Willkie said. "That was about twenty reports for each enterprise. And on the average, those returns required answers to about sixty-five questions." Big business can stand that gaff, he said, but little business just can't.

That such costly red tape is unnecessary was given a striking illustration the other day in the office of this newspaper. A business man residing in Canada made one of his periodic calls—a paper salesman. The editor asked him about his income tax requirements, what he had to do about paying the tax in Canada.

"It is simple enough," he said. "All I have to do is to send the government my check. We know from the government that we have a certain percentage of our income to pay. We simply figure it out and mail the check. That is all. The government trusts us. We trust the government. It works splendidly and the government isn't nicked."

Unfortunately, a different idea prevails among our federal bureaucrats. And the idea prevailing is one that should be changed, as Mr. Willkie says.

What the Re-election of Roosevelt Would Prove

ADDITIONAL REASONS as to what the re-election of Franklin D. Roosevelt to a third term would prove on the part of the American people as listed by David Lawrence, editor of the United States News, are given herewith. Roosevelt's re-election, he says, would prove:

"12. That a president may allow his officials to refuse to aid the work of a committee of Congress investigating subversive activities for two years and then calmly denounce such subversive activities without acknowledging his own administration's obstructive hostility to the work of such a congressional committee—and the majority of the American people really don't care.

"13. That a president may ask his attorney general to write a legal opinion permitting the executive to violate the statutes of the United States, tricky language being invented supposedly to justify such an opinion, as, for instance, when the words of the statute forbidding the transfer of America nvessels of war to any belligerent were distorted—and the majority of the American people really don't care.

"14. That a president may be fully forewarned by all the secret data and reports of our army and navy intelligence services concerning the nature of the preparations for war in Europe—beginning more than two years ago and at least a year before the present war did break out—and do nothing substantial to build up our air forces so that we have less than 750 first-line combat planes to defend America—and the majority of the American people really don't care.

"15. That a president may accept the support of corrupt political bosses in pivotal states to get his nomination—and the majority of the American people really don't care.

"16. That a president in times of peril in the world may permit cabinet portfolios of major importance to be occupied for months at a time by absentee officials, tolerating friction and negligence—and the majority of the American people really don't care."

Other things a third term election would prove as listed by Mr. Lawrence will be given in this department tomorrow.

The Browser's Findings

By MARSHALL MASLIN

Dr. Leo L. Stanley, who has been chief surgeon at San Quentin prison for twenty-seven years, has written in collaboration with Evelyn Wells, the most extraordinary book about men in prison that the Browser has ever read—and he has read dozens of them. He calls it "Men at Their Worst" (Appleton-Century) and the title is a misnomer because even after twenty-seven years Dr. Stanley is not sure that men in prison are at their worst.

Marshall Maslin

For example, he will write that gratitude is rarely met with but he has seen more of it from men "inside" than from free men. He knows that he is "the most hated official in San Quentin", but he cried when a fifteen-year-old Mexican lad, a murderer, cut the first birthday cake he had ever had, in prison. Dr. Stanley wiped the tears from his face, then gave the fish-eye to a laggard janitor-prisoner and ordered him not to skimp the corners. He has been the presiding surgeon at the hanging of nearly 150 men (the Browser was there when he checked the heart-beat of one boy), but never raises his eyes above the dying man's chest because he cannot endure the sight of their pain.

Execution by hanging is not nearly as painless as the public generally believes, says the doctor, but he is not dogmatic about capital punishment. He has serious doubts about its effectiveness as a deterrent, but cannot be certain.

The man is basically a scientist, and his first question about any procedure is: "Does it work?" He cannot say whether capital punishment works or does not. He has suffered greatly in prisons even though he writes, "I am not unusual in my sympathy. He knows that some of the worst men on earth are in prisons, but he still does not believe that the most brutal murderer is all bad.

So, at the conclusion of his amazing book about men in prison, he writes: "But I come to no conclusions. It is too big for me. The more I see the less I know." . . And the more the Browser read his book, the more HE knew about men in prison. It is characteristic of the man, however, that he frankly admits his contempt for those free men who beg for tickets of admission to prison executions. He feels that they are not free of that same savagery that brings murderers to the gallows. . . Miss Wells has done a perfect job as collaborator.

An uneven novel, both provoking and provocative, is Gertrude Atherton's latest, "The House of Lee", the tale of three women of three generations of a rich and proud San Francisco family, who lose their money and face the necessity of getting jobs. It is written in Mrs. Atherton's usual crisp and outspoken manner.

That amazing lady, now in her eighties, makes no compromises with public opinion or with any democratic trend. She is speaking for herself when she has one of her characters say:

"Call me a snob if you like. I don't care a hang. I believe in class. Hasn't the human race struggled upward since its beginnings? Are not those that reach the top the flowers of civilization? I rejoice in those who, from the lower rungs of the ladder, have climbed to the top by their own ability and energy . . . . Yes, I love to see people rise; but I not only hate to see them fall—it makes me afraid."

And she is so fond of her aristocrats that she makes the very thought of having the daughter of the family marry a wealthy Stanford graduate seem almost a mesalliance. And she is close to absurdity when she describes a visit to St. Francis Wood as though it were a slumming party (because there are no medium-cost homes in that prosperous district.

Also, because Mrs. Atherton sometimes boasts that she never reads anything but detective stories she has cheapened the last quarter of her book into a mystery with a dead Chinaman in it, abandoning her aristocrats to the solution of their problems in their own way. . . Nevertheless, no ordinary book.

In these days, more than ever, men in search of wisdom, will find it in the pages of Ralph Waldo Emerson—and the Browser is grateful to the Modern Library for reprinting his complete essays and other writings. The Browser thought he was drifting away from Emerson; he was glad to learn when he read this book that the great philosopher still has meaning for Marsh Maslin.

Delay Is Caused By Defense Tours, Gen. Johnson Says

BY HUGH S. JOHNSON

CHICAGO, Oct. 11.—"There will be no protest because the people long ago wearily abandoned principle and surrendered to the what-the-hell philosophy, which holds that any crookedness short of downright criminality is all right if it is clever and produces results." So wrote Westbrook Pegler about what he called the shyteresque cunning and mocking dishonesty of the method by which we sent our destroyers to join the British navy.

Hugh Johnson

It is the most certain and unpleasant truth of our times. Marvelous enough is the audacity of such magnificent frauds as the "third term draft," the forcible feeding of Henry Wallace to the Democrats, the methods of the destroyer deal and the attorney general's opinion approving it. The appointment of Elliott and the laughing sneer with which criticim was put aside, more marvelous still is the reckless, audacious constant shoving of this unwilling country into wholly unnecessary war in the Pacific.

Gone Slappy-Happy

But marvelous past the point of understanding is the whipped and beaten public acceptance of these contemptuous affronts to public morals—without resentment, without even important protest. There can be only one credible explanation, the one Pegler has given. This country has become completely slap-happy from repeated jolts to so many of the high principles it once delighted to honor.

This being the case in so many more important things, it is probably not worth the effort to comment on the president's "tours of inspection of national defense." Yet to omit comment is to accept Peg's "what-the-hell philosophy," and that I am not ready to do.

Escapes Debate

The president's story is that he is too busy in Washington with national defense to make any political tours—much less any political speeches, or to debate the issues of this critical campaign. The president's performance is to cover as much electioneering territory as usual; greeting crowds, issuing statements and covering a good deal of his opponent's political itinerary.

But this is not "political." It is just being "too busy with national defense." Does that fool anybody? What difference does that make? It produces many results. Being the performance of an "official duty of national defense," it can be done at public expense. It is very expensive campaigning, but the government itself pays the bill and it cleverly avoids the Hatch act. It uses national defense for a purely partisan political purpose while seeming not to do so.

Above all, the whole attitude permits the president to escape debate on his record of uninterrupted seven years failure in solving out great domestic problems. He couldn't afford to debate that because his record is indefensible.

Needs Not Supplied

Of course, all that leaves open the only possible justification for his showmanship. What do the president's "tours of inspection" of arsenals, proving grounds, arms-factories, dams and shipyards do to help national defense? He doesn't know anything about manufacture and scarcely more about technical armament. What we need above all is concentration and speed on armament production and we are not getting them fast enough.

What we do not need is the inspection of partisan politics and other attractive distractions on the production lines. The president could not bring one ounce of aid by his visits, but can and does bring plenty of delay and distraction.

A "Mountain of Bunk"

Any veteran production manager will tell you that an inspection visit of a big shot to a greater or less degree disorganizes work for two or three days—one day to "pretty up" the works for the inspection party, one day to put on the show and another day to get back to normal.

Wise industrial managers, especially those who did not "come up on the manufacturing side" know this and leave technical administration and inspection to experts.

Thus, from every angle, this inspection act and political abstraction is just another mountain of magnificent bunk.—Distributed by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

Continuance of New Deal Would Oust The Knudson Advisers, Waltman Says

By FRANKLYN WALTMAN

The latest New Deal argument for the re-election of Third Term Candidate Roosevelt is that a change in administration would greatly delay or hamper our national defense program. In other words, the New Dealers are seeking to implant the idea that, if Mr. Roosevelt is re-elected, the present national defense personnel will be continued.

Franklyn Waltman

Of course there are many persons familiar with what is going on in Washington who believe that there should be some changes in the national defense personnel—that at least there should be a head to the National Defense Advisory Commission in order that it might function.

Passing that over for the moment, what assurance is there that there will not be changes in the present national defense personnel if the third term candidate is re-elected? What assurance is there that William S. Knudsen, Edward R. Stettinius and Donald Douglas will be permitted to use their business knowledge and experience in behalf of national defense if the third term becomes a reality?

Socialist New Dealers to Front

There is positively none. On the contrary, there is reason to believe and also evidence pointing to the fact that if Candidate Roosevelt becomes a third term president, short shift will be made of the Knudsens, Stettiniuses and Douglases. They either will be replaced or put under the domination of some of the New Deal's socialistically-minded inner-circle.

Just as in 1936 the more rabid New Dealers—the lads who wish to make this country over into one of state socialism—are being hidden now behind the curtains. They have been told to keep their mouths closed and keep out of sight. But once election is over, they will again be out in front, proclaiming the mandate they have—if Candidate Roosevelt is re-elected—to make war on business and industry and private enterprise.

In substantiation of that contention, we turn to a recent issue of The New Republic, a left-wing weekly periodical. The New Republic actually has become a propaganda handbook of the New Deal and the Democratic National Committee. It was this publication which so far surrendered its independence as to issue a supplement bitterly and unturthfully attacking Wendell Willkie, which is being circulated as the chief piece of Democratic campaign literature.

Not only is The New Republic a propagandist mouthpiece for the Democratic party but it likewise gets the inside information of what is going on in New Deal circles. Thus its Washington correspondent is in a position to reflect future New Deal policy.

Henderson Mentioned as Chairman

Speaking of the need—after the election, of course—of a chairman for the National Defense Advisory Commission, the Washington correspondent of The New Republic asserts that "from the New Deal point of view, an excellent choice would be Mr. Leon Henderson, hard-working and able S.E.C. commissioner and now member of the N.D.A.C. with supervision over prices."

"The relationship of the New Dealers, as a group, to the N.D.A.C. is difficult to describe briefly, yet it needs mentioning." The New Republic's Washington correspondent continues.

"Except for Mr. Henderson, who, stationed inside the N.D.A.C. is taking a conspicuous part in determining defense policy, their attitude is one of increasing hostility. The Treasury and the N.D.A.C. have disagreed openly on tax schedules; Assistant Attorney-General Thurman Arnold and the N.D.A.C. have clashed on anti-trust prosecution. Other conflicts are clearly in the making.

"The issue raised by these disputes, moreover, is not altogether black and white. It is true enough that the dollar-a-year officials of the N.D.A.C. are big-business men, the majority of whom either do not understand or else have no sympathy for New Deal objectives. Yet the New Dealers themselves supinely permitted Mr. Roosevelt to deliver the defense program over to its present big-business masters * * * As it is, the N.D.A.C. now belongs to big business * * *.

"If a solution is to be found, it probably lies in the exercise of New Deal ingenuity. Possibly the New Dealers will find that they cannot preserve the New Deal's social gains, and at the same time satisfy the N.D.A.C. officials' demands."

Wait Until Campaign Ends

The implications of all this are clear. Just as soon as the election is out of the way the New Deal brain trust will commence to exercise its "ingenuity" and get rid of—or lessen the influence of—the business men now struggling to get the national defense program started. One of the New Deal boys, like Leon Henderson, will be placed in chage—and then we shall get back to New Deal objectives.

Perhaps that is what Mr. Knudsen had in mind several days after this New Republic report when he said:

"There is a school of thought in Washington which feels that the government should go into business on a large scale. The government is in business on a large scale right now—on a scale as big as it can handle; on a larger scale than any other country except perhaps Russia and we don't want any part of the Russian system over here."

None, however, better described the feeling of the New Deal about business men than Thomas G. Corcoran, now in charge of the New York end of Mr. Roosevelt's re-election campaign. He said: "Fighting with a business man is like fighting with a Polack—you can give no quarter."

What Is Meant By "De-Gaussing"

From the New York Herald Tribune

The argot of war, as we have previously remarked, has its fascination; the mare formal terminology invented for new weapons or methods sometimes has its surprises. The "stick" of bombs which a British aviator lays down across Nazi military objectives seems, what ever its technical derivation, to have a vivid appositeness, rather like "tank"—a word so right that it is now forever embedded in the English language, though it was originally adopted as a means of concealing the nature of the unlovely thing to which it referred.

But it is with a real shock that one reads, in an American military periodical, that 116 United States Coast Guard vessels are about to be "de-gaussed. It turns out that this is not a misprint for "deloused," and that the operation of de-gaussing a vessel is less formidable than it sounds; it means merely providing her with the belt of electric cable which renders magnetic mines inoperative.

Yet, this only leads one further to reflect upon the strange fates that await words and men. That old Karl Frederich Gauss, the peaceful German mathematician and physicist, and one of the great gifts of German scientific and philosophical imagination to the world, should find his name perpetuated as a peculiarly fiendish menace, of which merchant ships and men-of-war a century later would be divesting themselves by special equipment, has a certain irony. Or, perhaps, a certain curious symbolism.

It was because of Gauss's fundamental researches into magnetism, that the unit of magnetic force gained his name; now, because of Gauss's fundamental researches into magnetism that the unit of magnetic force gained his name; now, because of his countrymen's application of the great fund of Westerfn scientific knowledge to the barbarous business of destruction ships must de-magnitize or degauss themselves. There, in a phrase is a compression of the Germans' strange role in Western civilization—their enormous creative gift to all that is greatest in it, their enormous capacity to pervert that gift to baseness.

English Courage Runs through All Of the People

By EDWIN C. HILL

England and her Englishmen a not asleep these days as the gre guns roar from coast to coast a the death angel rides the clouds. Over there in the tight little isle, which has not felt the indignity of an invader's foot since William of Norway, they are aware that the menace of invasion is merely postponed—for a few months, or a year, it may be.

Edwin C. Hill

Deep in their hearts is the mem ory of the Spanish Armada and th year 1588, when Philip of Spa sent his Armada against her gre sea captains—Drake and Hawkin Benbow and Blake. In her ho of peril she renews her courage wit the memory of her great seahaw of the past who saved her from th strongest military autocracy of tha time, the power of Spain.

Her spirit in this hour as sh gazes back over a glorious pas is heard like the roll of drums i that bit of poetry called "Drake Drums"—"Drake, he's in his ham mock an' a thousand miles awa (Capten, art tha sleepin' there be low?), slung atween the round sho in Nombre Dois Bay, an' dreamin arl the time o' Plymouth Hoe."

Runs in All

The courage with which Englan faces her most formidable enem since Philip of Spain, runs throug all her people, for courage, as Mr Channing Pollock writes in the Ne York Herald Tribune, is and mus be a commonplace thing in suc times as these. "We recollect," say Mr. Pollock, "how Colonel Joh Jacob Astor put his wife into lifeboat on the Titanic, and, step ping to make room for other wo men, lit his cigarette and said 'Good-by dear; I'll join you later.' Mr. Pollock also recalled the bras band that went on playing whil the vessel was sinking. Then h told of the English doctor who wa operating for mastoid when plane bombed the hospital. Although there was an air-raid shelter outside, th doctor stayed to finish the opera tion! The conclusion was that a people that prefers dishonor to death will have reason to weep.

Happier Side

Turning for a moment to the happier side of life, (and of Eng land) lovers of light opera hail with delight the revival of "The Gondaliers," that gay and lilting operetta heard in New York, followed by "The Mikado," and later by most of the Gilbert and Sullivan collaborations.

In 1890 their "Gondaliers" was a smash hit, but such a trivial matter as the cost of a carpet for that production made them enemies. As time passed each secured collaborators, but the old magic was gone.

Cold Heroes

In a London theatre in 1898, these aging men of distingulshed appearance answered the clamor of the audience and stepped upon the stage. They were the heroes of the occasion but they did not bow, or speak or shake hands, they eyed each other coldly and walked from the stage, right and left.

So passed Gilbert and Sullivan, in cutaways and Dundrearies, forever from the public view, but their quarrel jarred not a note of their tuneful librettos or lyrics which have come rippling on down through the years. Coldly and formally they foreswore all dealings with each other but the world would not have it so. They are forever linked in an enchantment which each new generation finds perennially young.—Copyright, 1940, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Thousand of Them Deserved for Supporting Third-Termer, Reader Declares

Editor The Cumberland News:

Webster's definition for ingratitude is as follows: Untruthfulness; the return of evil for good.

Smiling James A. Farley, deserves most of the credit for placing Franklin D. Roosevelt in the White House for two terms and when Mr. Farley had presidential aspiration, Roosevelt gives him a swift kick in the pants. This is Roosevelt's idea of gratitude, by his actions and attitude, as much as to say, "I am the only man in the United States, who can handle the affairs of America—and I demand a third term." No doubt in the near future he will give one of his soft-soap fireside chats and tell us he was drafted by the American voters.

Anyone who followed the proceedings of the Chicago convention, knows Mr. Roosevelt drafted himself. Mr. Farley made a good postmaster general and was well liked by both Democrats and Republicans. Now you, as friends of Mr. Farley, are you going to support a man who owes his election for two terms to Mr. Farley, who is now seeking a third term and in return for Mr. Farley's efforts and success and who gives Smiling Jim a swift kick in the pants?

If you, as friends of Mr. Farley, vote for this man Roosevelt, who shows by his action and political greed and his ingratitude to Mr. Farley, you should all have—each of you who support this third term monopolist—"one thousands kicks in the pants."

Quotable Quotes

By Raymond Moley, Former Assistant Secretary of State

What this country needs is a good, honest, industrious, competent hired man—a hired man who knows he is a hired man, a hired man who, after a few years, is not likely to think he owns the farm. Men can live without leaders, but they cannot live without principles. Men can replace men. But men cannot replace principles.

A Debt Theory Has A Simple Answer

THE NEW DEALERS are not concerned about debt. They will not even discuss it. The dictated Chicago platform evaded the subject entirely. They have washed their hands of it.

There is reason for this evasion. The New Deal spendthrifts cannot extenuate their folly. There is no logical excuse for paying no attention to mounting deficits, continuing a wanton wildfire of spending and letting the national debt go haywire.

Do the New Dealers really believe it will work—or are they deliberately planning for inevitable consequences from which they may reap advantages?

It is hard, indeed, to suppose the latter. Therefore, it must be assumed that it is the former.

But Wendell L. Willkie has the answer to that. It is short and to the point.

The notion that the more deeply you get into debt, the more prosperous you are, and the more power you need, is a simple formula, he said, but there are three things wrong with it.

"It never has worked. It isn't working and and it never will work."

Let any one argue around that if he can.

A Roadside Program Worth Considering

THE RESEARCH DIVISION OF THE MARYLAND LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL, in a report just issued, declares that unrestricted exploitation of the roadsides in the state is threatening the public investment in the state highways, and lists four suggested methods of dealing with the problem.

First, the creation of formal, marginal strips in which commercial enterprise would be prohibited, is recommended; second, the inauguration of limited-access highways to bar abutting property owners except at designated intersections; third, the adoption of stringent regulations for billboards and other advertising matter, and, fourth, comprehensive roadside zoning.

The division holds that no one of these methods would suffice and recommends a program embodying all four.

The four-fold formula represented a rather tough problem, particularly in cases of long established easements. But there could be no difficulty in applying it to all new highways, while some of the suggestions might be carried out on the old ones.

Anyway, the general idea is good and it is to be hoped that something in the way of an improvement over existing conditions will result. The more the beauties of our natural scenery can be seen by our highway travelers the better.

Is Politics Tainting The Defense Program?

MUCH CRITICISM is heard of the delay in the defense program. One of the hindrances is the failure of the president to fill the vacancy on the Labor board caused by the expiration of the term of its chairman, J. Warren Madden. That term expired last August but in all the weeks since no successor has been named and the board is unable to function in a good many cases without a chairman.

"Why," asks the New York Times, "has the president failed to fill this vacancy?" The obvious answer is that the appointment is being deliberately held over until after the election, because Mr. Roosevelt is running for a third term and it might affect his chances.

Thus, as observed by Frank R. Kent in his Baltimore Sun column, there appears no escape from the conclusion "that politics is in the defense program and the non-political pose is a sham." Kent further says that "the political taint with which the defense work is being smeared ought to arouse deep public indignation." It is made all the more reprehensible, he adds, by the pious pretense that the president has no thought of politics and is doing nothing to promote his third term candidacy, while he is, actually, running his campaign from the White House.

A Tax Reform That Is Direly Needed

WENDELL L. WILLKIE would revise and simplify the tax structure. He has presented facts and figures to show that the present red tape is costing businessmen of the country a terrific unnecessary sum. He has shown that big business has prospered more than little business under New Deal regulations, and he would see to it that the little business man gets a break.

That there is need for improving the business regulations is instanced by Willkie in the fact that in 1938, business had to make out nearly 136,000,000 returns of one kind or another for the federal government. "A total of 60,000,000 returns had to be made by industrial, commercial and financial concerns," Willkie said. "That was about twenty reports for each enterprise. And on the average, those returns required answers to about sixty-five questions." Big business can stand that gaff, he said, but little business just can't.

That such costly red tape is unnecessary was given a striking illustration the other day in the office of this newspaper. A business man residing in Canada made one of his periodic calls—a paper salesman. The editor asked him about his income tax requirements, what he had to do about paying the tax in Canada.

"It is simple enough," he said. "All I have to do is to send the government my check. We know from the government that we have a certain percentage of our income to pay. We simply figure it out and mail the check. That is all. The government trusts us. We trust the government. It works splendidly and the government isn't nicked."

Unfortunately, a different idea prevails among our federal bureaucrats. And the idea prevailing is one that should be changed, as Mr. Willkie says.

What the Re-election of Roosevelt Would Prove

ADDITIONAL REASONS as to what the re-election of Franklin D. Roosevelt to a third term would prove on the part of the American people as listed by David Lawrence, editor of the United States News, are given herewith. Roosevelt's re-election, he says, would prove:

"12. That a president may allow his officials to refuse to aid the work of a committee of Congress investigating subversive activities for two years and then calmly denounce such subversive activities without acknowledging his own administration's obstructive hostility to the work of such a congressional committee—and the majority of the American people really don't care.

"13. That a president may ask his attorney general to write a legal opinion permitting the executive to violate the statutes of the United States, tricky language being invented supposedly to justify such an opinion, as, for instance, when the words of the statute forbidding the transfer of America nvessels of war to any belligerent were distorted—and the majority of the American people really don't care.

"14. That a president may be fully forewarned by all the secret data and reports of our army and navy intelligence services concerning the nature of the preparations for war in Europe—beginning more than two years ago and at least a year before the present war did break out—and do nothing substantial to build up our air forces so that we have less than 750 first-line combat planes to defend America—and the majority of the American people really don't care.

"15. That a president may accept the support of corrupt political bosses in pivotal states to get his nomination—and the majority of the American people really don't care.

"16. That a president in times of peril in the world may permit cabinet portfolios of major importance to be occupied for months at a time by absentee officials, tolerating friction and negligence—and the majority of the American people really don't care."

Other things a third term election would prove as listed by Mr. Lawrence will be given in this department tomorrow.

The Browser's Findings

Marshall Maslin

Dr. Leo L. Stanley, who has been chief surgeon at San Quentin prison for twenty-seven years, has written in collaboration with Evelyn Wells, the most extraordinary book about men in prison that the Browser has ever read—and he has read dozens of them. He calls it "Men at Their Worst" (Appleton-Century) and the title is a misnomer because even after twenty-seven years Dr. Stanley is not sure that men in prison are at their worst.

For example, he will write that gratitude is rarely met with but he has seen more of it from men "inside" than from free men. He knows that he is "the most hated official in San Quentin", but he cried when a fifteen-year-old Mexican lad, a murderer, cut the first birthday cake he had ever had, in prison. Dr. Stanley wiped the tears from his face, then gave the fish-eye to a laggard janitor-prisoner and ordered him not to skimp the corners. He has been the presiding surgeon at the hanging of nearly 150 men (the Browser was there when he checked the heartbeat of one boy), but never raises his eyes above the dying man's chest because he cannot endure the sight of their pain.

Execution by hanging is not nearly as painless as the public generally believes, says the doctor, but he is not dogmatic about capital punishment. He has serious doubts about its effectiveness as a deterrent, but cannot be certain.

The man is basically a scientist, and his first question about any procedure is: "Does it work?" He cannot say whether capital punishment works or does not. He has suffered greatly in prisons even though he writes, "I am not unusual in my sympathy." He knows that some of the worst men on earth are in prisons, but he still does not believe that the most brutal murderer is all bad.

So, at the conclusion of his amazing book about men in prison, he writes: "But I come to no conclusions. It is too big for me. The more I see the less I know." . . And the more the Browser read his book, the more HE knew about men in prison. It is characteristic of the man, however, that he frankly admits his contempt for those free men who beg for tickets of admission to prison executions. He feels that they are not free of that same savagery that brings murderers to the gallows. . . Miss Wells has done a perfect job as collaborator.

An uneven novel, both provoking and provocative, is Gertrude Atherton's latest, "The House of Lee", the tale of three women of three generations of a rich and proud San Francisco family, who lose their money and face the necessity of getting jobs. It is written in Mrs. Atherton's usual crisp and outspoken manner.

That amazing lady, now in her eighties, makes no compromises with public opinion or with any democratic trend. She is speaking for herself when she has one of her characters say:

"Call me a snob if you like. I don't care a hang. I believe in class. Hasn't the human race struggled upward since its beginnings? Are not those that reach the top the flowers of civilization? I rejoice in those who, from the lower rungs of the ladder, have climbed to the top by their own ability and energy . . . Yes, I love to see people rise; but I not only hate to see them fall—it makes me afraid."

And she is so fond of her aristocrats that she makes the very thought of having the daughter of the family marry a wealthy Stanford graduate seem almost a mesalliance. And she is close to absurdity when she describes a visit to St. Francis Wood as though it were a slumming party (because there are no medium-cost homes in that prosperous district.

Also, because Mrs. Atherton sometimes boasts that she never reads anything but detective stories she has cheapened the last quarter of her book into a mystery with a dead Chinaman in it, abandoning her aristocrats to the solution of their problems in their own way. Nevertheless, no ordinary book.

In these days, more than ever, men in search of wisdom, will find it in the pages of Ralph Waldo Emerson—and the Browser is grateful to the Modern Library for reprinting his complete essays and other writings. The Browser thought he was drifting away from Emerson; he was glad to learn when he read this book that the great philosopher still has meaning for Marsh Maslin.

Of course there are many persons familiar with what is going on in Washington who believe that there should be some changes in the national defense personnel—that at least there should be a head to the National Defense Advisory Commission in order that it might function.

Passing that over for the moment, what assurance is there that there will not be changes in the present national defense personnel if the third term candidate is re-elected? What assurance is there that William S. Knudsen, Edward R. Stettinius and Donald Douglas will be permitted to use their business knowledge and experience in behalf of national defense if the third term becomes a reality?

Socialist New Dealers to Front

There is positively none. On the contrary, there is reason to believe and also evidence pointing to the fact that if Candidate Roosevelt becomes a third term president, short shift will be made of the Knudsens, Stettiniuses and Douglases. They either will be replaced or put under the domination of some of the New Deal's socialistically-minded inner-circle.

Just as in 1936 the more rabid New Dealers—the lads who wish to make this country over into one of state socialism—are being hidden now behind the curtains. They have been told to keep their mouths closed and keep out of sight. But once election is over, they will again be out in front, proclaiming the mandate they have—if Candidate Roosevelt is re-elected—to make war on business and industry and private enterprise.

In substantiation of that contention, we turn to a recent issue of The New Republic, a left-wing weekly periodical. The New Republic actually has become a propaganda handbook of the New Deal and the Democratic National Committee. It was this publication which so far surrendered its independence as to issue a supplement bitterly and unturthfully attacking Wendell Willkie, which is being circulated as the chief piece of Democratic campaign literature.

Not only is The New Republic a propagandist mouthpiece for the Democratic party but it likewise gets the inside information of what is going on in New Deal circles. Thus its Washington correspondent is in a position to reflect future New Deal policy.

Henderson Mentioned as Chairman

Speaking of the need—after the election, of course—of a chairman for the National Defense Advisory Commission, the Washington correspondent of The New Republic asserts that "from the New Deal point of view, an excellent choice would be Mr. Leon Henderson, hard-working and able S.E.C. commissioner and now member of the N.D.A.C. with supervision over prices."

"The relationship of the New Dealers, as a group, to the N.D.A.C. is difficult to describe briefly, yet it needs mentioning." The New Republic's Washington correspondent continues.

"Except for Mr. Henderson, who, stationed inside the N.D.A.C. is taking a conspicuous part in determining defense policy, their attitude is one of increasing hostility. The Treasury and the N.D.A.C. have disagreed openly on tax schedules; Assistant Attorney-General Thurman Arnold and the N.D.A.C. have clashed on anti-trust prosecution. Other conflicts are clearly in the making.

"The issue raised by these disputes, moreover, is not altogether black and white. It is true enough that the dollar-a-year officials of the N.D.A.C. are big-business men, the majority of whom either do not understand or else have no sympathy for New Deal objectives. Yet the New Dealers themselves supinely permitted Mr. Roosevelt to deliver the defense program over to its present big-business masters * * * As it is, the N.D.A.C. now belongs to big business * * *.

"If a solution is to be found, it probably lies in the exercise of New Deal ingenuity. Possibly the New Dealers will find that they cannot preserve the New Deal's social gains, and at the same time satisfy the N.D.A.C. officials' demands."

Wait Until Campaign Ends

The implications of all this are clear. Just as soon as the election is out of the way the New Deal brain trust will commence to exercise its "ingenuity" and get rid of—or lessen the influence of—the business men now struggling to get the national defense program started. One of the New Deal boys, like Leon Henderson, will be placed in chage—and then we shall get back to New Deal objectives.

Perhaps that is what Mr. Knudsen had in mind several days after this New Republic report when he said:

"There is a school of thought in Washington which feels that the government should go into business on a large scale. The government is in business on a large scale right now—on a scale as big as it can handle; on a larger scale than any other country except perhaps Russia and we don't want any part of the Russian system over here."

None, however, better described the feeling of the New Deal about business men than Thomas G. Corcoran, now in charge of the New York end of Mr. Roosevelt's re-election campaign. He said: "Fighting with a business man is like fighting with a Polack—you can give no quarter."

What Is Meant By "De-Gaussing"

From the New York Herald Tribune

The argot of war, as we have previously remarked, has its fascination; the mare formal terminology invented for new weapons or methods sometimes has its surprises. The "stick" of bombs which a British aviator lays down across Nazi military objectives seems, what ever its technical derivation, to have a vivid appositeness, rather like "tank"—a word so right that it is now forever embedded in the English language, though it was originally adopted as a means of concealing the nature of the unlovely thing to which it referred.

But it is with a real shock that one reads, in an American military periodical, that 116 United States Coast Guard vessels are about to be "de-gaussed. It turns out that this is not a misprint for "deloused," and that the operation of de-gaussing a vessel is less formidable than it sounds; it means merely providing her with the belt of electric cable which renders magnetic mines inoperative.

Yet, this only leads one further to reflect upon the strange fates that await words and men. That old Karl Frederich Gauss, the peaceful German mathematician and physicist, and one of the great gifts of German scientific and philosophical imagination to the world, should find his name perpetuated as a peculiarly fiendish menace, of which merchant ships and men-of-war a century later would be divesting themselves by special equipment, has a certain irony. Or, perhaps, a certain curious symbolism.

It was because of Gauss's fundamental researches into magnetism, that the unit of magnetic force gained his name; now, because of Gauss's fundamental researches into magnetism that the unit of magnetic force gained his name; now, because of his countrymen's application of the great fund of Westerfn scientific knowledge to the barbarous business of destruction ships must de-magnitize or degauss themselves. There, in a phrase is a compression of the Germans' strange role in Western civilization—their enormous creative gift to all that is greatest in it, their enormous capacity to pervert that gift to baseness.

English Courage Runs through All Of the People

Edwin C. Hill

England and her Englishmen are not asleep these days as the great guns roar from coast to coast and the death angel rides the clouds. Over there in the tight little isle, which has not felt the indignity of an invader's foot since William of Norway, they are aware that the menace of invasion is merely postponed—for a few months, or a year, it may be.

Deep in their hearts is the memory of the Spanish Armada and the year 1588, when Philip of Spain sent his Armada against her great sea captains—Drake and Hawkins, Benbow and Blake. In her hour of peril she renews her courage with the memory of her great seahawks of the past who saved her from the strongest military autocracy of that time, the power of Spain.

Her spirit in this hour as she gazes back over a glorious past, is heard like the roll of drums in that bit of poetry called "Drake's Drums"—"Drake, he's in his hammock an' a thousand miles away, (Capten, art tha sleepin' there below?), slung atween the round shot in Nombre Dois Bay, an' dreamin' arl the time o' Plymouth Hoe."

Runs in All

The courage with which England faces her most formidable enemy since Philip of Spain, runs through all her people, for courage, as Mr. Channing Pollock writes in the New York Herald Tribune, is and must be a commonplace thing in such times as these. "We recollect," says Mr. Pollock, "how Colonel John Jacob Astor put his wife into a lifeboat on the Titanic, and, stepping to make room for other women, lit his cigarette and said, 'Good-by dear; I'll join you later.'" Mr. Pollock also recalled the brass band that went on playing while the vessel was sinking. Then he told of the English doctor who was operating for mastoid when planes bombed the hospital. Although there was an air-raid shelter outside, the doctor stayed to finish the operation! The conclusion was that a people that prefers dishonor to death will have reason to weep.

Happier Side

Turning for a moment to the happier side of life, (and of England) lovers of light opera hail with delight the revival of "The Gondaliers," that gay and lilting operetta heard in New York, followed by "The Mikado," and later by most of the Gilbert and Sullivan collaborations.

In 1890 their "Gondaliers" was a smash hit, but such a trivial matter as the cost of a carpet for that production made them enemies. As time passed each secured collaborators, but the old magic was gone.

In a London theatre in 1898, these aging men of distinguished appearance answered the clamor of the audience and stepped upon the stage. They were the heroes of the occasion but they did not bow, or speak or shake hands, they eyed each other coldly and walked from the stage, right and left.

So passed Gilbert and Sullivan, in cutaways and Dundrearies, forever from the public view, but their quarrel jarred not a note of their tuneful librettos or lyrics which have come rippling on down through the years. Coldly and formally they foresware all dealings with each other but the world would not have it so. They are forever linked in an enchantment which each new generation finds perennially young.—Copyright, 1940, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Kicks in the Pants

Editor The Cumberland News:

Webster's definition for ingratitude is as follows: Untruthfulness; the return of evil for good.

Smiling James A. Farley, deserves most of the credit for placing Franklin D. Roosevelt in the White House for two terms and when Mr. Farley had presidential aspiration, Roosevelt gives him a swift kick in the pants. This is Roosevelt's idea of gratitude, by his actions and attitude, as much as to say, "I am the only man in the United States, who can handle the affairs of America—and I demand a third term." No doubt in the near future he will give one of his soft-soap fireside chats and tell us he was drafted by the American voters.

Anyone who followed the proceedings of the Chicago convention, knows Mr. Roosevelt drafted himself. Mr. Farley made a good postmaster general and was well liked by both Democrats and Republicans. Now you, as friends of Mr. Farley, are you going to support a man who owes his election for two terms to Mr. Farley, who is now seeking a third term and in return for Mr. Farley's efforts and success and who gives Smiling Jim a swift kick in the pants?

If you, as friends of Mr. Farley, vote for this man Roosevelt, who shows by his action and political greed and his ingratitude to Mr. Farley, you should all have—each of you who support this third term monopolist—"one thousands kicks in the pants."

Quotable Quotes

By Raymond Moley, Former Assistant Secretary of State

What this country needs is a good, honest, industrious, competent hired man—a hired man who knows he is a hired man, a hired man who, after a few years, is not likely to think he owns the farm. Men can live without leaders, but they cannot live without principles. Men can replace men. But men cannot replace principles.

Couple Objects To Beer Parlor Near Their Home

Greenland Beach Case Is Taken to Court of Appeals

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 11 (AP)—The right of William C. Wengert and Mrs. Wengert to use their property at Greenland Beach in Anne Arundel county for a tavern and beer garden was challenged in the Court of Appeals.

Counsel for Otto Schmidt and his wife, Marie, sought to have the appelate court reverse the Anne Arundel County Circuit Court, which dismissed their suit to enjoin the Wengerts from using their property for a tavern.

The Schlichts live on property contiguous to that of the Wengerts and claimed through their counsel that deeds to nearby land prohibited the use of the property for a tavern or saloon.

Lots Restricted

Sophie K. Nordenholz and Louis J. Jira, attorneys for the Schliechts, said their clients built an $8,000 home on the property in 1934. The lawyers contended the developer of Greenland Beach sold lots subject to the restrictions.

"The Appellees (the Wengerts) keep their place open both winter and summer," the appellants' brief asserted. "During the summer the conditions are worse. It is then that the beer tavern is open.

"The appellants are unable to sleep between the hours of 11 p. m. and 4 or 5 p. m. because of the noises from the appellees' place. The people come in to the appellee's place, sit at the tables, get drunk, carry on, sing, old fellows come in, carry on with young girls.

"The appellants have tried to keep out the noises and prevent glamorous lights from shining into their home by pulling down the windows and blinds. But it is impossible to live in the house in the summer time with the windows closed . . ."

In their arguments for the Wengerts, Attorneys Isidor Glodstrom and Alfred F. Walker declared:

"The respondents, admitting the use of their property as alleged, deny that such use is in contradiction to any restrictions or any rights which the complainants allege to have as a result of the restrictive covenants . . ."

Contractors on U. S. Work Must Pay Gas Taxes

Walsh Rules on National Defense Projects in State

BALTIMORE, Oct. 11 (AP)—Contractors on cost-plus national defense projects must pay state gasoline taxes, Attorney General William C. Walsh held here, denying a contention such contractors were—in respect to gas taxes—tax-free agents of the federal government.

An opinion by Walsh and Assistant Attorney General Hugh Mead advised State Comptroller J. Millard Tawes that the levies in this instance placed "no direct burden upon the general government within the meaning of the constitution.

"It is our understanding," the opinion said, "that the United States government pays such contractors the net cost of all material purchased, plus the cost of services and labor, plus some fixed fee.

"The cost allowed the contractor for equipment, materials, etc., includes usual expenses to the procurement and use of such material. The argument is made that the imposition of a gasoline tax upon the contractor is, in effect, a tax upon the United States in that the cost to the United States is increased and, to that extent, the state is placing an unconstitutional burden upon the federal government."

"Certainly, on the facts presented to us, a private contractor cannot be classified as an agency of the United States," the ruling noted. It then quoted an opinion by Chief Justice Hughes that "taxes may validly be laid not only on the (government) contractor's machinery but on the fuel used to operate it."

Devil's Island French Dying of Starvation

ST. THOMAS, VIRGIN ISLANDS, Oct. 11 (AP)—Four Devil's Island fugitives, reaching here today after a flight of more than two months, said French prisoners in the island penal colony were dying daily and that their bodies were being thrown into the sea.

Food is scarce and many of the men are half dead, they said. Guards have been redoubled to maintain order.

The fugitives, who had served their sentences but were forced to remain as "liberees" in Cayenne, said most of the population of French Guiana supported the "Free French" cause of General Charles De Gaulle, but that the colony's administration was pro-Vichy.

Only Antimony Mine In Full Operation

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP) — The nation's only antimony mine, on Stampede creek in the Kantishna district, has been running full blast this summer.

Several hundred tons of high-grade and concentrates have been piled up, waiting winter shipment by road to Lignite, on the Alaska Railroad. Communication with the mine at other seasons is by airplane.

The mine handles between 35 and 40 tons of ore daily. A force of 16 workmen has been steadily employed. Antimony is a crystalline element used in chemistry and medicine.

107,000 Soviet Women Work on Railroads

MOSCOW, (AP) — Ony two years after Soviet women took the throttles of Russian locomotives, there are now 107,000 women workers on this country's railroads.

Zinaida Troitzkaya, now director of a state railroad, was the first woman to drive a train here, bringing it in from the Moscow suburbs in 1938. Since then, other women have become engineers, shop foremen, car inspectors, conductors and station agents.

The Curious Age

ROANOKE, Va., (AP) — Asks a 14-year-old Roanoke girl: "When is an adult?" She has to pay adult movie admission prices, because she's older than 13, but is barred from attending adult pictures until she's 16.

Big Premium List For Calvert Fair

PRINCE FREDERICK, Md., Oct. 11 (AP)—The largest premium list ever offered here has been posted for the Calvert county fair to be held October 15-17, and sponsors said today the addition of new classes would result in one of the largest livestock exhibitis ever shown here.

County Agent John B. Morsell and his staff have preparations for the fair well under way, and the first exhibits will be put in place within a few days.

More than $1,100 in prizes will be distributed, a large share of them going to winners in exhibits reserved for youths.

German Angry over Loss of License

BOSTON, Oct. 11 (AP)—The driving license of Herbert Scholz, German consul in Boston, was suspended here because he failed to answer a "warning" for a parking violation—and it touched off several verbal barrages.

An attache of the consulate said it might lead to "complications."

Motor Vehicle Registrar Frank A. Goodwin replied that the "only complications which might arise would be if Scholz drives his car in Massachusetts."

Once a Farm Girl, Always a Farm Girl

SPARTANSBURG, S. C. (AP) — When an airplane was forced down in a pasture, Miss Beulah Robeson stepped out resplendent in a bright red hat and matching accessories. A moment later she was the center of interest for an indignant bull, and sprinted to safety.

"Honey," drawled a woman spectator, "yo' must be from the country. Nobody but a country girl could run across a pasture and climb through a barbed wire fence that-away."

Tropical South Carolina

WALHALLA, S. C., (AP) — Clerk of Court Glenn Shirley, whose hobby is keeping all kinds of records, says bamboo in the courthouse park grew 19 inches, to a height of 130 inches, in one day. It grows faster when it rains," he adds. Bamboo has been known to grow an inch an hour in Ceylon.

The Golden Text

Jesus, 12 years old, on His way to Jerusalem.

"And Jesus advanced in wisdom and stature, and in favor with God and man.—Luke 2:52.

The Boyhood of Jesus

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON 10-12

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for October 13 is Luke 2, the Golden Text being Luke 2:52, "And Jesus advanced in wisdom and stature, and in favor with God and man.")

WE WILL have part of this chapter of Luke again at the Christmas season, so we will not dwell long on the account of Christ's birth as told in this second chapter of Luke. We will talk of the various people who entered into His life at this time.

It is thought Jesus was born in the winter of 4 to 5 B. C. His parents had gone from their home in Nazareth to Bethlehem to enroll, according to a decree. It was also prophesied that the Messiah would be born in Bethlehem, so that His birth there fulfilled this prophecy.

The inn at Bethlehem was not an hotel as we know it, but a khan or caravanserie. It was an enclosed place surrounded by open recesses with paved floors raised a little above the ground, where travelers rested or slept. Because many people were on their way to be registered, the place was crowded and Joseph and Mary had either to be content with a corner of the enclosed court or with a stable. It is also probable that the stable where Jesus was born was a limestone grotto or cave.

After eight days the Babe was named Jesus, as the angel had told Mary it should be, and after the days had passed that were set aside by the Hebrew law for Mary's purification after His birth, the Babe was taken to the temple to be "presented to the Lord," and to have offered a sacrifice, "a pair of turtledoves or two young pigeons."

Outside the temple was a devout and just man whose name was Simeon. He was old and waiting for death. It was revealed to him by the Holy Ghost that he should not die until he had seen the Messiah. When Jesus was being brought out of the temple, Simeon recognized Him as such and he took Him in his arms, blessed God, and said:

"Lord, now lettest Thou Thy servant depart in peace, according to Thy word: for mine eyes have seen Thy salvation." He blessed Joseph and Mary, who were amazed at his actions, and said to Mary: "Behold this child is set for the fall and rising again of many in Israel; and for a sign which shall be spoken against (yea, a sword shall pierce through thy own soul also), that the thoughts of many hearts may be revealed."

Prophetess Recognizes Messiah

There also was an old widow woman named Anna, a prophetess, who spent a great deal of time in the temple. She, too, recognized the Babe as the Lord, and gave thanks to God for Him, and then went out and "spoke of Him to all them that looked for redemption in Israel."

After this Joseph and Mary went to their home in Nazareth, taking the Child with them, and after this we are told that He "waxed strong in spirit, filled with wisdom: and the grace of God was upon Him."

Every year Mary and Joseph went up to Jerusalem for the feast of the passover, and when Jesus was 12 years old, He was taken with them. After the time of the feast the parents started back home, supposing Jesus was with some part of their company. When they had gone a day's journey, however, they missed Him and asked if anyone had seen Him and no one had.

Worried, they started back to Jerusalem, and at last found Him in the temple with the rabbis, talking to them and asking them questions. All those who heard Him were astonished at the questions He asked and the things He said.

Mary and Joseph went to Him and Mary said:

"Son, why hast Thou thus dealt with us? behold, Thy father and I sought Thee sorrowing."

And Jesus was surprised in His turn and said to them: "How is it that ye sought me? knew ye not that I must be about My Father's business?"

They did not understand what He meant, but He obediently went with them and they all returned home. Possibly His father forgot what Jesus had said, but, like all loving mothers, Mary kept the sayings of her child in her heart.

"And Jesus increased in wisdom and stature, and in favor with God and man."

Simeon's prophecy, that Jesus "was set for the fall and rise of many in Israel," meant that Jesus would be a stumbling block for some; but for others He would be the cause of "renewed life." And surely his words to Mary came true, for she was to suffer sharp pains indeed when she heard her Son reviled and saw Him suffer the agonies of the cross.

The Boyhood of Jesus — ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON — By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Luke 2.

The inn at Bethlehem was not an hotel, but a khan, or enclosed courtyard with recesses for resting or sleeping. It was crowded when Joseph and Mary came to Bethlehem, so they took refuge in a stable, where Jesus was born.

The Baby was taken, after some days, to the temple at Jerusalem to be "presented to the Lord," and here Simeon, a just and devout man, upon whom was the Holy Ghost, took Him in his arms and blessed God.

There was also at the temple a very old woman named Anna, a widow and a prophetess, exceedingly devout, who likewise recognized the Babe as the Lord, and gave thanks to God, and then told everyone about Him.

After Joseph and Mary had performed all things according to the law, they returned to Nazareth, and "the child waxed strong in spirit, filled with wisdom," with the grace of God upon Him. (GOLDEN TEXT—Luke 2:52.)

The Boyhood of Jesus

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for October 13 is Luke 2, the Golden Text being Luke 2:52, "And Jesus advanced in wisdom and stature, and in favor with God and man.")

WE WILL have part of this chapter of Luke again at the Christmas season, so we will not dwell long on the account of Christ's birth as told in this second chapter of Luke. We will talk of the various people who entered into His life at this time.

It is thought Jesus was born in the winter of 4 to 5 B. C. His parents had gone from their home in Nazareth to Bethlehem to enroll, according to a decree. It was also prophesied that the Messiah would be born in Bethlehem, so that His birth there fulfilled this prophecy.

The inn at Bethlehem was not an hotel as we know it, but a khan or caravanserie. It was an enclosed place surrounded by open recesses with paved floors raised a little above the ground, where travelers rested or slept. Because many people were on their way to be registered, the place was crowded and Joseph and Mary had either to be content with a corner of the enclosed court or with a stable. It is also probable that the stable where Jesus was born was a limestone grotto or cave.

After eight days the Babe was named Jesus, as the angel had told Mary it should be, and after the days had passed that were set aside by the Hebrew law for Mary's purification after His birth, the Babe was taken to the temple to be "presented to the Lord," and to have offered a sacrifice, "a pair of turtledoves or two young pigeons."

Outside the temple was a devout and just man whose name was Simeon. He was old and waiting for death. It was revealed to him by the Holy Ghost that he should not die until he had seen the Messiah. When Jesus was being brought out of the temple, Simeon recognized Him as such and he took Him in his arms, blessed God, and said:

"Lord, now lettest Thou Thy servant depart in peace, according to Thy word: for mine eyes have seen Thy salvation." He blessed Joseph and Mary, who were amazed at his actions, and said to Mary: "Behold this child is set for the fall and rising again of many in Israel; and for a sign which shall be sp

Hay Fever Usually Lasts from Six To Eight Weeks, Doctor Declares

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Hay fever is an intensive bout of allergy which lasts for about six to eight weeks. It leaves the victim weak and subject to sets of symptoms which hit the body in parts that are especially likely to allergic manifestations—the nose and the bronchial tubes.

One of these is post-seasonal hay fever asthma. With some of my patients the asthma used to come on at the end of the hay fever season and last until well along in the cold weather. Asthma is a most curious kind of a disease. What brings it on? All the subjects have stories to tell and they regard the condition with wonderment and awe. "Three out of every ten particularly mention that laughter brings on an attack," write Drs. June B. and Milton Cohen in their book Your Allergy and What to Do About It (J. B. Lippincott).

With a post-seasonal hay fever asthmatic, any exertion, even eating a meal, may set up an attack.

When in an attack, the asthmatic often assumes a position that looks very uncomfortable. "One person," relates Dr. Cohen, "who had suffered from chronic asthma for a number of years related that he had learned after weeks of practice to remain in one of these peculiar attitudes for at least an hour at a time without moving. The only way for him to drop off comfortably into his slumbers without the incidence of an asthmatic attack was to recline on his side, prop up his chest at an angle with his pillow and to hold up his hand with crooked elbow, using a silk handkerchief to prevent perspiration."

Year Round Treatments Best

Seasonal hay fever runs incidiously into perennial or all-year-round hay fever. A young person had the usual bout with hay fever in the late summer; it disappeared regularly about the middle of October. Then one year it seemed to stop, but a persistent cough followed, and the course of this was interrupted with short attacks of asthma. Treatment undertaken by an experienced expert at this stage will save lots of trouble in the future. The body may at this stage develop an antipathy to an increased number of inhalants—the dandruff that comes from the skin of dogs, cats and horses, house dusts and cosmetics, such as face powder.

Thus a hay fever patient acquires multiple sensitizations and finds to his dismay that his hay fever does not leave him with the first frost, but hangs on in spots all the year round.

It is for this reason that allergists lately are advocating all year round treatment even for seasonal hay fever. Such management recognizes the different sensitizations as they arise and by applying vaccine treatments can prepare the sufferer to resist his invasion during the hay fever season better.

Questions and Answers

A. D. R., St. Louis, Mo.—I have been taking a lemon a day in a glass of water. I am told they thin the blood and reduce you. I am 70 years old, and want to know if one a day is harmful."

Answer: This sounds as if some neighbor had decided to take the joy out life. If half the people in the world would quit talking half the time, half the trouble would be avoided. Certainly a lemon a day won't do you any harm, it will do you good, on the same principle as an apple a day.

CHAPTER FORTY-FOUR

THE DAY passed slowly and uncomfortably. Hunger was merely annoying—they managed to stave off the worst pangs with their slender rations of chocolate and biscuit. But it was a hot day, and the wind blew dust into their shelter, so that the thirst became a torture. They took turns on watch at the doorway, the others lying down and resting, or talking desultorily. Gun took the opportunity of telling Tommy Hazeldeane the full strength of the plot to bomb London and Berlin, and so rig the markets. As he had expected, this infuriated Tommy, who afterward spent his time squatting behind the sandbags, and sniping at the enemy whenever he caught a glimpse of a head or limb. This did little damage, but it seemed to afford Tommy a sort of gloomy satisfaction.

Gun spent most of the afternoon carefully examining the papers he had taken from Trent's office. He had a long talk with Coral about what she knew of the gang and its organization, and particularly of the private air station near Cannes.

At the end of it all he heaved a long sigh.

"It's damned hard lines, really," he complained. "Because, if we could once get away from here, and leave these devils stranded, I believe I could scoop the whole bunch in, in about three days."

"Don't you think there's a chance of our getting away?" Coral asked, a trifle plaintively.

Gun shrugged.

"Just a chance. Like the mariners of old, our fate depends entirely on the wind. If that changes . . ."

"Then?" Coral asked, eagerly.

"You'll see—if it happens. If not, no need to torture with the thought of it."

"And—if it doesn't happen?"

Gun shrugged hopelessly.

"It may comfort you, in view of what may happen, to know that the dear Otto suggested that he was not going to kill you—at once. But he'd make you wish he had. You know a fate worse than death," he laughed.

Coral smiled without mirth.

"Well, he'll be unlucky. I still have that little pistol of yours."

"No need to worry." Gun put in grimly. "You won't." He waved his hand to the piled-up cases of explosives behind them. At the last minute I propose to pull the pin out of a Mills bomb and drop it behind those. That ought to blow at least half of them to where they really belong—as well as robbing them of their precious munitions."

"And us . . .?"

"Us? Oh, of course, we shall go too. It'll be a quick finish, that's one thing."

"So we're bound to win in the end," said Coral, paling a little, but faintly smiling.

"This girl's got courage!" was Gun's inward comment.

Time dragged on. Towards the end of the afternoon the wind dropped completely. This increased the heat, and it increased the thirst from which they were all suffering, but to Gun in brought a faint gleam of hope. At sundown the wind would rise again—but from which direction?

Curious to think how life and death hung on the answer to that question.

None of them complained aloud. Tommy Hazeldeane sat by the sandbags, glowering with slightly bloodshot eyes over the enemy shelters. He held his rifle ready, and occasionally licked his dry lips with a dry tongue.

Coral Merridew sat to the left of him, sheltered from the sun, and gazed up at the blue sky, wondering if this was to be her last sight of it.

Gun sat back in the corner, and thought with exasperation of how, with a little daring, he could scoop in the whole crowd of these scoundrels—if only they could get away from this accursed island.

None of them spoke a word. There seemed so little to talk about.

The minutes, the half hours, the hours dragged on. Tommy, who had been moving restlessly for some time, croaked:

"My gosh, it's this waiting that gets you beat. We seem to have been doing nothing but wait ever since we came to this damned place."

Gun rose, a little stiffly, and stepped into the doorway, behind Tommy. He looked up at the sky.

"It won't be long now," he announced quietly. "The sun's going."

He turned, and began to rummage in the open cases of munitions. He arranged three little piles of three Mills bombs on the floor near the doorway.

"With luck we'll sift a few of 'em ourselves, before the big bang comes," he said.

Then he took a tenth bomb and laid it, by itself, a little way behind the others.

Coral stared at it with fascinated eyes. Queer! That little pear-shaped thing was the instrument that, very soon, would destroy them all. She wondered what it felt like to be suddenly blown to smithereens—or if it felt at all.

Tommy, who had been smoking, threw the stub of his cigaret as far as he could out into the now fading sunlight. It fell onto the rocky ground, and the smoke rose in a thin, blue column—like the smoke of a miniature campfire, he thought.

Suddenly, as he looked at it, he stiffened, and his reflective gaze changed to a concentrated stare. Then he gave a sharp cry:

"Gun! There's wind getting up, and it's blowing dead away from here. Look at that cigaret!"

Gun stepped forward quite slowly and his eyes followed the direction indicated by Tommy's slightly shaking finger, but his hand on Tommy's shoulder gripped so that it hurt.

Coral stared at them both, and held her breath.

"You're right," said Gun, after a moment—and then, in a hushed—almost an awed—tone: "By God, we've got 'em!"

Tommy gave a suppressed whoop and rose to his feet.

"Come on, then—let's get to it!

But Gun shook his head.

"We must wait—until the wind strengthens. It might drop away suddenly."

"Oh, hell—this waiting!"

Tommy crouched again, and his knuckles showed white where he gripped his rifle.

Gun's eyes shifted from the tops of a couple of stunted trees to the sparse grass that grew there in the open, and back again.

The trees moved, and the grass was ruffled, as the sundown wind came in fitful gusts. Gun said suddenly:

"Now, then—come along! We'll chance it—if it blows back on us it won't matter much—I can send this dump up before it really gets us!"

He turned to a box marked "G.13."

"There's only a dozen of 'em, all told. We'll try out with six for a start—it ought to be enough."

He handed two of the pear-shaped bombs to each of them, and took two himself. Then he gave his directions in a quiet, level voice:

"I'll take the center. Coral can take the left, and you, Tommy, the right. We must spread 'em out well to make a good curtain, and we must throw all together. Take your instructions from me. Coral, aim straight for the gate in the fence there; Tommy, aim for that bush. Get me?"

The others assented.

"Take your time, and don't get flustered, Coral. The directions will be 'one, two, three—withdraw pin—one, two—throw.' Have you got that?"

"Yes!"

"Right! Now—ready? One . . . two . . . three . . . withdraw pin. One . . . two . . . THROW!"

The three bombs took a curve through the air, and fell to the ground. Gun's was about seventy-five yards away, Tommy's a trifle shorter, and Coral's shorter still.

"Thirty-five seconds before they burst, I think," Gun remarked, in a conversational tone. "Ah, there they go!"

The bombs burst almost simultaneously, with surprisingly little noise. But there were signs of activity behind the enemy shelters immediately.

"There it goes!" Gun whispered. "Watch that green haze—and it's traveling beautifully, too!"

It rose twenty-five feet from the ground, a faint, greenish tinge—not as thick as cigaret smoke. And it was traveling, before the wind, toward the shelters, and spreading outward as it went.

"Now the others!" cried Gun. "Ready? One . . . two . . . three . . . withdraw pin. One . . . two . . . THROW!"

The second three burst almost in a line. Heads were showing above and at the sides of the shelters, and now there came a sudden shout of warning and alarm. The words reached their ears, faintly:

"Gas . . . the G.13 gas!"

There was something like a panic among the enemy. Some turned and began running to the Factory. Gun could see Trent shouting and pointing—he had a better idea. Next moment, with half a dozen men behind him, he was running straight into the gas, and toward the arsenal. They had their heads down, their disengaged hands over their faces, and they sprinted their hardest.

"Smart chap," said Gun, approvingly. "It's their one chance, and they may get through. Well, we've some more bombs! Two more, Coral!" he shouted.

Tommy was standing, legs well apart, and rifle ready. They got through the first screen of gas, and if they had known enough to take a gulp of breath in the short interval they might all have got through the second line. But four of them went down, wriggled for a moment, and then lay still.

But Trent, with two men behind him, got through.

Gun saw him lift his head and look around, then he threw back his head and opened his mouth, gulping at the air. His rifle cracked, he took a sudden spring upward, and collapsed on the ground, sprawling.

"Don't take unnecessary life," said Gun, as Coral came back with the bombs.

"I wanted to get that swine," gritted Tommy, from between his teeth. "Now he's out of it, anyway, and I feel better."

The other two men had checked, and seemed uncertain what to do. Gun removed the pin from a bomb with his teeth and lobbed it. Both men yelled as it burst a few feet away from them and turned to run back. But next moment they were both down and out.

Homes for Aged Must Be Licensed

Baltimore, Oct. 11 (AP)—The State Department of Public Welfare has issued a warning that on and after Oct. 15, any persons or institutions operating a home for aged persons must be licensed by the department.

Director J. Milton Patterson called attention to regulations requiring homes applying for such licenses to conform to definite standards governing management and staff, housing, health and sanitation, fire protection, medical care, and records and reports.

Penalty for violating the license regulations, classed as a misdemeanor, is a fine of not more than $100 or imprisonment not to exceed three months.

Any person or institution caring for two or more persons over sixty-five years of age, and charging for such care, must obtain a license.

The ruling was adopted by the state board of welfare last June 7 to become effective Oct. 15.

Doggy Dog Manners Rewarded with Degrees

BALTIMORE (AP)—L. Wilson Davis thinks America's dogs have shocking manners. So he's president of a dog owners' training club, meeting thrice weekly to teach dogs to heel, halt on order, mind their masters' possessions, even jump over—not walk through—mud puddles.

Doggy-mannered dogs will get degrees—a C. D. or "companion dog" for successful novices; C. D. X. for "companion dog excellent," and U. D., or "utility dog," which is tops.

Hay Fever Usually Lasts from Six To Eight Weeks, Doctor Declares

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Hay fever is an intensive bout of allergy which lasts for about six to eight weeks. It leaves the victim weak and subject to sets of symptoms which hit the body in parts that are especially likely to allergic manifestations—the nose and the bronchial tubes.

One of these is post-seasonal hay fever asthma. With some of my patients the asthma used to come on at the end of the hay fever season and last until well along in the cold weather. Asthma is a most curious kind of a disease. What brings it on? All the subjects have stories to tell and they regard the condition with wonderment and awe. "Three out of every ten particularly mention that laughter brings on an attack," write Drs. June B. and Milton Cohen in their book Your Allergy and What to Do About It (J. B. Lippincott).

With a post-seasonal hay fever asthmatic, any exertion, even eating a meal, may set up an attack.

When in an attack, the asthmatic often assumes a position that looks very uncomfortable. "One person," relates Dr. Cohen, "who had suffered from chronic asthma for a number of years related that he had learned after weeks of practice to remain in one of these peculiar attitudes for at least an hour at a time without moving. The only way for him to drop off comfortably into his slumbers without the incidence of an asthmatic attack was to recline on his side, prop up his chest at an angle with his pillow and to hold up his hand with crooked elbow, using a silk handkerchief to prevent perspiration."

Year Round Treatments Best

Seasonal hay fever runs incidiously into perennial or all-year-round hay fever. A young person had the usual bout with hay fever in the late summer; it disappeared regularly about the middle of October. Then one year it seemed to stop, but a persistent cough followed, and the course of this was interrupted with short attacks of asthma. Treatment undertaken by an experienced expert at this stage will save lots of trouble in the future. The body may at this stage develop an antipathy to an increased number of inhalants—the dandruff that comes from the skin of dogs, cats and horses, house dusts and cosmetics, such as face powder.

Thus a hay fever patient acquires multiple sensitizations and finds to his dismay that his hay fever does not leave him with the first frost, but hangs on in spots all the year round.

It is for this reason that allergists lately are advocating all year round treatment even for seasonal hay fever. Such management recognizes the different sensitizations as they arise and by applying vaccine treatments can prepare the sufferer to resist his invasion during the hay fever season better.

Questions and Answers

A. D. R., St. Louis, Mo.—I have been taking a lemon a day in a glass of water. I am told they thin the blood and reduce you. I am 70 years old, and want to know if one a day is harmful."

Answer: This sounds as if some neighbor had decided to take the joy out life. If half the people in the world would quit talking half the time, half the trouble would be avoided. Certainly a lemon a day won't do you any harm, it will do you good, on the same principle as an apple a day.

CHAPTER FORTY-FOUR

THE DAY passed slowly and uncomfortably. Hunger was merely annoying—they managed to stave off the worst pangs with their slender rations of chocolate and biscuit. But it was a hot day, and the wind blew dust into their shelter, so that the thirst became a torture. They took turns on watch at the doorway, the others lying down and resting, or talking desultorily. Gun took the opportunity of telling Tommy Hazeldeane the full strength of the plot to bomb London and Berlin, and so rig the markets. As he had expected, this infuriated Tommy, who afterward spent his time squatting behind the sandbags, and sniping at the enemy whenever he caught a glimpse of a head or limb. This did little damage, but it seemed to afford Tommy a sort of gloomy satisfaction.

Gun spent most of the afternoon carefully examining the papers he had taken from Trent's office. He had a long talk with Coral about what she knew of the gang and its organization, and particularly of the private air station near Cannes.

At the end of it all he heaved a long sigh.

"It's damned hard lines, really," he complained. "Because, if we could once get away from here, and leave these devils stranded, I believe I could scoop the whole bunch in, in about three days."

"Don't you think there's a chance of our getting away?" Coral asked, a trifle plaintively.

Gun shrugged.

"Just a chance. Like the mariners of old, our fate depends entirely on the wind. If that changes . . ."

"Then?" Coral asked, eagerly.

"You'll see—if it happens. If not, no need to torture with the thought of it."

"And—if it doesn't happen?"

Gun shrugged hopelessly.

"It may comfort you, in view of what may happen, to know that the dear Otto suggested that he was not going to kill you—at once. But he'd make you wish he had. You know a fate worse than death," he laughed.

Coral smiled without mirth.

"Well, he'll be unlucky, I still have that little pistol of yours."

"No need to worry," Gun put in grimly. "You won't." He waved his hand to the piled-up cases of explosives behind them. At the last minute I propose to pull the pin out of a Mills bomb and drop it behind those. That ought to blow at least half of them to where they really belong—as well as robbing them of their precious munitions."

"And us . . . ?"

"Us? Oh, of course, we shall go too. It'll be a quick finish, that's one thing."

"So we're bound to win in the end," said Coral, paling a little, but faintly smiling.

"This girl's got courage!" was Gun's inward comment.

Time dragged on. Towards the end of the afternoon the wind dropped completely. This increased the heat, and it increased the thirst from which they were all suffering, but to Gun it brought a faint gleam of hope. At sundown the wind would rise again—but from which direction?

Curious to think how life and death hung on the answer to that question.

None of them complained aloud. Tommy Hazeldeane sat by the sandbags, glowering with slightly bloodshot eyes over the enemy shelters. He held his rifle ready, and occasionally licked his dry lips with a dry tongue.

Coral Merridew sat to the left of him, sheltered from the sun, and gazed up at the blue sky, wondering if this was to be her last sight of it.

Gun sat back in the corner, and thought with exasperation of how, with a little daring, he could scoop in the whole crowd of these scoundrels—if only they could get away from this accursed island.

None of them spoke a word. There seemed so little to talk about.

The minutes, the half hours, the hours dragged on. Tommy, who had been moving restlessly for some time, croaked:

"My gosh, it's this waiting that gets you beat. We seem to have been doing nothing but wait ever since we came to this damned place."

Gun rose, a little stiffly, and stepped into the doorway, behind Tommy. He looked up at the sky.

"It won't be long now," he announced quietly. "The sun's going."

He turned, and began to rummage in the open cases of munitions. He arranged three little piles of three Mills bombs on the floor near the doorway.

"With luck we'll sift a few of 'em ourselves, before the big bang comes," he said.

Then he took a tenth bomb and laid it, by itself, a little way behind the others.

Coral stared at it with fascinated eyes. Queer! That little pear-shaped thing was the instrument that, very soon, would destroy them all. She wondered what it felt like to be suddenly blown to smithereens—or if it felt at all.

Tommy, who had been smoking, threw the stub of his cigaret as far as he could out into the now fading sunlight. It fell onto the rocky ground, and the smoke rose in a thin, blue column—like the smoke of a miniature campfire, he thought.

Suddenly, as he looked at it, he stiffened, and his reflective gaze changed to a concentrated stare. Then he gave a sharp cry:

"Gun! There's wind getting up, and it's blowing dead away from here. Look at that cigaret!"

Gun stepped forward quite slowly and his eyes followed the direction indicated by Tommy's slightly shaking finger, but his hand on Tommy's shoulder gripped so that it hurt.

Coral stared at them both, and held her breath.

"You're right," said Gun, after a moment—and then, in a hushed—almost an awed—tone: "By God, we've got 'em!"

Tommy gave a suppressed whoop and rose to his feet.

"Come on, then—let's get to it!"

But Gun shook his head.

"We must wait—until the wind strengthens. It might drop away suddenly."

"Oh, hell—this waiting!"

Tommy crouched again, and his knuckles showed white where he gripped his rifle.

Gun's eyes shifted from the tops of a couple of stunted trees to the sparse grass that grew there in the open, and back again.

The trees moved, and the grass was ruffled, as the sundown wind came in fitful gusts. Gun said suddenly:

"Now, then—come along! We'll chance it—if it blows back on us it won't matter much—I can send this dump up before it really gets us!"

He turned to a box marked "G.13."

"There's only a dozen of 'em, all told. We'll try out with six for a start—it ought to be enough."

He handed two of the pear-shaped bombs to each of them, and took two himself. Then he gave his directions in a quiet, level voice:

"I'll take the center. Coral can take the left, and you, Tommy, the right. We must spread 'em out well to make a good curtain, and we must throw all together. Take your instructions from me. Coral, aim straight for the gate in the fence there; Tommy, aim for that bush. Get me?"

The others assented.

"Take your time, and don't get flustered, Coral. The directions will be 'one, two, three—withdraw pin—one, two—throw.' Have you got that?"

"Yes!"

"Right! Now—ready? One . . . two . . . three . . . withdraw pin. One . . . two . . . THROW!"

The three bombs took a curve through the air, and fell to the ground. Gun's was about seventy-five yards away, Tommy's a trifle shorter, and Coral's shorter still.

"Thirty-five seconds before they burst, I think," Gun remarked, in a conversational tone. "Ah, there they go!"

The bombs burst almost simultaneously, with surprisingly little noise. But there were signs of activity behind the enemy shelters immediately.

"There it goes!" Gun whispered. "Watch that green haze—and it's traveling beautifully, too!"

It rose twenty-five feet from the ground, a faint, greenish tinge—not as thick as cigaret smoke. And it was traveling, before the wind, toward the shelters, and spreading outward as it went.

"Now the others!" cried Gun. "Ready? One . . . two . . . three . . . withdraw pin. One . . . two . . . THROW!"

The second three burst almost in a line. Heads were showing above and at the sides of the shelters, and now there came a sudden shout of warning and alarm. The words reached their ears, faintly:

"Gas . . . the G.13 gas!"

There was something like a panic among the enemy. Some turned and began running to the Factory. Gun could see Trent shouting and pointing—he had a better idea. Next moment, with half a dozen men behind him, he was running straight into the gas, and toward the arsenal. They had their heads down, their disengaged hands over their faces, and they sprinted their hardest.

"Smart chap," said Gun, approvingly. "It's their one chance, and they may get through. Well, we've some more bombs! Two more, Coral!" he shouted.

Tommy was standing, legs well apart, and rifle ready. They got through the first screen of gas, and if they had known enough to take a gulp of breath in the short interval they might all have got through the second line. But four of them went down, wriggled for a moment, and then lay still.

But Trent, with two men behind him, got through.

Gun saw him lift his head and look around, then he threw back his head and opened his mouth, gulping at the air. His rifle cracked, he took a sudden spring upward, and collapsed on the ground, sprawling.

"Don't take unnecessary life," said Gun, as Coral came back with the bombs.

"I wanted to get that swine," gritted Tommy, from between his teeth. "Now he's out of it, anyway, and I feel better."

The other two men had checked, and seemed uncertain what to do. Gun removed the pin from a bomb with his teeth and lobbed it. Both men yelled as it burst a few feet away from them and turned to run back. But next moment they were both down and out.

Collier Elected Director of Farm Loan Association

Morgan and Reid Re-elected; C. C. Dobbins Speaks at Meeting

Hamilton E. Collier, of Flintstone, last night was elected a director of the Allegany County National Farm Loan Association at its annual meeting at the city hall. He succeeds Wilmer S. Stonestreet, deceased, for a term of three years.

James A. Morgan, of Frostburg, and Frank B. Reid, of Baltimore pike, directors whose terms expired this year, were re-elected at last night's meeting. Holdover directors are R. C. Wilson, of Rawlings, and B. A. Mason, of Cresaptown.

Officers re-elected were R. C. Wilson, president; B. A. Mason, vice-president, and Thomas Lohr Richards, secretary - treasurer and attorney.

C. C. Dobbins, of Baltimore, representative of the Federal Land bank, was the principal speaker of the evening, his subject being "Co-operation." Three reels of moving pictures titled, "Farmer's Trail Leads On" was shown by Carl Smith, instructor of the University of Maryland Agriculture school.

Music was provided by Kroll's Little Reed band of Frostburg.

The local association was formed in 1922, six years after the late President Woodrow Wilson signed the Farm Loan Act. The county organization operates under the Federal Land Bank of Baltimore, which has loaned approximately one million dollars to farmers in this area. The Allegany County National Farm Loan association has fifty-five members. Thomas Lohr Richards has served as secretary-treasurer of the organization since it was formed eighteen years ago.

Commissioners Will Make Report to School Board on Beall High

A report on conditions at Beall high school, Frostburg, will be made to the school board by the county commissioners. The commissioners made an inspection tour of the building Tuesday at the request of a committee of citizens who protested against sending their children to a school they claimed to be "unsafe."

As the school board has full authority in school matters the commissioners decided that a report to that body was the proper procedure for them to follow.

The commissioners also heard Robert B. Kimble, state senator, who declared reports of statements attributed to him on the condition of the school building were in error.

Senator Kimble stated that at a meeting in Mt. Savage last Thursday, a report of purported deficiencies in the school was read, and that he suggested that the commissioners be informed of same with a view to having them corrected. He told the commissioners that he had never been in the Beall high school building and therefore would not have been in a position to say what its condition was.

Haz Will Give Six Different Lectures Here on Photography

Nicholas Haz, one of the leading teachers and lecturers on photography in the United States will give six different lectures in the Fort Cumberland hotel ballroom, starting Monday Oct. 14 through Saturday Oct. 19.

The series of lectures is being sponsored jointly by The Cumberland Miniature Camera Club and Harvey's Jewelry Store, and all camera fans are invited to hear Mr. Haz.

Haz is founder of the Nicholas Haz Master School of Photography, New York city and is a fellow of the Royal Photographic Society of Great Britain. He is past president of the Professional Photographers' Club of New York. He is also author of the book, "Emphasis in Pictures" and has written many articles for Popular Photography and other publications.

Local Man Arrested For Painting Curb

Samuel Swartz, 113 North Mechanic street, was arrested yesterday for allegedly painting the curb—a city ordinance violation—in front of his place a bright orange hue.

The ordinance forbids "the display of unauthorized signs, signals or warnings."

It is the task of police officials to determine where curbs are to be painted, so Sergt. R. R. Johnston summoned Swartz to appear Monday in police court to explain his actions.

Police use red and yellow paint to color curbs. The red means "no parking at anytime" and the yellow signifies that the space is restricted for the use of delivery trucks of stores and other business establishments.

Louetta Shepherd Files Suit against Her Husband

Louetta Emma Shepherd filed suit in circuit court, yesterday, against Rowland Joseph Shepherd for support and maintenance. The couple was married in 1908 and separated two years ago. William A. Gunter is attorney for the plaintiff.

JEW SAVES NAZI FLIER'S LIFE

Second Lieutenant M. E. Jacobs, of the British army, a Jew, stands beside a German airman whose life he saved at the risk of his own. The Nazi was shot down off Folkestone. Jacobs plunged into the channel, swam 300 yards to the airman, kept him afloat until a boat picked them up. Jacobs is wearing a corporal's coat, lent to him after his swim.

Gateway Chatter

perks up the morale of the citizens but also gives a community an appearance of being up and coming and a good place to live.

Citing the value of a well-executed Christmas decoration program, John B. Mordock, a member of the decorations committee of the Mercantile Bureau, yesterday pointed out that unless all merchants and various civic groups help out, this year's program may be a pretty sorry affair. In fact there may not be any program at all, he said.

Mordock declared that some people apparently have the idea that the Christmas decoration program is something that is helpful only to the merchants and for that reason should be sponsored solely by businessmen.

If this attitude persists, it may mean a sharp curtailment of the decoration program since the Mercantile Bureau is not in a position to swing it by itself, he said.

Members of the committee declared that in their estimation it is time business men on side streets, the various organizations and city officials pitch in and make the program what it should be—a community project.

Since Christmas will have a hollow meaning for many unfortunate people throughout the war-wracked world this year, the members of the Mercantile Bureau committee believe that Cumberland people should pitch in and really make this year's holiday season a memorable event in the Queen City.

Cumberland people have much to be happy about this year, they declare.

Ruge and Cook Named Assistant Game Wardens By E. Lee LeCompte

Appointment of Francis H. Ruge of Frostburg, as assistant game warden for the western part of Allegany county and eastern Garrett county, is announced by E. Lee LeCompte, state game warden.

Approval of the appointment was received from Harry Jones, state employment commissioner.

Ruge will be an assistant of Battie Nixon, of Cumberland, district game warden.

LeCompte also announced that Lloyd Cook, of Mt. Lake park, will become assistant to District Game Warden George Shields, of Garrett county, effective October 15.

Both appointments are temporary, but after December 15 one of the men named is expected to keep the post permanently.

Local Pictures Are Viewed in Mobile

"Solitude," a picture made by Dr. A. G. Twigg, of Cumberland, has been selected as the prize winner of the traveling salon of the Cumberland Miniature Camera Club by judges of the Mobile, Ala., Camera Club. The selection was made at the regular print competition for the month of October.

"After The Shower" by Robert Snowden, was second and "Football Player" by James Weber took third prize.

Dr. Twigg's picture was displayed in Harvey's Jewelry Store here after being selected the prize winner for May in the Local Camera Club's contest.

Western Maryland Dividend Pays $1,158,808 to B.&O.

Directors of the Western Maryland Railway yesterday declared a dividend of $7 a share on 7 percent, the first preferred stock payble November 15 to stockholders of record October 31. The dividend represents the accrual for the year ended June 30, 1921.

This is the third payment of $7 a share thus far declared on the first preferred stock which has been cumulative since July 1, 1918, and still carries back dividends of about $136 a share. The previous payments were made in 1936 and 1937.

As the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad is the owner of 165,544 of the 177,420 outstanding first preferred stock, the dividend will yield a return of $1,158,808 to that road.

Payment of the Western Maryland dividend had been expected in view of the sharp improvement in the road's earnings. Net income available for the first preferred stock in the first eight months jumped to $1,274,370 from $236,829 in the same period last year.

Creeping Collectivism

"The danger today is something else, a creeping collectivism. The progress will be gradual but the end inevitable. There will be no sudden coup d'etat. The march will be step by step, and by muffled tread. It will move under the smoke-screen of laudable 'objectives' to its hidden goal . . . National Socialism."

Chapters entitled "Taxation Sucks the Eggs," "The Blight of Bureaucracy," and "Socialism Through the Back Door," cite numerous examples to support that statement.

Mr. Pettengill says, however, that the American people are not licked, and he outlines a course of action to stem the tide of National Socialism.

"The American people are not communists," he says. "The time and opportunity have come to all of us, but particularly to those in posts of responsibility and stewardship to resell America to Americans in the American Home Market. It can be done! All we need are a salesmen with just a part of the spunk that lifted the words 'Washington,' 'Jefferson' and 'Lincoln' out of the shadows."

he had no knowledge of any existing fire hazards in the city and that regular inspections were made of premises in the city for that purpose.

"EIGHTH, we had before our body the commissioner of police and fire, James Orr, and police department heads of Cumberland, Frostburg, Westernport, Lonaconing, Luke and Midland, and a number of constables. They were questioned as to the conditions in reference to law and order in their respective communities, and their answers were that, to their knowledge, conditions were good.

"NINTH, the grand jury, as a body, inspected the Allegany county court house and found the same in good condition with the exception of a small brick ledge at the bottom of the first stone step to the entrance of the court house, which we recommended be repaired.

Cases Handled Promptly

"TENTH, we find that Morgan C. Harris, state's attorney for Allegany county, and Terrence J. Boyle, county investigator, have conducted their respective duties efficiently, and that matters pertaining to criminal offenses, and other cases, are promptly handled with investigations.

"The jury wishes to commend the sheriff, Lucien Radcliffe, and his deputies, and the clerk of the court, Robert Jackson, and court attaches for their courteous service to the grand jury. We also wish to commend William Izat, the janitor of the court house, for the excellent condition in which the entire court house is kept at all times."

The report was signed by Samuel T. Walker, of Frostburg, as foreman.

Nazi Fliers Drop

tempted to attack Liverpool, but were intercepted by British fighter planes who shot down three of them over Wales, the air ministry announced.

Four bombs fell in northeast Scotland in open country before British fighters chased the raiders out to sea.

Cottages Demolished

Fires started by incendiary bombs in a southeast town quickly were controlled by firemen, it was said. Explosives also rained on the town, demolishing workers' cottages.

Concussion from nearby explosions ripped out the war-time windows of ancient Canterbury cathedral yesterday as Nazi planes made six assaults on London and the southeastern area between dawn and dinnertime.

The day was one of spectacular combats in and out of the cloud-banks of the Kentish coast and over the outskirts of London and an extraordinarily effective defense was claimed by the air ministry in beating off a half dozen Nazi thrusts.

No Heavy Bombing

Most of the raiders were bomb and cannon-bearing fighter planes, the ministry said, without mentioning unofficial speculations that this indicated a shortage of Nazi bomber craft, and not a single instance of "heavy bombing" was reported during the day.

Some bombs did fall, however, it was officially stated, not alone in the town of Canterbury — where stores and homes were damaged — but in Kent, in Sussex and near the Thames estuary leading to London.

In the cathedral at Canterbury—seat of the archbishop of Canterbury, the primate of all England—the only destruction wrought was to the relatively valueless windows which soon after the war's outbreak replaced the priceless vistas of stained glass which for seven centuries had let in the mellow light to the most historic of all the churches of England.

Cathedral Escapes

The cathedral, where Archbishop Thomas A. Becket was slain and buried an dabout which Chaucer wrote — the place of penance of the old English kings — suffered no structural harm.

Five German planes and the same number of British fighter craft had been destroyed by late afternoon, the air ministry said.

The day's casualties included a "small number" of officially acknowledged casualties in the areas outlying London.

For the first time, it was disclosed that a bomb fell last night between two subway trains running on the surface on the outskirts of the city, but it was declared that none among the some 150 passengers was injured. Two coaches of the London-bound train were derailed.

Maryland Tuned Up For Virginia Clash

COLLEGE PARK, Md., Oct. 11 (AP)—The University of Maryland gridiron machine, thrown into reverse in its first two starts this year, was tuned up in a light workout today for tomorrow's collision with the University of Virginia.

Last-minute changes brought four new players—all sophomores—into the starting lineup. Don Shockey, a 205-pounder, got the right halfback assignment when Bernie Ulman was sent to the University hospital in Baltimore with a throat ailment.

Collier Elected Director of Farm Loan Association

Morgan and Reid Re-elected; C. C. Dobbins Speaks at Meeting

Hamilton E. Collier, of Flintstone, last night was elected a director of the Allegany County National Farm Loan Association at its annual meeting at the city hall. He succeeds Wilmer S. Stonestreet, deceased, for a term of three years.

James A. Morgan, of Frostburg, and Frank B. Reid, of Baltimore pike, directors whose terms expired this year, were re-elected at last night's meeting. Holdover directors are R. C. Wilson, of Rawlings, and B. A. Mason, of Cresaptown.

Officers re-elected were R. C. Wilson, president; B. A. Mason, vice-president, and Thomas Lohr Richards, secretary - treasurer and attorney.

C. C. Dobbins, of Baltimore, representative of the Federal Land bank, was the principal speaker of the evening, his subject being "Co-operation." Three reels of moving pictures titled, "Farmer's Trail Leads On" was shown by Carl Smith, instructor of the University of Maryland Agriculture school.

Music was provided by Kroll's Little Reed band of Frostburg.

The local association was formed in 1922, six years after the late President Woodrow Wilson signed the Farm Loan Act. The county organization operates under the Federal Land Bank of Baltimore, which has loaned approximately one million dollars to farmers in this area. The Allegany County National Farm Loan association has fifty-five members. Thomas Lohr Richards has served as secretary-treasurer of the organization since it was formed eighteen years ago.

Commissioners Will Make Report to School Board on Beall High

A report on conditions at Beall high school, Frostburg, will be made to the school board by the county commissioners. The commissioners made an inspection tour of the building Tuesday at the request of a committee of citizens who protested against sending their children to a school they claimed to be "unsafe."

As the school board has full authority in school matters the commissioners decided that a report to that body was the proper procedure for them to follow.

The commissioners also heard Robert B. Kimble, state senator, who declared reports of statements attributed to him on the condition of the school building were in error.

Senator Kimble stated that at a meeting in Mt. Savage last Thursday, a report of purported deficiencies in the school was read, and that he suggested that the commissioners be informed of same with a view to having them corrected. He told the commissioners that he had never been in the Beall high school building and therefore would not have been in a position to say what its condition was.

Haz Will Give Six Different Lectures Here on Photography

Nicholas Haz, one of the leading teachers and lecturers on photography in the United States will give six different lectures in the Fort Cumberland hotel ballroom, starting Monday Oct. 14 through Saturday Oct. 19.

The series of lectures is being sponsored jointly by The Cumberland Miniature Camera Club and Harvey's Jewelry Store, and all camera fans are invited to hear Mr. Haz.

Haz is founder of the Nicholas Haz Master School of Photography, New York city and is a fellow of the Royal Photographic Society of Great Britain. He is past president of the Professional Photographers Club of New York. He is also author of the book "Emphasis in Pictures" and has written many articles for Popular Photography and other publications.

Local Man Arrested For Painting Curb

Samuel Swartz, 113 North Mechanic street, was arrested yesterday for allegedly painting the curb—a city ordinance violation—in front of his place a bright orange hue.

The ordinance forbids "the display of unauthorized signs, signals or warnings."

It is the task of police officials to determine where curbs are to be painted, so Sergt. R. R. Johnston summoned Swartz to appear Monday in police court to explain his actions.

Police use red and yellow paint to color curbs. The red means "no parking at anytime" and the yellow signifies that the space is restricted for the use of delivery trucks of stores and other business establishments.

Louetta Shepherd Files Suit against Her Husband

Louetta Emma Shepherd filed suit in circuit court, yesterday, against Rowland Joseph Shepherd for support and maintenance. The couple was married in 1908 and separated two years ago. William A. Gunter is attorney for the plaintiff.

JEW SAVES NAZI FLIER'S LIFE

Second Lieutenant M. E. Jacobs, of the British army, a Jew, stands beside a German airman whose life he saved at the risk of his own. The Nazi was shot down off Folkestone. Jacobs plunged into the channel, swam 300 yards to the airman, kept him afloat until a boat picked them up. Jacobs is wearing a corporal's coat, lent to him after his swim.

Gateway Chatter

perks up the morale of the citizens but also gives a community an appearance of being up and coming and a good place to live.

Citing the value of a well-executed Christmas decoration program, John B. Mordock, a member of the decorations committee of the Mercantile Bureau, yesterday pointed out that unless all merchants and various civic groups help out, this year's program may be a pretty sorry affair. In fact there may not be any program at all, he said.

Mordock declared that some people apparently have the idea that the Christmas decoration program is something that is helpful only to the merchants and for that reason should be sponsored solely by businessmen.

If this attitude persists, it may mean a sharp curtailment of the decoration program since the Mercantile Bureau is not in a position to swing it by itself, he said.

Members of the committee declared that in their estimation it is time business men on side streets, the various organizations and city officials pitch in and make the program what it should be—a community project.

Since Christmas will have a hollow meaning for many unfortunate people throughout the war-wracked world this year, the members of the Mercantile Bureau committee believe that Cumberland people should pitch in and really make this year's holiday season a memorable event in the Queen City.

Cumberland people have much to be happy about this year, they declare.

Ruge and Cook Named Assistant Game Wardens By E. Lee LeCompte

Appointment of Francis H. Ruge of Frostburg, as assistant game warden for the western part of Allegany county and eastern Garrett county, is announced by E. Lee LeCompte, state game warden.

Approval of the appointment was received from Harry Jones, state employment commissioner.

Ruge will be an assistant of Battle Nixon, of Cumberland, district game warden.

LeCompte also announced that Lloyd Cook, of Mt. Lake park, will become assistant to District Game Warden George Shields, of Garrett county, effective October 15.

Both appointments are temporary, but after December 15 one of the men named is expected to keep the post permanently.

Local Pictures Are Viewed in Mobile

"Solitude," a picture made by Dr. A. G. Twigg, of Cumberland, has been selected as the prize winner of the traveling salon of the Cumberland Miniature Camera Club by judges of the Mobile, Ala., Camera Club. The selection was made at the regular print competition for the month of October.

"After The Shower" by Robert Snowden, was second and "Football Player" by James Weber took third prize.

Dr. Twigg's picture was displayed in Harvey's Jewelry Store here after being selected the prize winner for May in the Local Camera Club's contest.

Western Maryland Dividend Pays $1,158,808 to B.&O.

Directors of the Western Maryland Railway yesterday declared a dividend of $7 a share on 7 percent, the first preferred stock payble November 15 to stockholders of record October 31. The dividend represents the accrual for the year ended June 30, 1921.

This is the third payment of $7 a share thus far declared on the first preferred stock which has been cumulative since July 1, 1918, and still carries back dividends of about $136 a share. The previous payments were made in 1936 and 1937.

As the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad is the owner of 165,544 of the 177,420 outstanding first preferred stock, the dividend will yield a return of $1,158,808 to that road.

Payment of the Western Maryland dividend had been expected in view of the sharp improvement in the road's earnings. Net income available for the first preferred stock in the first eight months jumped to $1,274,370 from $236,829 in the same period last year.

Creeping Collectivism

"The danger today is something else, a creeping collectivism. The progress will be gradual but the end inevitable. There will be no sudden coup d'etat. The march will be step by step, and by muffled tread. It will move under the smoke-screen of laudable 'objectives' to its hidden goal . . . National Socialism."

Chapters entitled "Taxation Sucks the Eggs," "The Blight of Bureaucracy," and "Socialism Through the Back Door," cite numerous examples to support that statement.

Mr. Pettengill says, however, that the American people are not licked, and he outlines a course of action to stem the tide of National Socialism.

"The American people are not communists," he says. "The time and opportunity have come to all of us, but particularly to those in posts of responsibility and stewardship to resell America to Americans in the American Home Market. It can be done! All we need are a salesmen with just a part of the spunk that lifted the words 'Washington,' 'Jefferson' and 'Lincoln' out of the shadows."

Author of "Hot Oil"

The author speaks out of an authoritative background that includes eight years in Congress and contracts embracing men and events of national significance. Born in Oregon, he was reared on a Vermont farm. He worked his way through Middlebury College and Yale Law School and started a law practice at South Bend, Indiana.

He was elected to Congress in 1930 from the Third Indiana district and served four consecutive terms.

Mr. Pettengill is also the author of "Jefferson the Forgotten Man" and "Hot Oil," and is chairman of the National Committee to Uphold Constitutional Government.

he had no knowledge of any existing fire hazards in the city and that regular inspections were made of premises in the city for that purpose.

"EIGHTH, we had before our body the commissioner of police and fire, James Orr, and police department heads of Cumberland, Frostburg, Westernport, Lonaconing, Luke and Midland, and a number of constables. They were questioned as to the conditions in reference to law and order in their respective communities, and their answers were that, to their knowledge, conditions were good.

"NINTH, the grand jury, as a body, inspected the Allegany county court house and found the same in good condition with the exception of a small brick ledge at the bottom of the first stone step to the entrance of the court house, which we recommended be repaired.

Cases Handled Promptly

"TENTH, we find that Morgan C. Harris, state's attorney for Allegany county, and Terrence J. Boyle, county investigator, have conducted their respective duties efficiently, and that matters pertaining to criminal offenses, and other cases, are promptly handled with investigations.

"The jury wishes to commend the sheriff, Lucien Radcliffe, and his deputies, and the clerk of the court, Robert Jackson, and court attaches for their courteous service to the grand jury. We also wish to commend William Izat, the janitor of the court house, for the excellent condition in which the entire court house is kept at all times."

The report was signed by Samuel T. Walker, of Frostburg, as foreman.

Three Persons Are Fined for Speeding

Myron E. Rice, of Flintstone, was fined $10 and costs yesterday in trial magistrates court for speeding on the National highway, one mile east of Cumberland.

Junior Otto Bishop, of RFD 5, Cumberland, arrested on the McMullen highway, paid $5 and costs on a charge of speeding in a restricted zone.

State Trooper John H. Doud preferred charges against both men.

Another driver, James B. Walters, 1303 Lafayette street, was fined $1 and costs for speeding on the National highway.

State Trooper George J. Miller made the arrest.

Columbus Day To Be Observed Here

Today being Columbus day, all Cumberland banks will be closed for the day and all departments of the court house will be closed. Trial magistrate's court will also observe the holiday.

Nazi Fliers Drop

tempted to attack Liverpool, but were intercepted by British fighter planes who shot down three of them over Wales, the air ministry announced.

Four bombs fell in northeast Scotland in open country before British fighters chased the raiders out to sea.

Cottages Demolished

Fires started by incendiary bombs in a southeast town quickly were controlled by firemen, it was said. Explosives also rained on the town, demolishing workers' cottages.

Concussion from nearby explosions ripped out the war-time windows of ancient Canterbury cathedral yesterday as Nazi planes made six assaults on London and the southeastern area between dawn and dinnertime.

The day was one of spectacular combats in and out of the cloud-banks of the Kentish coast and over the outskirts of London and an extraordinarily effective defense was claimed by the air ministry in beating off a half dozen Nazi thrusts.

No Heavy Bombing

Most of the raiders were bomb and cannon-bearing fighter planes, the ministry said, without mentioning unofficial speculations that this indicated a shortage of Nazi bomber craft, and not a single instance of "heavy bombing" was reported during the day.

Some bombs did fall, however, it was officially stated, not alone in the town of Canterbury — where stores and homes were damaged — but in Kent, in Sussex and near the Thames estuary leading to London.

In the cathedral at Canterbury—seat of the archbishop of Canterbury, the primate of all England—the only destruction wrought was to the relatively valueless windows which soon after the war's outbreak replaced the priceless vistas of stained glass which for seven centuries had let in the mellow light to the most historic of all the churches of England.

Cathedral Escapes

The cathedral, where Archbishop Thomas A. Becket was slain and buried an dabout which Chaucer wrote — the place of penance of the old English kings — suffered no structural harm.

Five German planes and the same number of British fighter craft had been destroyed by late afternoon, the air ministry said.

The day's casualties included a "small number" of officially acknowledged casualties in the areas outlying London.

For the first time, it was disclosed that a bomb fell last night between two subway trains running on the surface on the outskirts of the city, but it was declared that none among the some 150 passengers was injured. Two coaches of the London-bound train were derailed.

Maryland Tuned Up For Virginia Clash

COLLEGE PARK, Md., Oct. 11 (AP)—The University of Maryland gridiron machine, thrown into reverse in its first two starts this year, was tuned up in a light workout today for tomorrow's collision with the University of Virginia.

Last-minute changes brought four new players—all sophomores—into the starting lineup. Don Shockey, a 205-pounder, got the right halfback assignment when Bernie Ulman was sent to the University hospital in Baltimore with a throat ailment.

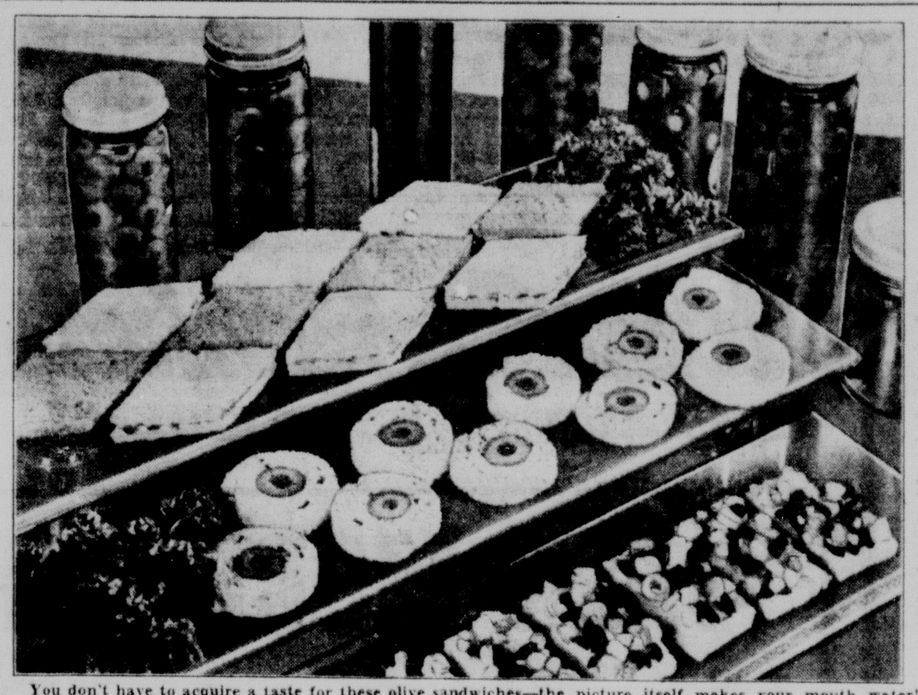
You'll Love All Kinds of Olives These Sandwich Ways



You don't have to acquire a taste for these olive sandwiches—the picture itself makes your mouth water! Stuffed olives and ripe olives pop right out of their jars in open and closed sandwich creations to simply solve your own particular refreshment problem in the easy ways you'll find elsewhere on this page.

With olives as a beginning, there is no end to the variety of appetizing sandwiches you can make to suit every taste for every occasion. There is such a wide variety of olives available that even before you start combining them for sandwich spreads you have a choice that would fill your grocer's shelf. There are ripe olives and green olives, and stuffed ripe olives and stuffed green olives in many sizes with many kinds of stuffings, so check up on your olive knowledge in sandwich-making. These recipes for ripe olive sandwiches and canapes will give you some ideas:

Pimento Cream Cheese Canapes

Butter thin slices of white or whole white bread. Spread with pimento cream cheese. Cut in finger lengths, triangles, or diamonds. Garnish with wedges of ripe olives. The makings for this emergency canape can be kept on the shelf ready for unexpected guests.

Chutney and Old English Cheese Canapes

Butter thin slices of bread. Spread with a mixture made by combining three parts Old English Cheese with one part chopped chutney. Cut in any desired shape. Garnish with wedges of ripe olives or sprinkle with chopped ripe olives. A "peppy" sandwich—good to tempt appetites—which may be used as an apetizer sandwich.

Anchovy-Cream Cheese and Ripe Olive Sandwich

Blend two packages cream cheese with one-fourth cup chopped anchovies. Butter thin slices of bread and spread with cheese mixture. Cut in any desired shape. Garnish with slices of pimento-stuffed ripe olives, and sprinkle with chopped chives. Wedges of ripe olives and strips of pimento may be substituted for pimento-stuffed ripe olives.

Pinwheel Olive Sandwiches

Cut loaf of fresh bread* lengthwise in slices one-fourth inch thick. Remove crusts. Spread each slice with softened butter and cover with mixture of cream cheese and chipped chives. Place a row of large stuffed olives, end to end, along narrow edge of the slices. Roll each slice as for jelly roll. Wrap tightly in waxed paper and chill. When ready to serve, slice one-fourth inch thick.

* If bread is not soft and fresh, lay each slice on damp cloth and let stand several minutes before rolling.

Pinwheel sandwiches store well. They may be made the day before if allowed to stand at room temperature a few minutes before serving. Use a long, very sharp knife to cut the bread.

Ham and Olive Sandwiches

Spread slices of white bread with creamed mixture made by blending two parts butter with one part prepared mustard. On half of the slices, place thin slices of baked ham and Swiss cheese. Sprinkle with chopped stuffed olives and top with remaining slices of bread. When ready to serve, cut in triangles.

A hearty sandwich that is good to serve with summer salad. If made in advance, wrap in waxed paper and a damp cloth. Store in covered container.

Veal and Olive Sandwich Filling

Mix equal amounts of sliced stuffed olives, diced celery, and diced cooked veal with mayonnaise. Season to taste. A good way to use a small amount of left-over cooked veal. A good summer luncheon or supper sandwich.

Open Olive Sandwich

Spread slices of bread with softened butter and cover with mayonnaise. On this arrange slices of Olives stuffed with pimento, celery, onion, or anchovy. Cut in triangles or any desired shape and serve immediately.

An emergency sandwich that can be made in a jiffy and from materials that are in every woman's cupboard. May be cut in small, fancy shapes and served as appetizer tidbits.

Richly-Flavored Desserts Will Put over Any Meal

It's cranberry pie, with a new decorative note of pastry cutouts and pineapple cubes.

By LOUISE BENNETT WEAVER
AP Feature Service Writer

A luscious fruit cobbler, its sparkling juices bubbling up — a baked pudding sending off a rich spicy aroma—a creamy, exotic pie topped by a frothy meringue.

Desserts like these can put across an otherwise skimpy meal, lift the family out of the food doldrums, and give guests something to remember you by.

Here in all its glory comes Peach Roll — spicy and juicy. To serve six, mix together 2 cups flour, 4 teaspoons baking powder, 2 tablespoons granulated sugar, 1 teaspoon cinnamon and ¼ teaspoon salt. Cut in 4 tablespoons of fat with a knife, slowly add enough milk (about ½ cup) to make a soft dough. Pat out the dough onto floured board. Spread with 3 tablespoons soft butter, 2 cups peaches (fresh or canned) blended into ½ cup light brown sugar, 1 teaspoon grated orange rind, ¼ teaspoon grated lemon rind and ¼ teaspoon salt. Roll up the dough quickly and place in buttered baking dish. Sprinkle top lightly with granulated sugar and dash of cinnamon. Bake 35 minutes in moderate oven. Serve this roll with plain or whipped cream, lemon or peach sauce or fresh fruit. A cup each of crushed pineapple and apricots makes a grand filling.

Men cheer Fruit Pudding. Cream ½ cup fat with cup of dark brown sugar. Add 2 eggs, ⅔ cup buttermilk or sour milk, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, ¼ teaspoon each of salt, cloves and nutmeg, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 2 cups flour and 1 teaspoon soda. Beat a minute and pour into shallow greased pan. Now for the topper. Mix ½ cup chopped raisins with 2 tablespoons chopped candied cherries, ½ cup chopped nuts, ¼ cup brown sugar and ¼ teaspoon cinnamon. Bake the pudding 25 minutes in a moderate oven. Serve warm topped with hard sauce, orange sauce or a little vanilla ice cream.

Caramel Pie is one of those desserts to remember. Blend 2 cups dark brown sugar with ⅔ cup flour, 1 teaspoon salt, 4 egg yolks and ½ cup caramel syrup (made by caramelizing sugar). Add 3 tablespoons butter and 3 cups milk. Cook in double boiler until mixture is thick and creamy. Stir frequently. Beat egg whites until stiff, lightly fold ¾ of them into the cooked mixture and pour into baked pie crust of rather large size. Add ⅓ cup sugar to the rest of the egg whites and beat until creamy. Fold in ⅓ cup shredded pecans or cashew nuts and roughly spread over the filling. Bake 15 minutes in a moderate oven. Cool and serve.

CRANBERRY PIE

3 cups raw cranberries
1¼ cups sugar
1½ tablespoons tapioca
½ teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon melted butter
Pie pastry
1 can (14 oz.) pineapple cubes

Slice cranberries, combine with sugar, tapioca, cinnamon, salt and melted butter. Let stand while preparing pastry. Fill pie shell with cranberry mixture; arrange pineapple cubes in circular design on top. Cut out fancy pastry shapes (hearts, crescents, diamonds) to decorate top of pie. Brush pastry with milk. Bake in hot oven (400 degrees F.) 15 minutes. Reduce heat to moderate temperature (350 degrees F.) and continue baking 30 min. longer.

Here's a Cornbread Recipe To Try

When you have the oven hot for baking potatoes or roasting a roast, it is a good idea to whip up a quick-bread to bake at the same time. This delicious cornbread calls for these ingredients: two cups corn meal, two cups sour milk, two eggs, four tablespoons butter or other fat, two tablespoons sugar, one and a half teaspoons salt, one teaspoon soda and one teaspoon baking powder. Sift the dry ingredients together, add the milk, fat and beaten eggs. Then turn into a greased shallow pan and bake in hot oven for about twenty-five to thirty minutes.

Use for Celery Tops

You can remove the odor of garlic from your hands by rubbing them thoroughly with the discarded tops of celery. If celery is not available, rub with a little soda and vinegar and wash in warm, soapy water.

Double Help

Pineapple juice does double duty when served this way: Slice bananas and cover them with pineapple juice. Chill and serve the juice gives extra flavor and keeps the bananas from darkening while standing.

Union Services To Open Monday At Frostburg

Preaching Mission To Be Held for Week at St. Paul's Lutheran

FROSTBURG, Oct. 11—A week of Preaching Mission services will begin at St. Paul's Lutheran church Monday evening, sponsored by the Ministerial Association of Frostburg and participated in by the Protestant churches of the community. The Rev. Wm. Chalmers Covert, D.D., L.L.D., of the Presbyterian Church in the United States, is to preach.

The services will be conducted by the following ministers:

Monday, the Rev. Irvin F. Kracke, president of the Ministerial Association and pastor of Zion Evangelical and Reformed church. Greetings will be extended by the Rev. Walter V. Simon, pastor of the host church. Tuesday, the Rev. W. V. Reese, of the Welsh Baptist church; Wednesday, the Rev. Edgar W. Beckett, of First Methodist church; Thursday, the Rev. C. B. Jones, of the English Baptist congregation; and Friday, the Rev. Newton D. Cosner, of the First Brethren Church.

The faculties of State Teachers college and of Beall high school have been invited to attend the Thursday evening service and hear Dr. Covert's address on "Keeping Spiritual Values in Education." It is understood that singers from one or both of these institutions will have part in the program of musical worship during the week, and more particularly Thursday evening, which is being promoted as "School Night."

The series of Preaching Mission services will be concluded with the services of Sunday evening, October 20, at First Methodist church, when Dr. Covert will deliver his last sermon, "A Knock at the Door."

The choirs furnishing the music for the services and the order of their appearance, will be as follows: Monday, the Methodist Vespers choir; Tuesday, St. Paul's Lutheran choir; Wednesday, State Teachers College Choristers; Thursday, Beall High School Glee Club; Friday, Benjamin F. McCrackin; and Sunday, 7:30 p. m., the Methodist Morning choir.

Mrs. Lillian Speir Stewart, Mrs. Edgar W. Beckett and Miss Mabel Myers will be the organists for the week, and Arthur Thomas will be in charge of all musical arrangements for the services.

Frostburg Briefs

Survivors of Mrs. Robert Strachan, who died yesterday at her home in Eckhart, include two children by her second marriage, Mrs. Mary Twigg, Eckhart, and Robert Strachan Jr., Washington, D. C.

The Ladies Auxiliary of John R. Fairgrieve Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, will go to Cumberland tomorrow (Saturday) evening to join with the Ladies Auxiliary of Henry Hart Post in a reception for Mrs. Elsie Kilroy, departmental president of the Western District of Maryland. The affair will be held in the Savoy building. Members are requested to go individually as there has been no arrangement for group transportation. Mrs. Lloyd Stevens, president, will head the Frostburg delegation.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis B. Frankenberry, 120 Ormond street, announce the birth of a daughter October 4 at Miners hospital. Mrs. Frankenberry is the former Miss Thelma Eichhorn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Eichhorn.

Workmen were engaged today laying an amiesite surface on the driveway in front of the new service station of Chalmers Livingstone, East Main street, and the Enoch Price garage and storage house, corner of Water and East Loo street.

Thomas Elias and Miss Cora Dunn, who came up from Westminster, to register Tuesday, returned to Western Maryland college where both are outstanding students. Mr. Elias was recently elected secretary-treasurer of the Student Council of the college.

No arrests have so far been made in connection with the robbery reported at Beall high school Wednesday night, when $5 in cash and $2 in postage stamps were taken. The robbers, evidently hid in the building until the janitor left, cut a hole in the door of the principal's office large enough to open it from the inside and secured their loot by forcing a door of a steel cabinet. The case is being investigated by State police.

Frostburg Personals

Mrs. Kate May, Altoona, Pa., returned to her home after visiting her cousin, Mrs. Virgie M Dennison, 28 Frost avenue. While here Mrs. May and Mrs. Dennison visited Mrs. H. W. Hasselrode, Ellerslie, over the week end.

Mrs. Harrison Lemmert is reported seriously ill at Memorial hospital, Cumberland.

Charter Issued

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Oct. 11 (AP)—The Secretary of State today issued a charter to the Oak Hill Motors, Inc., of Oak Hill, capitalized at $25,000. Incorporators were A. K. Canterbury and C. D. Crawfod of Beckley and L. C. Austin, Oak Hill.

"ACT OF GOD" BABY SAVED

Despite his wails, Walter Loy Ross, 14 days old, is doing fine in Woman's hospital, Baltimore, following a rare operation to remove an obstruction between his stomach and intestines. The mother, Mrs. Walter Ross, of Salt Lake City, Utah, believes Walter was saved by "an act of God." He was blessed, prior to the operation, by two elders of the Church of Latter Day Saints in Baltimore.

West Virginia Taxes Must Be Cut, Says GOP Candidate for Governor

PARKERSBURG, W. Va., Oct. 11. (AP)—D. Boone Dawson asserted tonight that if West Virginians are to meet successfully increased federal taxes "that must come," there must be a cut in state taxation, mentioning the automobile license and consumers sales taxes.

The Republican nominee for governor, appearing at a Wood county rally, enunciated in his speech a six-point governmental program and also declared that stabilization of relationships between capital and labor is one problem which must be solved.

"The per capita cost of our government in West Virginia," Dawson told his audience, "has doubled in ten years. If the people of our state are to meet, without impoverishment and distress, the increased federal taxation that must come, they should be prepared for this additional burden by a reduction in state taxation.

"It is for this reason that I propose that every West Virginia motorist be permitted to buy his license tag for $10 and that the consumers sales tax be removed from the table of every West Virginian (through exemptions of basic foodstuffs).

"This can be done without the curtailment of any essential function of the state government, and I pledge myself to the attainment of that purpose with sincerity, faith and determination."

Illegal Hunting Costs Pair $44

Moorefield Justice Fines Men Heavily for Hunting out of Season

MOOREFIELD, W. Va., Oct. 10—District Game Protector John Shanholtz reports the arrest and conviction of Garnet Heishman and Harper Heishman, Perry, W. Va., on charges of possession of squirrels before hunting season.

The men were each fined $44 and costs by Justice G. H. Simon. The arrest was made by Deputy Game Protector Clarence Wilkins Sunday evening.

To Open Headquarters

Ralph J. Bean, executive chairman of the Hardy county Democratic Committee announced that county Democratic headquarters will open Saturday in the Hotel McNeill.

The headquarters will be open from 9 o'clock each morning until 8 o'clock each evening and longer on Saturdays. Badges, stickers, and information will be available along with campaign literature.

Hunters Warned

District Forester H. E. Hutter requests all hunters to use caution when in the woods for the opening of the hunting season Monday. More than half the fires in the state were set by carelessness in disposing of cigaret and cigar butts and not putting out fires.

Marriage Revealed

Miss Hola Hott, daughter of Mrs. Edna Hott and the late Sheriff Don E. Hott, became the bride of Frederick T. Clark in Winchester, Va., Saturday. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Mr. McKay at the Methodist parsonage. They were accompanied by the bride's mother, Mrs. D. E. Hott, and Mrs. Marion Deahl.

Clark is athletic coach at Moorefield high school and is a son of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Clark of Ridgeley. Clark is a graduate of Potomac State and Davis and Elkins colleges.

After a short trip the couple will make their home for the present with Mrs. Hott.

Sawdust Fire Doused

Fire whistles at the J. Natwick lumber plant awakened Moorefield citizens early Thursday morning, when a fire was discovered in the sawdust near the engine room. The alarm brought employes who were successful in putting out the blaze.

Senator Neely To Make Tour Of Nearby W. Va.

South Branch Valley on Itinerary; Other News from Petersburg

PETERSBURG, Oct. 11. — The Democratic State Publicity Committee has announced that Senator M. M. Neely, Democratic candidate for governor, will make a tour of this section next week and will speak as follows: Monday night, Charles Town; Tuesday afternoon, Romney; Tuesday night, Martinsburg; Wednesday afternoon Moorefield; Wednesday night, Keyser; Thursday afternoon, Franklin; Thursday night, Webster Springs; Saturday afternoon, Philippi; and Saturday night, Grafton. He will stop here for a short time.

Petersburg Briefs

A special feeder cattle and calf sale will be held here tomorrow (Saturday) 12 by the Petersburg Livestock Sales Company, Incorporated. J. R. Dawkins, manager, reports that 250 quality calves, yearlings and two-year-olds will be offered for sale. The stockyards are receiving cattle today and will continue up until Saturday noon. The sale will start at 1:30 p. m.

County Superintendent C. P. Hott announces that all Grant county schools will be closed Wednesday, October 16, which is Conscription Day, and registrars will use several school buildings for headquarters.

The Petersburg Fire Company, at the weekly assemblies Wednesday of the Petersburg graded and high schools, gave fire demonstrations. The graded school gave in their assembly a play dramatizing "Safety From Fire." Fire Prevention Week is being observed in Grant county, and all schools have been having fire drills, practicing rapid movement and most convenient and orderly methods of vacating the buildings should fire occur. Kiwanis members this evening and Fire Prevention as the theme for their program and Hugh Allen, president of the local fire company, gave a talk.

All local banks will be closed tomorrow which is Columbus Day, a national holiday. No business firms will close, however.

Petersburg Personals

Mrs. Garnet Reed and son, Grafton, are visiting Mrs. Reed's mother, Mrs. Kate Harness.

Mrs. Ernest Thrush, a member of the Moorefield Order of the Eastern Star, returned yesterday from attending the state meeting held in Wheeling Wednesday.

Born Thursday to Mr. and Mrs. Ray Rohrbaugh, Jordan Run, a daughter.

Longer Hunting Season Demanded By Sportsmen of Frostburg Area

Resolution Calls for Changes in Squirrel and Rabbit Seasons

FROSTBURG, Oct. 11.—Protesting because of their inability to hunt squirrels at the present time while thousands of the animals are roaming the woods, about 150 hunters from Allegany and Garrett counties met last evening at Firemen's hall and, after a lengthy discussion and the presentation of a petition with nearly 500 names, went on record with a resolution favoring a squirrel season from September 15 to October 15 and a rabbit season from November 1 to December 31.

Former County Commissioner A. Charles Stewart presided at the meeting, which was attended by Lester Reed and Jonathan Sleeman, members of the House of Delegates; Joseph A. Minke, regional game warden; Francis Ruge, local game warden, and J. Wesley Kelley, secretary of the Western Maryland Outdoor Life Association and a member of the advisory committee to the Upland Game and Inland Fish Commission. William Biddington, Finzel, served as secretary.

Kelley Defends Present Season

In the course of a lengthy address Mr. Kelley spoke in defense of the short hunting season, which was opposed by practically all other speakers. He pointed out that from September 1 to December 31 Maryland hunters are allowed 108 days to roam the woods and shoot various kinds of game while Pennsylvania allows only twenty-six days, Virginia and West Virginia thirty to thirty-five days and Delaware, thirty days.

He agreed that some legislation should be passed to empower the Upland Game and Inland Fish Commission to lengthen the hunting season when game, as in the case of squirrels this year, abounds so plentifully. He declared that the commission should be given discretionary power to lengthen the season as well as the power they now have to shorten it. Mr. Kelley advocated the organization of a sportsmen's club, particularly in Frostburg and the larger towns of the county through which to present the demands of Maryland hunters to the state legislature.

In this connection he announced that a sportsmen's dinner, in celebration of the fourth anniversary of the Western Maryland Outdoor Life Federation, would be held Friday, October 25, at the Jockey Club, Cumberland and extended an invitation to those present to make reservations.

Discrimination Charged

The chief complaint of the majority of hunters was that a state license for hunting costs $5.25 and a county license costs $1.25. In order to hunt in both Garrett and Allegany counties, hunters must buy a state license which allows them, under the present law, to shoot squirrels, rabbits and pheasants from November 1 to 31 only, while in Washington county hunters are permitted to hunt squirrels, rabbits and pheasants from September 15 to October 15 and again from November 15 to December 31.

This arrangement, according to many of the speakers, is a discrimination against Allegany and Garrett county sportsmen in favor of Washington county sportsmen. Objection was also raised against the $5.25 state license, the sentiment of most of the speakers being to abolish the county license of $1.25 and require all hunters to take out a state license at a cost of $2.50.

Among those who took part in the discussion were Wilbur Ewing, Klondike; Russell Aldridge, National; Harry Skidmore and Mr. Schiver, Borden Mines; John Armstrong, Rawlings; Alvin Loar, Vale Summit; Eugene Delaney, George Walters and William Filsinger, Eckhart; John Miller, William Robinette, William Skidmore, Leslie Hendley, Melvin Lemmert, Evan Lloyd and Paul Carpenter, Frostburg.

Want Longer Season

While the speakers differed in some minor details of the subjects discussed ,they were all in favor of a longer and earlier season and also in favor of having the Upland Game and Inland Fish Commission given discretionary power by the legislature to control the hunting season.

Before the meeting concluded, short addresses were made by members of the legislature and Mr. Minke, the latter answering questions pertaining to dogs, the distribution of game and fish and other matters brought up at the meeting.

It was decided to hold another meeting here of all the hunters of this section Friday evening, October 18, at 8 o'clock in Firemen's hall, when permanent officeres will be elected and other business transacted.

Elementary Schools To Open in Fayette

FAYETTEVILLE, W. Va., Oct. 11 (AP)—Elementary school children in Fayette county, whose classes were delayed by the infantile paralysis epidemic, will start next Monday, school officials announced today. High school students began classes this week.

A ban on attendance at theatres and other gatherings still will apply to children under six years old.

Squirrels So Numerous They Strip Pear Tree

FROSTBURG, Oct. 11—Walter Eichhorn, one of the speakers at the hunters' meeting last evening at the Firemen's hall, stated that Horace Layman, Frostburg farmer, told him that squirrels were so numerous in this locality they were devouring the pears from a tree near the farmhouse at Layman's farm, just outside of town.

Mr. Eichhorn, who is a popular member of the Frostburg police force and one of the community's most noted sportsmen, stated that in coursing dogs years ago, one had to go as far away as John's Rock, four miles from town, before a dog could locate a fox. Now, he said, you need go only as far as Strube's hill just beyond the city limits to chase a fox almost any day.

500 Party Held At Mt. Savage

MT. SAVAGE, Oct. 11.—The Girls' Friendly club of St. George's church sponsored a 500 party last night in the parish hall. Prizes were won by Miss Margaret Kenny, Miss Irma Uhl, Charles Johnson and the Rev. Percy C. Adams. Refreshments were served.

Odd Fellows Buy 743-Acre Tract In Somerset

Purchase of Recreation Area, Including Deer Valley, Announced

MEYERSDALE, Pa., Oct. 11.—John McLeod, president of the I. O. O. F. Recreation Center, Inc., announces the purchase of a 743-acre tract of land in southern Somerset county for a recreation center for the uses of the Odd Fellows and Rebekahs, representing these organizations in southwestern Pennsylvania.

The tract, which is located about ten miles south of Meyersdale, near Mt. Davis, the highest point of altitude in the state, includes the famous Deer Valley, which, aside from playgrounds already established, is noted for its hunting and fishing preserves and facilities for winter sports.

W. R. Snyder, of Meyersdale, has been designated to direct all winter activities, and all other arrangements will be completed at a meeting of the board of directors to be held in the Odd Fellows lodge room, Salisbury, Friday, October 18.

Lighting Plan Approved

There was a fair attendance at the citizens meeting held in the high school auditorium last evening for the purpose of obtaining the reaction of the taxpayers to the proposed change in the street lighting system.

Plans and specifications, with approximate costs, were presented by James L. Wilson, chairman of the light committee of the borough council. John Layton, president of the Junior Association of Commerce, and R. W. Ross, district engineer of the Pennsylvania Electric Company. Brief talks were made by Attorney Frank Lucente, Alexander Stephens, and R. H. Philson, town treasurer. Councilman J. L. Wilson presided.

Judging from the sentiment in the rising vote at the conclusion of the meeting, the citizens unanimously favor the proposed modernization of the street lighting system.

Marriage Announced

Miss Gertrude Deist, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Deist, of nearby Glade City, and John Augustine, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Augustine, New Centerville, were united in marriage Sunday noon at Zion Evangelical and Reformed church, Cumberland, by the pastor, the Rev. Leo D. Horn.

Attendants were Miss Betty Hay, maid of honor; Harold Himes, best man, and Miss Hazel Forrest, bridesmaid. Following the ceremony a wedding dinner was served at the bride's home. Union Services To Open Monday At Frostburg

Preaching Mission To Be Held for Week at St. Paul's Lutheran

FROSTBURG, Oct. 11—A week of Preaching Mission services will begin at St. Paul's Lutheran church Monday evening, sponsored by the Ministerial Association of Frostburg and participated in by the Protestant churches of the community. The Rev. Wm. Chalmers Covert, D.D., L.L.D., of the Presbyterian Church in the United States, is to preach.

The services will be conducted by the following ministers:

Monday, the Rev. Irvin F. Kracke, president of the Ministerial Association and pastor of Zion Evangelical and Reformed church. Greetings will be extended by the Rev. Walter V. Simon, pastor of the host church. Tuesday, the Rev. W. V. Reese, of the Welsh Baptist church; Wednesday, the Rev. Edgar W. Beckett, of First Methodist church; Thursday, the Rev. C. B. Jones, of the English Baptist congregation; and Friday, the Rev. Newton D. Cosner, of the First Brethren church.

The faculties of State Teachers college and of Beall high school have been invited to attend the Thursday evening service and hear Dr. Covert's address on "Keeping Spiritual Values in Education." It is understood that singers from one or both of these institutions will have part in the program of musical worship during the week, and more particularly Thursday evening, which is being promoted as "School Night."

The series of Preaching Mission services will be concluded with the services of Sunday evening, October 20, at First Methodist church, when Dr. Covert will deliver his last sermon, "A Knock at the Door."

The choirs furnishing the music for the services and the order of their appearance, will be as follows: Monday, the Methodist Vespers choir; Tuesday, St. Paul's Lutheran choir; Wednesday, State Teachers College Choristers; Thursday, Beall High School Glee Club; Friday, Benjamin F. McCrackin; and Sunday, 7:30 p. m., the Methodist Morning choir.

Mrs. Lillian Speir Stewart, Mrs. Edgar W. Beckett and Miss Mabel Myers will be the organists for the week, and Arthur Thomas will be in charge of all musical arrangements for the services.

The mother, Mrs. Walter Ross, of Salt Lake City, Utah, believes Walter was saved by "an act of God." He was blessed, prior to the operation, by two elders of the Church of Latter Day Saints in Baltimore.

West Virginia Taxes Must Be Cut, Says GOP Candidate for Governor

PARKERSBURG, W. Va., Oct. 11. (AP)—D. Boone Dawson asserted tonight that if West Virginians are to meet successfully increased federal taxes "that must come," there must be a cut in state taxation, mentioning the automobile license and consumers sales taxes.

The Republican nominee for governor, appearing at a Wood county rally, enunciated in his speech a six-point governmental program and also declared that stabilization of relationships between capital and labor is one problem which must be solved.

"The per capita cost of our government in West Virginia," Dawson told his audience, "has doubled in ten years. If the people of our state are to meet, without impoverishment and distress, the increased federal taxation that must come, they should be prepared for this additional burden by a reduction in state taxation.

"It is for this reason that I propose that every West Virginia motorist be permitted to buy his license tag for $10 and that the consumers sales tax be removed from the table of every West Virginian (through exemptions of basic foodstuffs).

"This can be done without the curtailment of any essential function of the state government, and I pledge myself to the attainment of that purpose with sincerity, faith and determination."

Longer Hunting Season Demanded By Sportsmen of Frostburg Area

Resolution Calls for Changes in Squirrel and Rabbit Seasons

FROSTBURG, Oct. 11.—Protesting because of their inability to hunt squirrels at the present time while thousands of the animals are roaming the woods, about 150 hunters from Allegany and Garrett counties met last evening at Firemen's hall and, after a lengthy discussion and the presentation of a petition with nearly 500 names, went on record with a resolution favoring a squirrel season from September 15 to October 15 and a rabbit season from November 1 to December 31.

Former County Commissioner A. Charles Stewart presided at the meeting, which was attended by Lester Reed and Jonathan Sleeman, members of the House of Delegates; Joseph A. Minke, regional game warden; Francis Ruge, local game warden, and J. Wesley Kelley, secretary of the Western Maryland Outdoor Life Association and a member of the advisory committee to the Upland Game and Inland Fish Commission. William Biddington, Finzel, served as secretary.

Kelley Defends Present Season

In the course of a lengthy address Mr. Kelley spoke in defense of the short hunting season, which was opposed by practically all other speakers. He pointed out that from September 1 to December 31 Maryland hunters are allowed 108 days to roam the woods and shoot various kinds of game while Pennsylvania allows only twenty-six days, Virginia and West Virginia thirty to thirty-five days and Delaware, thirty days.

He agreed that some legislation should be passed to empower the Upland Game and Inland Fish Commission to lengthen the hunting season when game, as in the case of squirrels this year, abounds so plentifully. He declared that the commission should be given discretionary power to lengthen the season as well as the power they now have to shorten it. Mr. Kelley advocated the organization of a sportsmen's club, particularly in Frostburg and the larger towns of the county through which to present the demands of Maryland hunters to the state legislature.

In this connection he announced that a sportsmen's dinner, in celebration of the fourth anniversary of the Western Maryland Outdoor Life Federation, would be held Friday, October 25, at the Jockey Club, Cumberland and extended an invitation to those present to make reservations.

Discrimination Charged

The chief complaint of the majority of hunters was that a state license for hunting costs $5.25 and a county license costs $1.25. In order to hunt in both Garrett and Allegany counties, hunters must buy a state license which allows them, under the present law, to shoot squirrels, rabbits and pheasants from November 1 to 31 only, while in Washington county hunters are permitted to hunt squirrels, rabbits and pheasants from September 15 to October 15 and again from November 15 to December 31.

This arrangement, according to many of the speakers, is a discrimination against Allegany and Garrett county sportsmen in favor of Washington county sportsmen. Objection was also raised against the $5.25 state license, the sentiment of most of the speakers being to abolish the county license of $1.25 and require all hunters to take out a state license at a cost of $2.50.

Among those who took part in the discussion were Wilbur Ewing, Klondike; Russell Aldridge, National; Harry Skidmore and Mr. Schiver, Borden Mines; John Armstrong, Rawlings; Alvin Loar, Vale Summit; Eugene Delaney, George Walters and William Filsinger, Eckhart; John Miller, William Robinette, William Skidmore, Leslie Hendley, Melvin Lemmert, Evan Lloyd and Paul Carpenter, Frostburg.

Want Longer Season

While the speakers differed in some minor details of the subjects discussed, they were all in favor of a longer and earlier season and also in favor of having the Upland Game and Inland Fish Commission given discretionary power by the legislature to control the hunting season.

Before the meeting concluded, short addresses were made by members of the legislature and Mr. Minke, the latter answering questions pertaining to dogs, the distribution of game and fish and other matters brought up at the meeting.

It was decided to hold another meeting here of all the hunters of this section Friday evening, October 18, at 8 o'clock in Firemen's hall, when permanent officeres will be elected and other business transacted.

Elementary Schools To Open in Fayette

FAYETTEVILLE, W. Va., Oct. 11 (AP)—Elementary school children in Fayette county, whose classes were delayed by the infantile paralysis epidemic, will start next Monday, school officials announced today. High school students began classes this week.

A ban on attendance at theatres and other gatherings still will apply to children under six years old.

Squirrels So Numerous They Strip Pear Tree

FROSTBURG, Oct. 11—Walter Eichhorn, one of the speakers at the hunters' meeting last evening at the Firemen's hall, stated that Horace Layman, Frostburg farmer, told him that squirrels were so numerous in this locality they were devouring the pears from a tree near the farmhouse at Layman's farm, just outside of town.

Mr. Eichhorn, who is a popular member of the Frostburg police force and one of the community's most noted sportsmen, stated that in coursing dogs years ago, one had to go as far away as John's Rock, four miles from town, before a dog could locate a fox. Now, he said, you need go only as far as Strubes hill just beyond the city limits to chase a fox almost any day.

Odd Fellows Buy 743-Acre Tract In Somerset

Purchase of Recreation Area, Including Deer Valley, Announced

MEYERSDALE, Pa., Oct. 11—John McLeod, president of the I. O. O. F. Recreation Center, Inc., announces the purchase of a 743-acre tract of land in southern Somerset county for a recreation center for the uses of the Odd Fellows and Rebekahs, representing these organizations in southwestern Pennsylvania.

The tract, which is located about ten miles south of Meyersdale, near Mt. Davis, the highest point of altitude in the state, includes the famous Deer Valley, which, aside from playgrounds already established, is noted for its hunting and fishing preserves and facilities for winter sports.

W. R. Snyder, of Meyersdale, has been designated to direct all winter activities, and all other arrangements will be completed at a meeting of the board of directors to be held in the Odd Fellows lodge room, Salisbury, Friday, October 18.

Lighting Plan Approved

There was a fair attendance at the citizens meeting held in the high school auditorium last evening for the purpose of obtaining the reaction of the taxpayers to the proposed change in the street lighting system.

Plans and specifications, with approximate costs, were presented by James L. Wilson, chairman of the light committee of the borough council. John Layton, president of the Junior Association of Commerce, and R. W. Ross, district engineer of the Pennsylvania Electric Company. Brief talks were made by Attorney Frank Lucente, Alexander Stephens, and R. H. Philson, town treasurer. Councilman J. L. Wilson presided.

Judging from the sentiment in the rising vote at the conclusion of the meeting, the citizens unanimously favor the proposed modernization of the street lighting system.

Marriage Announced

Miss Gertrude Deist, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Deist, of nearby Glade City, and John Augustine, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Augustine, New Centerville, were united in marriage Sunday noon at Zion Evangelical and Reformed church, Cumberland, by the pastor, the Rev. Leo D. Horn.

Attendants were Miss Betty Hay, maid of honor; Harold Himes, best man, and Miss Hazel Forrest, bridesmaid. Following the ceremony a wedding dinner was served at the bride's home. After their return from their honeymoon tour of the New York World's Fair, Mr. and Mrs. Augustine will reside temporarily at the home of the bride.

Officers Elected

At the regular meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association, a reorganization was effected by the election of Michael Hady, president; Mrs. George Weyer, vice-president; Mrs. W. Cedric Miller, treasurer, and Mrs. Roy Commons, secretary.

Bedford-Somerset County Firemen Meet at Hyndman

Importance and Value of Fire Prevention Work Cited in Talks

HYNDMAN, Pa., Oct. 11—The monthly meeting of the Somerset-Bedford County Firemen's Association was held in Hyndman last night in conjunction with the quarterly meeting of the Ladies Auxiliary of the association.

Walter D. Weise, president of the association, presided. After a business meeting of the association and the auxiliary, the two bodies joined for a dinner and social period, served by the Hyndman Volunteer Fire Department in Junior Order hall.

About 250 members of the two organizations were in attendance. At the firemen's meeting, W. K. Walker, Somerset county commissioner, explained the set-up of the draft boards for registration Wednesday and also explained methods of registration. He asked the co-operation of all fire companies in carrying out details of the registration.

Charles R. Dilling, president of the Cambria County Firemen's Association, gave a short talk, and J. Paul Gorsuch, representative of the State Department of Labor and Industry, spoke on the inspection work of the department from the viewpoint of fire prevention, giving statistics as to the work being done by the department, as well as the work being done by firemen in co-operation with the department. He extended the full support of the state department in the inspection work of the firemen. Representatives of sixteen company members of the association were in attendance, with four companies having no representative present. No representatives were present from Confluence or Rockwood because of a serious fire at Confluence early Thursday evening.

At the auxiliary meeting, eighty-four members, representing ten units of the association, were present. It was decided to hold a special meeting at Hyndman October 23 for the purpose of organizing an auxiliary here. This meeting will be held at Firemen's hall and will be an open meeting. All Hyndman women are invited to attend.

At a joint meeting following the business sessions, Paul W. Newman, manager of The Travelers Insurance Company of Pittsburgh, spoke on "Fire Prevention." Mr. Newman emphasized fire prevention from a life-saving angle, rather than the monetary savings, pointing out that from 10,000 to 15,000 deaths occur from fire annually, that many of them occur in the home, and that many of them are preventable. He gave statistics on fires, pointing out that fire prevention work during the past twenty-five years had been very successful and was responsible in many ways for the reduction of fire insurance rates in this country from an average of $1.14 per $100 in 1914 to an average of $.86 per $100 in 1938. He emphasized the necessity of education of the children of school age in fire prevention work and spoke of several specific instances where fire prevention education in the schools had saved lives. Mr. Newman's talk was addressed mainly to the ladies, who, he said, were familiar with, and responsible for the conditions around the home, and who were the ones who could remedy existing fire hazards.

Following the dinner, motion pictures of the annual convention in Salisbury in July were shown.

Hyndman Briefs

Several property-owners are making improvements to their real estate. George Stair is building a new porch to his Church street home, and Shannon Burkett is having a new cement walk laid along the entire hundred foot frontage of his two lots on Schellsburg street. The actual labor of constructing the walk, is being done under auspices of the Works Progress Administration.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Logsdon received word last night of the death of their brother-in-law, Charles Clites, at Memorial hospital, where he had been a patient since September 29. He was 65 years old and a retired B. & O. employe.

Hyndman Personals

Miss Marie Burkholder, Johnstown, is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Victor Atwell.

Ambrose Shaffer, Fairhope, is visiting his brothers, Allan and Bernard Shaffer.

The Women's Christian Temperance Union will meet at the home of its president, Mrs. James Ahlburn, Friday, November 1.

Mr. and Mrs. V. B. Atwell were Wednesday visitors in Johnstown.

David C. Van Voorhis and sister, Phyllis Elaine, were business callers at Bedford yesterday where the latter was successful in passing her examination for automobile operator's license.

Mrs. William Burkett will leave Saturday to visit Mr. and Mrs. William Knipple, Washington, Pa.

Rally Day will be observed in the Bible school at Central Christian church at both worship services.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl McDonald, Mill street, returned Wednesday from Washington.

Grantsville Girl Feted on Birthday

GRANTSVILLE, Oct. 11—Helen Stahl, eleven-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Stahl, was the honored guest at a birthday party given by her mother last night at their home at Casselman, three miles south of there. After an evening spent at games and other diversions, refreshments were enjoyed. The large birthday cake which was a feature of the occasion, was attractively decorated in colors of pink and yellow and was topped with lighted candles. The young honoree received numerous useful and beautiful gifts.

Among those in attendance were her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Simon Resh; Helen Beachy, Lois Noel, Ruth Butler, Ethelene Yaste, Mary Resh, Junior Beachy, Geraldine Carder, Warder Sterling, Evelyn Yaste, Helen Resh, Ruth Resh, Mary Katheryn Miller, Phyllis Resh, Helen June Beachy, Ada Simpkins and Betty Resh.

Grantsville Briefs

Serafim Strelkoff, a Russian singer, will appear in a concert at the high school auditorium at 1:30 o'clock Monday afternoon. Mr. Sterlkoff, a bass baritone, comes to Grantsville through the Antrim Bureau of Philadelphia, the program being sponsored by the school.

Thirteen members of the Grantsville Fire Company went to Kingwood, W. Va., last evening to participate in the festivities there. It was noted as rather a coincidence that they were also thirteenth in the line of march. Several members of the company were forced to forego the trip at the last moment when the Grantsville Fire truck was summoned to assist in fighting a blaze at Confluence.

Principal Frank J. Getty announced this morning that the teachers of the local school would be available Wednesday afternoon to assist the registrars in handling the draft registration. A half-holiday has been declared at the schools Wednesday so they may be free for this work.

The First State Bank will be closed tomorrow (Saturday) in observance of Columbus Day, a legal holiday in this state. The post office and other business establishments, however, will remain open as usual.

The last meeting of the Garrett County Sportsmen's Association before the opening of the hunting season is to be held at 7:30 o'clock Monday evening. The City Hall at Oakland has been chosen as the place of meeting.

Three anniversaries are to be observed at St. John's Evangelical and Reformed church Sunday morning at 10:30 o'clock, according to an announcement made by the pastor, the Rev. Alfred J. Forry. The occasion is the 250th anniversary of the Reformed church in the United States; the 100th anniversary of the Evangelical Synod, and the fiftieth anniversary of the Hungarian Reformed church. The work of all three organizations is now united in the Evangelical and Reformed church. Sunday school will be held at the usual hour, 9:30 a. m.

There will be no services at Mt. Zion Methodist church Sunday. This church has been undergoing some much needed repairs and the work of painting and repapering the interior has not been completed. It is for this reason Sunday morning's services were cancelled.

Grantsville Personals

Col. P. A. Connolly, New York City, is the guest of Clyde J. Miller. Mrs. Connolly has been here for the past two weeks.

David Broadwater, Baltimore, is here for a week-end visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Nevin U. Broadwater.

Mrs. Fred Livengood has returned from Wilmington, Pa., where she spent several days attending the Women's Missionary convention.

Fire Department At Parsons Seeks Junior Members

Volunteer Company Plans Campaign To Purchase New Equipment

PARSONS, W. Va., Oct. 11—Applications are being received by the Parsons Volunteer Fire Department for membership in the Junior Firemen's organization being sponsored by the senior department. Requirements are that applicants must be between the ages of 16 and 21 and must live in the city limits.

The firemen are making a drive to raise money to purchase new equipment such as an inhalator-resuscitator. They also contemplate the purchase of a flood light system and a light fire truck in addition to the large truck now owned by the company.

Republicans Rally

Frank E. Parrack, Kingwood, and Judge Summers H. Sharp, Marlinton, Republican candidate for Congress, spoke at the Republican rally held Thursday evening in the Thomas high school gyninasium. The rally was the first Republican rally held in Thomas for a number of years, and was attended by approximately 300 persons. The address of welcome was made by Wayne K. Pritt, chairman of the Tucker county Republican executive committee, who introduced Attorney William M. Harman, chairman of the rally. A short talk was made by Senator A. L. Helmick, and county candidates were introduced to the audience. They included E. A. Bonner, for assessor; J. Plummer Baker and E. F. Creegan, nominees for board of education; C. S. Whitman and L. J. Griffith, nominees for justice of the peace of Fairfax district; Ed Miller Jr., for county commissioner and Cleon Raese, nominee for House of Delegates. Several numbers were played by Patsy's band, Thomas.

Committees Named

Twenty-five members of the Woman's Division of Christian Service of First Street Methodist church met Thursday evening at the church, with the president Mrs. D. W. Thurston, presiding. Seventeen new members were admitted into the organization. The installation of officers was postponed until the next meeting, to be held at the church October 24.

The following committees were appointed: Membership, Miss Nell Grieder, Mrs. Isabel Blackburn, Mrs. Alice Stalnaker; finance, Mrs. D. W. Thurston, Mrs. Ethel Dickson, Mrs. Anna Lake, Miss Georgia Repair, Mrs. Faith Lipscomb; program, Mrs. Kate Grieder, Mrs. Anna Lake, Miss Georgia Repair, Mrs. Faith Lipscomb; fellowship, Mrs. Zella Kite, Miss Ruby Grieder, Mrs. W. W. Myers, Mrs. Wesley Cross, Mrs. Madge Boyles; publicity, Mrs. Margaret Repair, Mrs. A. A. Dorsey and Mrs. Minnie Young.

Convention Today

The twenty-seventh annual convention of the Central District, Federation of Women's clubs of West Virginia, will be held in the high school gymnasium at Thomas tomorrow (Saturday).

Registration will begin at 9 o'clock, and the meeting will open at 10 o'clock.

An interesting program is being planned, highlighted by Dr. Mary Harris' talk, "I Knew Them in Prison!". Dr. Harris is superintendent of the Federal Reformatory for Women at Alderson, W. Va. The state president, Mrs. George McAlpine and other officers will attend.

Parsons Briefs

At a meeting of the Official Board of the former Methodist Episcopal Church, South, located on Central avenue, the name "Wesley" was adopted and the church will be known in the future as the "Wesley Methodist church". The Rev. Karl M. Scott is pastor.

Democratic rallies will be held at the St. George school house Wednesday, October 16. A big rally is scheduled for Thomas Thursday night, October 17. Prominent speakers will be at both rallies as well as local candidates. The meeting time is set for 8 o'clock.

Crowd of 10,000 Sees Governor Crown Queen of Buckwheat Fete

KINGWOOD, W. Va., Oct. 11 (AP)—Before a crowd of 10,000 gathered to do honor to the substantial and toothsome buckwheat cake Governor Homer A. Holt today crowned winsome Bertha Benson as queen of Preston county's annual Buckwheat Festival.

The Bruceton Mills girl, reigning as Queen Ceres III, will be joined on the throne tomorrow by "King Buckwheat" who will be chosen in the morning.

Circuit Judge A. G. Hughes will crown the king, and Commissioner of Agriculture J. B. McLaughlin will present him with a cup as the champion of buckwheat growers in this highland county.

While thousands passed through streets of the town celebrating the harvesting of its biggest commercial crop, buckwheat cakes were served in every home and restaurant.

School children of Preston paraded for the queen this afternoon, and Kingwood and Arthurdale high schools battled in the annual Buckwheat Bowl football game.

The festival will end tomorrow after a farmers' parade, musical entertainment and a horse show.

Beall Soccer Crew Downs Oakland 9-3

Oakland, Oct. 11.—Beall High's soccer team care here from Frostburg this week and handed Coach Thomas Balcom's Oakland High booters a 9-3 setback to remain undefeated.

The visitors were held in check during the first half, which ended 1-1, but in the third quarter, Beall clicked for six points to Oakland's two and then added two more counters in the final session.

Sparking the Frostburg attack was Ritchie with two field goals and Middleton with one double-decker and three of three penalties. Hinebaugh and Mason shared Oakland's tallies. The lineups:

Lawyers Agrue Ashby and Berger Cases Today

Judges To Hear Final Arguments in Garrett County Circuit Court

OAKLAND, Oct. 11—Arguments of defense attorneys and the state's attorney in two cases now before Chief Judge D. Lindley Sloan and Associate Judge W. A. Huster will be heard tomorrow in Circuit court, after which the court will probably render its verdicts.

Testimony was completed last Friday in the trial of Jesse J. Ashby Jr., treasurer of the county, who is charged with having fraudulently obtained from the county commissioners the sum of $6,099.11. Ashby denied the charges.

Arguments of attorneys will also be heard in the case against Dr. Clift P. Berger on a morals charge. Testimony was completed last Thursday. He has also denied the charges.

Plans Completed

Final estimates and plans for the construction of the community building were approved by the Oakland council at its regular meeting this week. They have been sent to WPA officials in Washington for their final approval on disapproval.

According to the present cost sheets, the estimate has reached a total of $125,722, but it was explained this could be substantially reduced through the purchase of certain materials at a price much below that quoted on the cost sheets.

The federal government's share will run about $94,792 and the city's share about $30,930. It is this latter amount the town officials say they can reduce about twenty-five cent, making the town's share than has been appropriated for Citizens some time ago voted whether or not to issue bo amounting to $25,000 for the re struction of the building and question passed about four to o

Importance and Value of Fire Prevention Work Cited in Talks

HYNDMAN, Pa., Oct. 11—The monthly meeting of the Somerset-Bedford County Firemen's Association was held in Hyndman last night in conjunction with the quarterly meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the association.

Walter D. Weise, president of the association, presided. After a business meeting of the association and the auxiliary, the two bodies joined for a dinner and social period, served by the Hyndman Volunteer Fire Department in Junior Order hall.

About 250 members of the two organizations were in attendance. At the firemen's meeting, W. K. Walker, Somerset county commissioner, explained the set-up of the draft boards for registration Wednesday and also explained methods of registration. He asked the co-operation of all fire companies in carrying out details of the registration.

Charles R. Dilling, president of the Cambria County Firemen's Association, gave a short talk, and J. Paul Gorsuch, representative of the State Department of Labor and Industry, spoke on the inspection work of the department from the viewpoint of fire prevention, giving statistics as to the work being done by the department, as well as the work being done by firemen in co-operation with the department. He extended the full support of the state department in the inspection work of the firemen. Representatives of sixteen company members of the association were in attendance, with four companies having no representative present. No representatives were present from Confluence or Rockwood because of a serious fire at Confluence early Thursday evening.

At the auxiliary meeting, eighty-four members, representing ten units of the association, were present. It was decided to hold a special meeting at Hyndman October 25 for the purpose of organizing an auxiliary here. This meeting will be held at Firemen's hall and will be an open meeting. All Hyndman women are invited to attend.

At a joint meeting following the business sessions, Paul W. Newman, manager of The Travelers Insurance Company of Pittsburgh, spoke on "Fire Prevention." Mr. Newman emphasized fire prevention from a life-saving angle, rather than the monetary savings, pointing out that from 10,000 to 15,000 deaths occur from fire annually, that many of them occur in the home, and that many of them are preventable. He gave statistics on fires, pointing out that fire prevention work during the past twenty-five years had been very successful and was responsible in many ways for the reduction of fire insurance rates in this country from an average of $1.14 per $100 in 1914 to an average of $.86 per $100 in 1938. He emphasized the necessity of education of the children of school age in fire prevention work and spoke of several specific instances where fire prevention education in the schools had saved lives. Mr. Newman's talk was addressed mainly to the ladies, who, he said, were familiar with and responsible for the conditions around the home, and who were the ones who could remedy existing fire hazards.

Following the dinner, motion pictures of the annual convention in Salisbury in July were shown.

Hyndman Briefs

Several property-owners are making improvements to their real estate. George Stair is building a new porch to his Church street home, and Shannon Burkett is having a new cement walk laid along the entire hundred foot frontage of his two lots on Schellsburg street. The actual labor of constructing the walk is being done under auspices of the Works Progress Administration.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Logsdon received word last night of the death of their brother-in-law, Charles Clites, at Memorial hospital, where he had been a patient since September 29. He was 65 years old and a retired B. & O. employe.

Hyndman Personals

Miss Marie Burkholder, Johnstown, is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Victor Atwell.

Ambrose Shaffer, Fairhope, is visiting his brothers, Allan and Bernard Shaffer.

The Women's Christian Temperance Union will meet at the home of its president, Mrs. James Ahlburn, Friday, November 1.

Mr. and Mrs. V. B. Atwell were Wednesday visitors in Johnstown.

David C. Van Voorhis and sister, Phyllis Elaine, were business callers at Bedford yesterday where the latter was successful in passing her examination for automobile operator's license.

Mrs. William Burkett will leave Saturday to visit Mr. and Mrs. William Knipple, Washington, Pa.

Rally Day will be observed in the Bible school at Central Christian church at both worship services.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl McDonald, Mill street, returned Wednesday from Washington.

Grantsville Girl Feted on Birthday

GRANTSVILLE, Oct. 11—Helen Stahl, eleven-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Stahl, was the honored guest at a birthday party given by her mother last night at their home at Casselman, three miles south of there. After an evening spent at games and other diversions, refreshments were enjoyed. The large birthday cake which was a feature of the occasion, was attractively decorated in colors of pink and yellow and was topped with lighted candles. The young honoree received numerous useful and beautiful gifts.

Among those in attendance were her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Simon Resh; Helen Beachy, Lois Noel, Ruth Butler, Ethelene Yaste, Mary Resh, Junior Beachy, Geraldine Carder, Warder Sterling, Evelyn Yaste, Helen Resh, Ruth Resh, Mary Katheryn Miller, Phyllis Resh, Helen June Beachy, Ada Simpkins and Betty Resh.

Grantsville Briefs

Serafim Strelkoff, a Russian singer, will appear in a concert at the high school auditorium at 1:30 o'clock Monday afternoon. Mr. Sterlkoff, a bass baritone, comes to Grantsville through the Antrim Bureau of Philadelphia, the program being sponsored by the school.

Thirteen members of the Grantsville Fire Company went to Kingwood, W. Va., last evening to participate in the festivities there. It was noted as rather a coincidence that they were also thirteenth in the line of march. Several members of the company were forced to forego the trip at the last moment when the Grantsville Fire truck was summoned to assist in fighting a blaze at Confluence.

Principal Frank J. Getty announced this morning that the teachers of the local school would be available Wednesday afternoon to assist the registrars in handling the draft registration. A half-holiday has been declared at the schools Wednesday so they may be free for this work.

The First State Bank will be closed tomorrow (Saturday) in observance of Columbus Day, a legal holiday in this state. The post office and other business establishments, however, will remain open as usual.

The last meeting of the Garrett County Sportsmen's Association before the opening of the hunting season is to be held at 7:30 o'clock Monday evening. The City Hall at Oakland has been chosen as the place of meeting.

Three anniversaries are to be observed at St. John's Evangelical and Reformed church Sunday morning at 10:30 o'clock, according to an announcement made by the pastor, the Rev. Alfred J. Porry. The occasion is the 250th anniversary of the Reformed church in the United States; the 100th anniversary of the Evangelical Synod, and the fiftieth anniversary of the Hungarian Reformed church. The work of all three organizations is now united in the Evangelical and Reformed church. Sunday school will be held at the usual hour, 9:30 a. m.

There will be no services at Mt. Zion Methodist church Sunday. This church has been undergoing some much needed repairs and the work of painting and repapering the interior has not been completed. It is for this reason Sunday morning's services were cancelled.

Grantsville Personals

Col. P. A. Connolly, New York City, is the guest of Clyde J. Miller. Mrs. Connolly has been here for the past two weeks.

David Broadwater, Baltimore, is here for a week-end visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Nevin U. Broadwater.

Mrs. Fred Livengood has returned from Wilmington, Pa., where she spent several days attending the Women's Missionary convention.

Volunteer Company Plans Campaign To Purchase New Equipment

PARSONS, W. Va., Oct. 11—Applications are being received by the Parsons Volunteer Fire Department for membership in the Junior Firemen's organization being sponsored by the senior department. Requirements are that applicants must be between the ages of 16 and 21 and must live in the city limits.

The firemen are making a drive to raise money to purchase new equipment such as an inhalator-resuscitator. They also contemplate the purchase of a flood light system and a light fire truck in addition to the large truck now owned by the company.

Republicans Rally

Frank E. Parrack, Kingwood, and Judge Summers H. Sharp, Marlinton, Republican candidate for Congress, spoke at the Republican rally held Thursday evening in the Thomas high school gymnasium. The rally was the first Republican rally held in Thomas for a number of years, and was attended by approximately 300 persons. The address of welcome was made by Wayne K. Pritt, chairman of the Tucker county Republican executive committee, who introduced Attorney William M. Harman, chairman of the rally. A short talk was made by Senator A. L. Helmick and county candidates were introduced to the audience. They included E. A. Bonner, for assessor; J. Plummer Baker and E. F. Creegan, nominees for board of education; C. S. Whitman and L. J. Griffith, nominees for justice of the peace of Fairfax district; Ed Miller, Jr., for county commissioner and Cleon Raese, nominee for House of Delegates. Several numbers were played by Patsy's band, Thomas.

Committees Named

Twenty-five members of the Woman's Division of Christian Service of First Street Methodist church met Thursday evening at the church with the president, Mrs. D. W. Thurston, presiding. Seventeen new members were admitted into the organization. The installation of officers was postponed until the next meeting, to be held at the church October 24.

The following committees were appointed: Membership, Miss Nell Grieder, Mrs. Isabel Blackburn, Mrs. Alice Stalnaker; finance, Mrs. D. W. Thurston, Mrs. Ethel Dickson, Mrs. Anna Lake, Miss Georgia Repair, Mrs. Faith Lipscomb; program, Mrs. Kate Grieder, Mrs. Anna Lake, Miss Georgia Repair, Mrs. Faith Lipscomb; fellowship, Mrs. Zella Kile, Miss Ruby Grieder, Mrs. W. W. Myers, Mrs. Wesley Cross, Mrs. Madge Boyles; publicity, Mrs. Margaret Repair, Mrs. A. A. Dorsey and Mrs. Minnie Young.

Convention Today

The twenty-seventh annual convention of the Central District, Federation of Women's clubs of West Virginia, will be held in the high school gymnasium at Thomas tomorrow (Saturday).

Registration will begin at 9 o'clock, and the meeting will open at 10 o'clock.

An interesting program is being planned, highlighted by Dr. Mary Harris' talk, "I Knew Them in Prison". Dr. Harris is superintendent of the Federal Reformatory for Women at Alderson, W. Va. The state president, Mrs. George McAlpine and other officers will attend.

Parsons Briefs

At a meeting of the Official Board of the former Methodist Episcopal Church, South, located on Central avenue, the name "Wesley" was adopted and the church will be known in the future as the "Wesley Methodist church". The Rev. Karl M. Scott is pastor.

Democratic rallies will be held at the St. George school house Wednesday, October 16. A big rally is scheduled for Thomas Thursday night, October 17. Prominent speakers will be at both rallies as well as local candidates. The meeting time is set for 8 o'clock.

Methodist Church At Midland Plans Special Services

Opening of Fall and Winter Season To Be Heralded Next Week

MIDLAND, Oct. 11 — The Rev. Joseph W. Young, pastor of Grace Methodist church, announces that the coming week will be dedicated to beginning new activities in the church for the autumn and winter season. The program is as follows:

Sunday—9:45 a. m., Sunday school Rally Day; 11 a. m., worship service; 6:30 p. m., Epworth League.

Monday—7:30 p. m., Charles E. Shaw, guest speaker.

Tuesday—7:30 p. m., the Rev. Charles M. LeFew, recently appointed pastor of Grace Methodist church, Cumberland.

Wednesday—7:30 p. m., Women's Night in the church auditorium and Men's Night in the Sunday school room.

Thursday—7:30 p. m., the Rev. H. Hall Sharp, pastor of St. Luke's Lutheran church, Cumberland.

Friday—7:30 p. m., Sunday School Night.

Special music will be heard at all services. Mr. Young also states that the Quarterly Conference will be held Sunday, October 20. In the near future a new fence will be installed around the church grounds, and the grounds beautified.

Midland Briefs

Registration results for District 18, Precinct 1 and 2, for October 1 and 8 have been given as follows: District 18, Precinct 1 (Ocean) — nine Republicans and three Democrats as new registrants; two change of affiliations from Democrat to Republican; two Republicans and two Democrats removed to other districts. In District 18, Precinct 2 (Midland)—twenty-one Republicans and fifteen Democrats were listed as new registrants; one Republican changed to a Democrat, and sixteen Republicans and ten Democrats were removed.

Margaret Thompson was honored this week with a ninth birthday party at the home of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh McMillan. She received many gifts. Guests were Anna Louise Eichhorn, Elizabeth Lancaster, Jeannette Gowens, Alice McGee, Mary Kallmyer, Harry Bickerton, Betty Whitman, Susan Steele, Marion Hadley, Jackie Elliott, Marilyn Whelon, Francis Timney, Billy Frye, Wilma Thompson, Carol Thompson, Marion Thompson, Rose Marie Dilfer, Patty Green, Anna Louise Broderick, Elaine O'Rourke, Ruth Lee Buskirk, Marguerite Buskirk, Rose Marie Rowan, Anna Marie Bishop, Rita Canty, Mary MacMillan, Vincent Monahan, Norma Jean Thompson and Shirley Thompson.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel McGowan entertained a few friends on Wednesday evening in honor of the third birthday of their son, Joseph. Games were played and refreshments served. A large birthday cake adorned the middle of the table. Guests were Earlene Hunt, Ray Hunt, Erma Jean Robertson, Edward Winner, Catherine McGowan, Gerdine McGowan, Sammy McGowan, Agnes Bryson, Mary Margaret Bryson and Mrs. John Bryson.

The infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Garlitz Barclay seems to have gotten a head start in life. The day after it was born two teeth were cut, and two weeks later two more came through. The Barclays feel that this is unusual enough to be considered news.

Crowd of 10,000 Sees Governor Crown Queen of Buckwheat Fete

KINGWOOD, W. Va., Oct. 11 (AP)—Before a crowd of 10,000 gathered to do honor to the substantial and toothsome buckwheat cake Governor Homer A. Holt today crowned winsome Bertha Benson as queen of Preston county's annual Buckwheat Festival.

The Bruceton Mills girl, reigning as Queen Ceres III, will be joined on the throne tomorrow by "King Buckwheat" who will be chosen in the morning.

Circuit Judge A. G. Hughes will crown the king, and Commissioner of Agriculture J. B. McLaughlin will present him with a cup as the champion of buckwheat growers in this highland county.

While thousands passed through streets of the town celebrating the harvesting of its biggest commercial crop, buckwheat cakes were served in every home and restaurant.

School children of Preston paraded for the queen this afternoon, and Kingwood and Arthurdale high schools battled in the annual Buckwheat Bowl football game.

The festival will end tomorrow after a farmers' parade, musical entertainment and a horse show.

Beall Soccer Crew Downs Oakland 9-3

Oakland, Oct. 11.—Beall High's soccer team care here from Frostburg this week and handed Coach Thomas Baucom's Oakland High booters a 9-3 setback to remain undefeated.

The visitors were held in check during the first half, which ended 1-1, but in the third quarter, Beall clicked for six points to Oakland's two and then added two more counters in the final session.

Sparking the Frostburg attack was Ritchie with two field goals and Middleton with one double-decker and three of three penalties. Hinebaugh and Mason shared Oakland's tallies. The lineups:

Lawyers Agrue Ashby and Berger Cases Today

Judges To Hear Final Arguments in Garrett County Circuit Court

OAKLAND, Oct. 11—Arguments of defense attorneys and the state's attorney in two cases now before Chief Judge D. Lindley Sloan and Associate Judge W. A. Huster will be heard tomorrow in Circuit court, after which the court will probably render its verdicts.

Testimony was completed last Friday in the trial of Jesse J. Ashby Jr., treasurer of the county, who is charged with having fraudulently obtained from the county commissioners the sum of $6,099.11. Ashby denied the charges.

Arguments of attorneys will also be heard in the case against Dr. Clift P. Berger on a morals charge. Testimony was completed last Thursday. He has also denied the charges.

Plans Completed

Final estimates and plans for the construction of the community building were approved by the Oakland council at its regular meeting this week. They have been sent to WPA officials in Washington for their final approval on disapproval.

According to the present cost sheets, the estimate has reached a total of $125,722, but it was explained this could be substantially reduced through the purchase of certain materials at a price much below that quoted on the cost sheets.

The federal government's share will run about $94,792 and the city's share about $30,930. It is this latter amount the town officials say they can reduce about twenty-five cent, making the town's share than has been appropriated Citizens some time ago voted whether or not to issue amounting to $25,000 for the struction of the building and question passed about four to

Stocks Rally after Seven Days Of Lower or Irregular Prices

Trading Picks Up Somewhat To End Long Stalemate

By FREDERICK GARDNER

NEW YORK, Oct. 11. (AP)—After seven successive do-nothing sessions the stock market today put on a quiet and selective rally under leadership of steels and other industrials.

Transfers totalled 400,250 shares compared with 382,670 the day before.

Part of the day's purchasing was attributed by analysis to the belief of technical students the market was due for at least a temporary revival because of its lengthy stalemate. In addition, brokers said boardrooms seemed a bit more cheerful regarding politics, business and the further lessening of worries over the recent rift in American-Japanese relations.

Among helpful influences were: Forecasts next week's steel mill operations would hold at high levels and announcement of the American Iron and Steel Institute producers would be able to take care of private and defense requirements with present facilities; another jump in this week's automotive output and reports of increasing sales of new cars.

Crucible Steel preferred, the new issue appearing on the ticker tape for the first time yesterday, was up five points, and the common stock 2¼. Lesser advances were retained by U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, General Motors, American Airlines, Montgomery Ward, Anaconda, du Pont, Westinghouse, Sperry, Wright-Aeronautical and Texas Corp.

In the Curb Aluminum of America exhibited strength on the company's plans for a $150,000,000 defense building expansion. Minor gains were shown for Bell Aircraft, Glenn Alden Coal and Creole Petroleum. Volume here was around 76,000 shares against 77,000 Thursday.

Parents Should Not Let Child Hear Criticisms

Many Fathers and Mothers Do Not Act Reasonably with Children

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D

You take five-year-old Clarice to your doctor for a check-up on her physical condition. Then right before the child, perhaps, you tell him:

"Clarice doesn't eat her cooked cereal, nor her vegetables; and she doesn't drink enough milk, Doctor. She wants to eat more meat and potatoes, more bread and jam. And she gets very naughty, too, sometimes, says ugly things to her mother, and doesn't mind. Last night she got so mad she lay down on the floor and kicked and screamed and bumped her head."

By this time Clarice has probably concluded that she is, "some youngster."

Be that doctor wise, he will divert you from discussing the behavior of Clarice in her presence. He will find amusement for her in the outer office and discuss such matters in private. No, it's not you I am talking about; some other mother!

Don't Spoil It

When your friends drop in at home and pay a compliment to Clarice you can spoil it by adding, "But she is a naughty girl sometimes. You should have seen her last night. . . ." It must be that other mother still that I am talking about.

I wish we might persuade you not to discuss Clarice's bad conduct to others in her hearing.

School principals often hear the mother tell about her child's shortcomings right before the alleged delinquent. Other mothers also may be sitting near listening.

When we are wiser in dealing with our children we so manage ourselves that everything we do and say in relation to them is for the definite purpose of living more happily with them. The trouble is we don't act reasonably most of the time. We just act about as our feelings prompt us. Then we think afterwards. But under the guise of reasoning we may fool ourseves into believing that we had acted wisely. What a lot of effort we expend in attempting to justify our acts to both ourselves and others.

Nobody's Faultless

We are all like that to some degree and we have been guilty of the faults we so easily find in others. Ours not to condemn but to describe. I do believe that if we reflect often to ourselves in relation to our children we might actually find ourselves living happier with them. Let us all the while keep our attention on the many good things that we do and celebrate more often our successes.

A list of books and pamphlets to help parents grow to be happier and more efficient parents may be had by writing me at 235 East 45th Street, New York City, enclosing a self-address envelope with a three-cent stamp on it. Also a page on prevention and correction of thumb sucking.

Solving Parent Problems

Q. Should a parent talk of the child's shortcomings in the presence of him and a guest?

A. No; and almost never before the doctor or school principal. Bragging might be just as bad.

'No Time for Comedy' Opens at Liberty

A film replete with sprightly dialogue, fine acting and delightfully humorous situations will make its local bow today when Warner Brothers' "No Time for Comedy," opens at the New Liberty theater.

The picture stars two of movie-goers' most popular players, James Stewart and Rosalind Russell. Steward plays the part of a country playwright who comes to the big town and startles everyone by writing so understandingly of the "Park Avenue crowd." Rosalind Russell, in the role of a successful stage actress who plays leads in Stewart's plays, learns of his formula for writing hit plays. He claims that people are fundamentally alike whether they come from Squeedunk or New York and that they would probably react the same in any situation. He gets out of his element however when he allows the wife of a millionaire, played by Genevieve Tobin, to persuade him to write a play about a world torn by strife and struggle.

"No Time For Comedy" was one of last season's greatest Broadway stage hits. The play was written by S. N. Behrman, whose long list of successful plays is unbeatable. Julius J. and Philip G. Epstein, two of the cleverest screen writers in Hollywood, captured all of its scintillating spirit when they adapted it to the screen.

Geneveive Tobin, Charles Ruggles, Allyn Joslyn, Clarence Kolb and Louise Beavers make up the talented array of supporting players. William Keighley directed "No Time For Comedy," the year's gayest comedy.

Star of 'Scatterbrain' Spurns Stage Role

Ruth Donnelly, character comedienne who plays a featured role in the Republic musical "Scatterbrain," starting tomorrow at the Embassy theater turned down an offer to appear in the Al Jolson-Martha Raye New York show, "Shotting High," preferring to remain in Hollywood. The New York offer came simultaneously with the part that was open for her in the Republic picture, and she accepted the latter.

The actress who has had a long stage and screen career as a comedienne, plays an important featured role in the picture and will undoubtedly add to her laurels in her enactment of the role of secretary to a temperamental movie director. One of her choice scenes in the nutty comedy is that in which she is under the influence of a hypnotist and stalks into her employer's office and tells him exactly what her subconscious mind thinks of him. Alan Mowbray is the director, and a large cast which stars Judy Canova, includes Eddie Foy Jr., Joe Cawthorn, Emmett Lynn, Isabel Jewell, Luis Alberni, Cliff Nazarro, and for good measure three name bands, Matty Malnick, The Texas Rangers, and Cal Shrum and His Gang.

The other hit features Laurence Oliver and Joan Fontaine in "Rebecca". Today, last showing of Jack Randall in "Land of the Six Guns", "Wolf of New York", with Edmund Lowe, and another chapter "Terry and the Pirates".

Strand Hit Features Scintillating Cast

"Down Argentine Way," one of the greatest musical extravaganzas ever brought to the screen, opened yesterday at the Strand theater. Produced in Technicolor by Twentieth Century-Fox, the film has Don Ameche, Betty Grable and Carmen Miranda at the head of a scintillating cast.

With emphasis on the spectacular throughout, "Down Argentine Way" has an excellent story featuring an Ameche-Grable, 6,000-mile romance from New York to glamorous Buenos Aires. Carmen Miranda, who makes a sensational screen debut, applies her torrid voice to four grand songs. Four other catchy numbers were written by Mack Gordon and Harry Warren.

Other bright names in the cast include Charlotte Greenwood, J. Carrol Naish, Henry Stephenson, Katherine Aldridge, Leonid Kinskey and Chris-Pin Martin. The film was directed by Irving Cummings from a screen play by Darrell Ware and Karl Tunberg.

Added featurettes include a new Disney Donald Duck cartoon entitled "Donald's Self Control," a Ted Husing Sportlight, "Louvre of Trout," and Paramount and Fox News flashes.

Rooney, Veteran Trouper, Stars in Maryland Film

Although in his teens, Mickey Rooney is a real veteran of show business. He has been a star of stage, screen and radio since his birth in Brooklyn, New York.

His parents, teamed as Nell Carter and Joe Yule, dancer and comedian respectively, were playing in vaudeville when Mickey was born, and at the age of eleven months he made his stage debut in a burlesque routine. At the age of two he became a regular member of the act and when four he played his first screen role as a midget in "Not To Be Trusted."

After winning popularity as Mickey McGuire in the tough boy comedies, he went on to attain stardom in "Stablemates," after a long string of pictures. Now he has become noted for his Andy Hardy roles, his characterizations as in "Young Tom Edison," and his light, carefree roles as in "Babes in Arms" and "Strike Up the Band," now showing at the Maryland theater.

Aside from his picture work, he already has had three songs published and now is working on a musical show.

'Blazing Six Shooters' Heads Garden Bill

Charles Starrett, western hero currently starred in Columbia's roaring romance of the range, "Blazing Six Shooters," at the Garden theater, has a musical library which includes recordings of every song the Sons of the Pioneers have sung in his pictures. They added five new tunes in his current hit. Iris Meredith plays the femine lead opposite the star.

Two players who got their start playing in Italian-language stock companies in America are featured in Universal's "You're Not So Tough," now at the Garden theater.

They are Henry Armetta, long a favorite on the screen, and Rosina Galli, who was with Italian-language stock companies in New York and other large American cities for twenty years.

In "You're Not So Tough," Miss Galli is seen as the proprietor of a California ranch, with Armetta as her foreman.

Trading Picks Up Somewhat To End Long Stalemate

By FREDERICK GARDNER

NEW YORK, Oct. 11. (AP)—After seven successive do-nothing sessions the stock market today put on a quiet and selective rally under leadership of steels and other industrials.

Transfers totalled 400,250 shares compared with 382,670 the day before.

Part of the day's purchasing was attributed by analysis to the belief of technical students the market was due for at least a temporary revival because of its lengthy stalemate. In addition, brokers said, boardrooms seemed a bit more cheerful regarding politics, business and the further lessening of worries over the recent rift in American-Japanese relations.

Among helpful influences were: Forecasts next week's steel mill operations would hold at high levels and announcement of the American Iron and Steel Institute producers would be able to take care of private and defense requirements with present facilities; another jump in this week's automotive output and reports of increasing sales of new cars.

Crucible Steel preferred, the new issue appearing on the ticker tape for the first time yesterday, was up five points, and the common stock 2¼. Lesser advances were retained by U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, General Motors, American Airlines, Montgomery Ward, Anaconda, du Pont, Westinghouse, Sperry, Wright-Aeronautical and Texas Corp.

In the Curb Aluminum of America exhibited strength on the company's plans for a $150,000,000 defense building expansion. Minor gains were shown for Bell Aircraft, Glenn Alden Coal and Creole Petroleum. Volume here was around 76,000 shares against 77,000 Thursday.

Parents Should Not Let Child Hear Criticisms

Many Fathers and Mothers Do Not Act Reasonably with Children

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D

You take five-year-old Clarice to your doctor for a check-up on her physical condition. Then right before the child, perhaps, you tell him:

"Clarice doesn't eat her cooked cereal, nor her vegetables; and she doesn't drink enough milk, Doctor. She wants to eat more meat and potatoes, more bread and jam. And she gets very naughty, too, sometimes, says ugly things to her mother, and doesn't mind. Last night she got so mad she lay down on the floor and kicked and screamed and bumped her head."

By this time Clarice has probably concluded that she is, "some youngster."

Be that doctor wise, he will divert you from discussing the behavior of Clarice in her presence. He will find amusement for her in the outer office and discuss such matters in private. No, it's not you I am talking about; some other mother!

Don't Spoil It

When your friends drop in at home and pay a compliment to Clarice you can spoil it by adding, "But she is a naughty girl sometimes. You should have seen her last night. . . ." It must be that other mother still that I am talking about.

I wish we might persuade you not to discuss Clarice's bad conduct to others in her hearing.

School principals often hear the mother tell about her child's shortcomings right before the alleged delinquent. Other mothers also may be sitting near listening.

When we are wiser in dealing with our children we so manage ourselves that everything we do and say in relation to them is for the definite purpose of living more happily with them. The trouble is we don't act reasonably most of the time. We just act about as our feelings prompt us. Then we think afterwards. But under the guise of reasoning we may fool ourseves into believing that we had acted wisely. What a lot of effort we expend in attempting to justify our acts to both ourselves and others.

Nobody's Faultless

We are all like that to some degree and we have been guilty of the faults we so easily find in others. Ours not to condemn but to describe. I do believe that if we reflect often to ourselves in relation to our children we might actually find ourselves living happier with them. Let us all the while keep our attention on the many good things that we do and celebrate more often our successes.

A list of books and pamphlets to help parents grow to be happier and more efficient parents may be had by writing me at 235 East 45th Street, New York City, enclosing a self-address envelope with a three-cent stamp on it. Also a page on prevention and correction of thumb sucking.

Solving Parent Problems

Q. Should a parent talk of the child's shortcomings in the presence of him and a guest?

A. No; and almost never before the doctor or school principal. Bragging might be just as bad.

'No Time for Comedy' Opens at Liberty

A film replete with sprightly dialogue, fine acting and delightfully humorous situations will make its local bow today when Warner Brothers' "No Time for Comedy," opens at the New Liberty theater.

The picture stars two of movie-goers' most popular players, James Stewart and Rosalind Russell. Steward plays the part of a country playwright who comes to the big town and startles everyone by writing so understandingly of the "Park Avenue crowd." Rosalind Russell, in the role of a successful stage actress who plays leads in Stewart's plays, learns of his formula for writing hit plays. He claims that people are fundamentally alike whether they come from Squeedunk or New York and that they would probably react the same in any situation. He gets out of his element however when he allows the wife of a millionaire, played by Genevieve Tobin, to persuade him to write a play about a world torn by strife and struggle.

"No Time For Comedy" was one of last season's greatest Broadway stage hits. The play was written by S. N. Behrman, whose long list of successful plays is unbeatable. Julius J. and Philip G. Epstein, two of the cleverest screen writers in Hollywood, captured all of its scintillating spirit when they adapted it to the screen.

Geneveive Tobin, Charles Ruggles, Allyn Joslyn, Clarence Kolb and Louise Beavers make up the talented array of supporting players. William Keighley directed "No Time For Comedy," the year's gayest comedy.

Star of 'Scatterbrain' Spurns Stage Role

Ruth Donnelly, character comedienne who plays a featured role in the Republic musical "Scatterbrain," starting tomorrow at the Embassy theater turned down an offer to appear in the Al Jolson-Martha Raye New York show, "Shotting High," preferring to remain in Hollywood. The New York offer came simultaneously with the part that was open for her in the Republic picture, and she accepted the latter.

The actress who has had a long stage and screen career as a comedienne, plays an important featured role in the picture and will undoubtedly add to her laurels in her enactment of the role of secretary to a temperamental movie director. One of her choice scenes in the nutty comedy is that in which she is under the influence of a hypnotist and stalks into her employer's office and tells him exactly what her subconscious mind thinks of him. Alan Mowbray is the director, and a large cast which stars Judy Canova, includes Eddie Foy Jr., Joe Cawthorn, Emmett Lynn, Isabel Jewell, Luis Alberni, Cliff Nazarro, and for good measure three name bands, Matty Malnick, The Texas Rangers, and Cal Shrum and His Gang.

The other hit features Laurence Oliver and Joan Fontaine in "Rebecca". Today, last showing of Jack Randall in "Land of the Six Guns", "Wolf of New York", with Edmund Lowe, and another chapter "Terry and the Pirates".

Strand Hit Features Scintillating Cast

"Down Argentine Way," one of the greatest musical extravaganzas ever brought to the screen, opened yesterday at the Strand theater. Produced in Technicolor by Twentieth Century-Fox, the film has Don Ameche, Betty Grable and Carmen Miranda at the head of a scintillating cast.

With emphasis on the spectacular throughout, "Down Argentine Way" has an excellent story featuring an Ameche-Grable, 6,000-mile romance from New York to glamorous Buenos Aires. Carmen Miranda, who makes a sensational screen debut, applies her torrid voice to four grand songs. Four other catchy numbers were written by Mack Gordon and Harry Warren.

Other bright names in the cast include Charlotte Greenwood, J. Carrol Naish, Henry Stephenson, Katherine Aldridge, Leonid Kinskey and Chris-Pin Martin. The film was directed by Irving Cummings from a screen play by Darrell Ware and Karl Tunberg.

Added featurettes include a new Disney Donald Duck cartoon entitled "Donald's Self Control," a Ted Husing Sportlight, "Louvre of Trout," and Paramount and Fox News flashes.

Rooney, Veteran Trouper, Stars in Maryland Film

Although in his teens, Mickey Rooney is a real veteran of show business. He has been a star of stage, screen and radio since his birth in Brooklyn, New York.

His parents, teamed as Nell Carter and Joe Yule, dancer and comedian respectively, were playing in vaudeville when Mickey was born, and at the age of eleven months he made his stage debut in a burlesque routine. At the age of two he became a regular member of the act and when four he played his first screen role as a midget in "Not To Be Trusted."

After winning popularity as Mickey McGuire in the tough boy comedies, he went on to attain stardom in "Stablemates," after a long string of pictures. Now he has become noted for his Andy Hardy roles, his characterizations as in "Young Tom Edison," and his light, carefree roles as in "Babes in Arms" and "Strike Up the Band," now showing at the Maryland theater.

Aside from his picture work, he already has had three songs published and now is working on a musical show.

'Blazing Six Shooters' Heads Garden Bill

Charles Starrett, western hero currently starred in Columbia's roaring romance of the range "Blazing Six Shooters," at the Garden theater, has a musical library which includes recordings of every song the Sons of the Pioneers have sung in his pictures. They added five new tunes in his current hit. Iris Meredith plays the femine lead opposite the star.

Two players who got their start playing in Italian-language stock companies in America are featured in Universal's "You're Not So Tough," now at the Garden theater.

They are Henry Armetta, long a favorite on the screen, and Rosina Galli, who was with Italian-language stock companies in New York and other large American cities for twenty years.

In "You're Not So Tough," Miss Galli is seen as the proprietor of a California ranch, with Armetta as her foreman.

Fort Hill Gridders Trip LaSalle, 19 to 6

Sentinels Grab Lead in City Race with Win

Outweighed North End Crew Kept on Defense Most of Game

Dean, Carnell, Hare Score for Winners; Small Tallies for LaSalle

LaSalle high's hopes for a city football championship in Pat Conway's first year back at the local school as coach, received a severe jolt last night at the Fort Hill Stadium when the red-and-white-clad warriors of Fort Hill High tripped the Blue and Gold by a 19-6 count before a throng of over 3,000 persons, one of the largest crowds of the current season.

The heavier Sentinels took command at the outset of the tussle, marching 46 yards early in the period to gain an early lead, and tallied in the third and fourth stanzas, following LaSalle's six-pointer in the second quarter.

LaSalle was kept on the defense most of the time and cashed in on its only real opportunity, Vic Malloy rocketing a beautiful pass into the waiting hands of Johnny Small on the 10-yard line, with the latter racing into the end zone unmolested.

Dean Bolts Over

Billy Dean, swivel-hipped halfback of the Red Devils, Gene "Lefty" Hare, and Jack Carnell, who replaced Boyd Wade in the Fort Hill fullback slot, with the latter returning to his old post on the line, accounted for the winners' scores in that order.

Dean bolted over the payoff line on a reverse around end in the first quarter following a sustained 46-yard march, Hare galloped 26 yards shortly after the second half got underway for the second score, and Carnell manufactured the final marker with a four-yard off tackle slant in the final chapter. Dean converted on a place kick after the first touchdown but his try was blocked on the second attempt, and a pass pitched by Junior Rice on the third score was batted earthward.

First downs give a good indication of the Sentinels' superiority, the Hilltoppers moving the sticks 14 times to LaSalle's six. A total of 231 yards were amassed by the Longmen on scrimmage plays as compared to 109 for the North Enders. The winners lost 27 yards on running plays, while LaSalle had 15 chopped off its total on ground plays. LaSalle completed only three of 11 passes, but those three completions netted 79 yards. Fort Hill tried four passes, three in the first heat, and completed two for 28 yards. Fort Hill lost 60 yards on penalties while the losers were set back 20.

Sentinels Drive Goalward

Fort Hill began its first touchdown drive when Billy Dean returned Small's punt 14 yards to LaSalle's 46-yard ribbon shortly after the opening whistle. Dean, "Pete" Berryman and Carnell alternated in tugging the leather for a first on the 36, and a pass, thrown by Berryman and falling into the hands of Whitford after deflecting off the fingers of another Fort Hill player, gained eight yards and put the Sentinels in position for Carnell to crack the line for another first on the LaSalle 25.

Dean gained two yards on a reverse and then Berryman faded back and hurled a pass to Dean who was run out of bounds on the LaSalle three-yard line. Berryman made a yard on a whack at tackle and then Dean sprinted over with the first score on his aforementioned reverse. Dean also split the uprights for the point.

Midway in the second round, the Red Devils were forced to kick following a bad pass from center which lost 14 yards, the ball being downed by Berryman on the LaSalle 33. Bill Cavanaugh, one of the Green Wave's backfield stars of the game, picked up a first down on the losers' 46 on two line plays and Bill "Lefty" Smith zig-zagged through tackle for 16 yards and another first on the Fort Hill 38, from which point Malloy fired his long toss to Small for LaSalle's touchdown. Malloy's try for the extra point from placement was low.

Fumble Hurts LaSalle

A LaSalle fumble on the second running play of the second half set the stage for the Hilltoppers' second touchdown march. "Dick" Boyle made eight yards following the Sentinel kickoff, but Malloy, after going through the line for enough yardage for a first, fumbled the leather and Whitford recovered for the winners on the North Enders' 44.

Dean made six at left tackle and Carnell fought his way through the same spot for 12 yards and a first on the LaSalle 26. Dean was stopped for no gain on the next play, but Carnell then shot through left tackle, broke into the clear, and jogged 26 yards for another touchdown. Dean's attempted conversion was blocked.

Small's boot gave The Red Devils the ball on the LaSalle 38 as the final chapter got underway, and it was from there that Coach Johnny Long's gridders blitzkrieged their way for another score.

Tom Harmon Now Drawing 'Em Like Red Grange Did

(Released by North American Newspaper Alliance)

By JOHN LARDNER

NEW YORK, Oct. 11—Remember how they used to follow Red Grange from town to town in the days when the handsome iceman played college football? It's only once in a generation that a college player draws 'em like that. Today the fellow's name is Tom Harmon.

Mr. Harmon is the all-everything who plays halfback for Michigan. This Saturday the hosts will follow Thomas to Cambridge, Mass., where the Michigan team plays Harvard. Michigan is a good team, and Harvard is a mediocre team, and between them they would not draw flies if it were not for Thomas Harmon, now the hottest football player in the United States of America.

Among the suckers proceeding to the fringe of Boston to watch Harmon play will be your correspondent. They have told me so much about Harmon that I can no longer contain my curiosity.

Hopes Harmon Is Stopped Cold

Having done a short stretch at Harvard myself, I naturally will not be rooting for Harmon, the all-everything, to run wild. I hope they will stop him cold. But logic compels me to confess that the situation is made to order for Thomas. In addition to which, the man is red-hot.

He scored some four touchdowns and points after touchdown against California in California territory. After the game, Mr. Stub Allison, the California coach, made a statement.

"Harmon is the best back I ever saw," said Mr. Allison.

The following week, Michigan played Michigan State, as they often do. Harmon scored all the points for Michigan; three touchdowns and three points after touchdown. After the game, the Michigan State coach made a statement.

"Harmon is the best back I ever saw," said he.

Harmon's own coach, Fritz Crisler, offers the same sort of testimony.

"I saw Red Grange," says Mr. Crisler, "and Harmon is better. He's not only a runner. He can pass, block and tackle. Grange was chiefly a ball-carrier, and even in that department, Grange had no edge on Harmon."

Well, up till now, the boys have got me. I saw Grange once. I saw him against Pennsylvania, in his senior year, and the fellow ran wild, though circumstances were piled up against him. In my soul of souls, I have always rated Grange the best running back I ever looked at. But I haven't seen Harmon.

This time I'm going to see him.

A Popular Superstition Recalled

Speaking of Grange, I would like to call attention to a popular superstition that exists today, thanks to the efforts of the super-super football experts. They talk about blocking. Well, blocking is a vital thing in football. But don't believe it when you hear them say that so-and-so would never have gained a yard except for his blockers. That's the popular belief, induced by the experts, but there has been many a character who ran for magnificent yardage without a blocker.

Grange was one. They made a national hero out of Earl Britton, his principal blocker, but Britton himself says no.

"Listen," says Mr. Britton. "I threw some good blocks for Grange, but half of the time he was ten yards ahead of me when I blocked. He was off like a jackrabbit. He ran his own interference."

I was very much pleased the other day when Mr. Lou Little, the canny Columbia coach, spoke the same idea while discussing Harmon. All around him were mournful guys talking of Harmon and saying, "Give me good blocking instead of these highly-touted runners."

Mr. Little looked up suddenly from his bowl of soup.

"Not me," he said. "To hell with these blockers. Give me a runner like Harmon."

That's about the size of it. At least, that's the size of it up till now. Mr. Harmon goes against the Harvards this week-end. I hope they stop him. But if they don't, I'll have seen the man at his hottest, and maybe I'll have seen the greatest back of modern times.

Jimmy Wilson Gets Rousing Welcome Home

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 11 (AP) — Jimmy Wilson, world series baseball hero, was given a rousing welcome home today.

A crowd of 3,000 greeted the 40-year-old Cincinnati Reds coach who went behind the plate when injuries laid low regular catcher Ernie Lombardi.

Many in the crowd accompanied Jimmy to his home where they jammed the house and emptied the Wilson icebox of eatables.

Wilson, who caught six of the seven games and at the end had his creaking joints all taped up to prevent serious injury, is going to "rest" for the next few weeks. As for his winter plans—"I'll rest some more."

Ridgeley Hi Tops Hyndman, Pa., for 34 to 0 Triumph

West Virginians Score in Every Period of Contest

Coach Bill Hahn's Ridgeley high school football team took its third scalp of the season yesterday on its home field, defeating Hyndman, Pa., high 34 to 0, while scoring in each period and doing a double dose in the second quarter.

Hyndman kicked off to Ridgeley and with Zimmerman, Lashbaugh and Washabaugh doing the carrying, the latter went over for the touchdown from the five yard stripe. Lookabaugh added the point.

Hyndman made two first downs in the second period then kicked to Ridgeley which lost the ball on a fumble.

Lookabaugh scored but the try for the point in the second, was wide. H broke loose again and scored from the 25 yard line.

Zimmerman's pass to Washabaugh in the end zone was good for a score in the third period and a pass, Lookabaugh to Hartman was good for the extra point.

Hyndman filled the air with passes in the final quarter but an interception halted the hostilities and Zimmerman promptly cut loose with an end run from the 28 yard line for another touchdown. Lookabaugh added the point.

Everett Advances in College Net Tourney

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., Oct. 11 (AP)—Harris Everett, the pace-setting North Carolinan, showed no sign of faltering in the Middle Atlantic Intercollegiate tennis matches today as he easily overcame Richard Feuille in a quarter-finals match 6-2, 6-2.

The University of Virginia entry could find no flaw in the Everett offensive and was all but powerless against the lightning play of the University of North Carolina star.

In the second set, Everett took five straight games before momentarily weakening and extending the frame to eight games.

In doubles play, the North Carolina combination of Everett and Carver allowed the Wagner College team of Ken Axelsen and Carl Shere just 17 points in wining 6-0, 6-0.

Other doubles matches follow:

University of Maryland, Phillip Burkam and Albert Ritzenberg, eliminated Emory and Henry College, C. E. Coney and J. B. Hutcheson, 6-0, 6-1.

University of Virginia, Feuille and Landon Buchanan, defeated West Virginia University team of Hubert Martin and Ansell Knotts, 6-0, 6-2.

Muhlenberg College, Ray Moats and Jack Minogue, turned back Washington and Lee University, Richard Spindle III and Jack Mallory, 6-4, 6-4.

Other quarter - finals singles matches:

Don Martin, Georgetown, refreshed after a hard-won second round victory over Knotts of West Virginia, 11-13, 6-4, 6-1, took Burkam of Maryland, 6-3, 6-1.

Ritzenberg of Maryland had scant difficulty disposing of Washington and Lee's spindle 6-1, 6-4.

Frostburg State Opens Soccer Season Today

Frostburg, Oct. 11.—Coach George Carrington's Frostburg State College soccer team will open its 1940 campaign here tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock against Blue Ridge College, which will bring a veteran aggregation to the Mountain City.

Last season Frostburg smothered the Vultures, but Coach "Bill" Terry is confident his experienced crew will get even with the Mountaineers tomorrow.

Coach Carrington has indicated only four boys are certain of starting berths on Frostburg's eleven. They are Johnny Meyers, center half; Bill Merriman and Fred Sacco, fullbacks, and Hal Conrad, center forward.

The other halfbacks will be selected from Bill Houck, Les Eisentrout, Ralph Koontz and John Thomas. There is a wealth of material on the line including Joe Wagner, Bill Thomas and Willie Shuff, all veterans.

Several newcomers are showing up well and the starting lineup may include Jack Thomas, Ed Athey, Bill Lamberson, Jack Junkins or Paul Paugh. The goal position will be filled by "Hank" Bell, Jake Carrington or John Thomas.

The Frostburg Jayvees will open their season today against Grantsville High in the Garrett county town. Tomorrow morning, the Jayvees will entertain Oakland High.

Grid Games Today Offer Good Line On Major Elevens

Top Ranking Teams Meet In Sectional Tilts In Power Tests

By BILL BONI

NEW YORK, Oct. 11 (AP)—There is such nice balance to tomorrow's college football program that it is difficult, from here, to pick out any single game as the day's feature. But if the task is tackled by sections, it becomes simpler.

In the mid-west we'd say it was Ohio State against Northwestern, because the Buckeyes are riding high in quest of the "Big Nine" championship and Northwestern proved itself a surprise contender with last Saturday's impressive shellacking of Syracuse.

Front rank in the east goes to Cornell and Army, for the simple reason that the Ithacans seem even more impressive than the all-winning 1939 crew and Army should prove a good test of just how much better.

The south offers three headliners—Georgia-Mississippi, Auburn-Mississippi State and Vanderbilt-Kentucky; Texas against Oklahoma is the southwest piece de resistance, and on the west coast the appearance of last year's No. 1 team, Texas A. and M., against U.C.L.A. is likely to cop the headlines.

Predictions

With a silent prayer for the help of three good blocking backs, here go the week's predictions (home team named first, probable attendance in parentheses):

Northwestern-Ohio State (40,000)—We've seen the Wildcats, and they looked very good. We've read about the Buckeyes, and they sound very good. Taking a flyer on first-hand over second-hand evidence, Northwestern.

Army-Cornell (30,000) — In football, there's nothing better than a good senior team, that's the pick, Cornell.

Notre Dame-Georgia Tech (40,000)—Dixie Hipper-Dipper against South Bend manpower. We'll take the manpower, Notre Dame.

Georgia-Mississippi (25,000)—Taking the young Georgia Bulldogs.

U.C.L.A.-Texas A. M. (60,000)—There was nothing wrong with Kimbrough at last report. The Aggies.

Fordham-Tulane (40,000) — The Rams have been primed for this one since Tulane shackled 'em last year, Fordham.

Illinois-Southern California (35,000)—Word from Champaign says the Illini are set to go. But that Trojan machine is bound to outscore somebody, and this may be the day, Southern Cal.

Texas-Oklahoma (35,000)—Texas looks to have it.

Harvard-Michigan (40,000) — As they might say down south, "Harmon come by but Harvard wasn't ready, Michigan.

Nebraska - Indiana (32,000) — They're building this up a a pitchers' battle. Taking Hal Hursh and Indiana.

Penn-Yale (50,000) — Can't see anything but Penn.

Auburn-Mississippi State (20,000)—Auburn out of a hat.

Vanderbilt - Kentucky (12,000) — Kentucky.

Clemson-Wake Forest (14,000) — As tough as they come, Clemson but close.

Dartmouth - Columbia (8,000) — Columbia, the same way.

Boston College-Temple (25,000)—Temple is taking to the Morrison system quickly, but this vote goes to B. C.

North Carolina-Texas Christian (20,000)—T.C.U.

Pitt-Southern Methodist (30,000)—The southwest has a lot of good ones this year, S.M.U. is one of them, and our choice.

Stanford-Santa Clara (45,000) — Stanford, but it could be the other way all too easily.

Princeton-Navy (35,000) — The Tigers have the offense, Navy the defense. The best defense is a good offense, they say, Princeton.

Iowa-Wisconsin (35,000)—Picking Iowa, even without Kinnick.

Arkansas-Baylor — Baylor, by a shade.

Rice-Louisiana State (25,000) — L.S.U.

Oregon - Washington (30,000) — Washington. The Huskies can do other things besides row.

California - Washington State (20,000)—California to keep bouncing back.

Michigan State-Purdue (20,000)—State to win on pass.

Here 'n' there elsewhere:

Mid-West—Missouri over Kansas State, Kansas over Drake.

STAR BACKS UNDER FIRE

PITTSBURGH—By nightfall we'll all get a full report on the afternoon's operations of certain leading backs who have begun to inhabit the headlines lately.

In this list we have Tom Harmon running against Harvard for one of the features—Don Scott and Langhurst of Ohio State matching their stuff with Bill deCorrevont of Northwestern—Dave Allerdice of Princeton meeting up with Navy—John Kimbrough taking aim at U.C.L.A.'s defenses—Preston Johnston of Southern Methodist facing Pittsburgh — and McAdams, the kicking star from Washington, in an Oregon test. Plus Piepul of Notre Dame against Georgia Tech, Franck of Minnesota, the Galloping Gopher, earns a rest before meeting Ohio State next week.

It should be stated here that the list of backs named above doesn't include by any means the complete roster of those headed for national honors. There are many others.

But certainly Harmon, Kimbrough, Scott, Johnston, Allerdice, Piepul, deCorrevont, Franck and McAdams must find a high rating among outstanding performers. They were all good last fall. Each one had a big year in 1939, and 1940, with any luck in the way of injuries, should be even bigger and brighter.

Various Qualities

These backs mentioned carry various qualities into action. Tom Harmon is without question one of the great ball carriers of all time—a big, fast, elusive traveler who is also physically powerful and hard to hold after being tackled.

Many rate Kimbrough of Texas A. and M. as the best back they ever looked at. Kimbrough is more of a power back. He is heavier and even stronger than Harmon but not quite as fast weaving his way along the white chalk marks.

Allerdice of Princeton is the best passer of the lot, although even the sniping Tiger hasn't much on Don Scott, the Buckeye banderillero. Scott is kicker, passer, blocker and runner. He hasn't Harmon's speed nor Kimbrough's drive. But big Don can do quite a number of things exceptionally well.

Piepul of Notre Dame is one of the country's finest fullbacks. I doubt that you'll find any back on any field faster than Franck of Minnesota, as swift as northern lightning.

Other Entries

"And don't underrate my boy, Preston Johnston," remarks coach Matty Bell of S.M.U. "Ask Notre Dame or Texas A. and M. about this man. Here is both a kicker and a runner and whatever else you happen to need."

So Texas has two star entries in Kimbrough and Johnston against the challenge from other campus fields.

What about Bill deCorrevont? He was the most sensational high school star of many generations. Dick Hanley rated him close to Red Grange. Last year he was injured and he was also a trifle green. He has his chance against Ohio State today to show us how far he has come along and just how much he has. Ohio State may find he has plenty.

The best kicker of the lot is McAdams of Washington. Last fall he almost booted Washington into a winning game over Southern California when Jimmy Phelan's team was outnumbered three to one in reserve power.

Great kickers are scarce. There are not many Strongs or Kercheavals or Colwells dotting the landscape. Nor many Eric Tiptons, the Duke entry who offset such backs as Goldberg, Stebbins and Cassiano almost single-footed.

Moving In

Then there is Christman of Missouri, another brilliant passer. The main trouble here is that Christman injured a leg sliding in a baseball game and may not be at his physical peak.

Nebraska has a star back in Herman Rohrig. And there is a back at Marshall College, Huntington, W. Va., who draws more acclaim than even Cliff Battles picked up on his way to pro fame.

"I've seen most of them, including Gipp and Battles," an old Cornell star told me recently. "I'll take Jacky Hunt of Marshall. So would every pro team in the country if he didn't have another year. Two hundred pounds, faster than Battles, kicker and passer, the best back I ever saw anywhere and I've been around twenty-five years."

Langhurst of Ohio State is a fast, hard runner and an exceptionally good man on laterals. He also will have his chance this afternoon against Northwestern.

What about Cornell? The Big Red from Cayuga and Ithaca must have something better than normal. It has. But most of them are too well matched. They are all good, from McCullough all along the backfield cast.

Cornell has no one particular back its opponents must watch—and stop. You never know just which one may break out with a running or passing rash and take charge of the show.

This doesn't mean the backs are everything on a football field. Take that line away and see what happens. Remove that blocker and see how far they go. But given the line and the blocker, see who makes next day's headlines.

Allegany Jayvees Defeat Fort Hill

Paced by Charley Kellogg, the Allegany high school Jayfee football team defeated Fort Hill's Jayvees 14-0 yesterday afternoon at the Campobello field for its second straight of the season. Kellogg scored the first Allegany touchdown when he recovered the opening kickoff behind the Sentinels' goal line. Wilkinson added the extra point.

Kellogg added the second touchdown in the same quarter when he raced 45 yards down the sidelines to score, and Wilkinson again added the extra point.

Fort Hill threatened in the second quarter but was stopped on the Allegany one yard line. Then a pass Wilkinson to Kellogg was good for 43 yards and brought Allegany out of danger. Wilkinson put Allegany in scoring position in the third quarter when his pass to Smith was good for 48 yards.

In the fourth period Troutman of Fort Hill took the ball on a fumble and raced 55 yards but was called back and his touchdown bid voided.

U. B. Tossers Capture Sunday Loop Crown

United Brethren tossers, first half champions, staged an uphill battle this week to win the last three tilts of a five-game series with Evangelical ballhawks and capture the 1940 South Cumberland Sunday School Softball League title.

Evangelical won the first battle 3-2 and repeated by the same score in the second. Then United Brethren began its comeback by winning 11-8. The first half champs evened the series at two-all by taking the fourth skirmish 7-4 and yesterday made it three victories in a row, registering an 8-6 decision.

Wharton pitched all five games for United Brethren and allowed 24 runs and 46 hits. N. Breighner and Hobel of Evangelical yielded 51 hits and 30 runs. H. Miller paced Evangelical with ten safeties while Wharton and turner had 12 and 11 blows, respectively, for U. B. The scores:

Frostburg, Keyser in Title Battle Sunday

Bi-State Baseball League honors for the 1940 season will be at stake Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock when the Frostburg American Legion outfit and the Keyser (W. Va.) Moose meet in the third and deciding game of their series at Frostburg's Community Park.

Manager Enoch Price's Legionnaires, who won the first series contest 8-0 behind the pitching of Stanley Stetz, bowed 4-0 last Sunday when the Moose, playing at home, evened accounts and sent the series to the limit.

Price intends to send Southpaw Stetz to the mound in the deciding clash while Al Thomas or Johnny Casey, righthanders, will serve up the slants for Keyser.

Umpire-In-Chief "Bobby" Cavanaugh last night assigned umpires for the grand finale. He placed Dunn behind the plate, put himself on third and stationed Merrbach at first.

Fort Hill Gridders Trip LaSalle, 19 to 6

Sentinels Grab Lead in City Race with Win

Dean, Carnell, Hare Score for Winners; Small Tallies for LaSalle

LaSalle high's hopes for a city football championship in Pat Conway's first year back at the local school as coach, received a severe jolt last night at the Fort Hill Stadium when the red-and-white-clad warriors of Fort Hill High tripped the Blue and Gold by a 19-6 count before a throng of over 3,000 persons, one of the largest crowds of the current season.

The heavier Sentinels took command at the outset of the tussle, marching 46 yards early in the period to gain an early lead, and tallied in the third and fourth stanzas, following LaSalle's six-pointer in the second quarter.

LaSalle was kept on the defense most of the time and cashed in on its only real opportunity, Vic Malloy rocketing a beautiful pass into the waiting hands of Johnny Small on the 10-yard line, with the latter racing into the end zone unmolested.

Dean Bolts Over

Billy Dean, swivel-hipped halfback of the Red Devils, Gene "Lefty" Hare, and Jack Carnell, who replaced Boyd Wade in the Fort Hill fullback slot, with the latter returning to his old post on the line, accounted for the winners' scores in that order.

Dean bolted over the payoff line on a reverse around end in the first quarter following a sustained 46-yard march, Hare galloped 26 yards shortly after the second half got underway for the second score, and Carnell manufactured the final marker with a four-yard off tackle slant in the final chapter. Dean converted on a place kick after the first touchdown but his try was blocked on the second attempt, and a pass pitched by Junior Rice on the third score was batted earthward.

First downs give a good indication of the Sentinels' superiority, the Hilltoppers moving the sticks 14 times to LaSalle's six. A total of 231 yards were amassed by the Longmen on scrimmage plays as compared to 109 for the North Enders. The winners lost 27 yards on running plays, while LaSalle had 15 chopped off its total on ground plays. LaSalle completed only three of 11 passes, but those three completions netted 79 yards. Fort Hill tried four passes, three in the first heat, and completed two for 28 yards. Fort Hill lost 60 yards on penalties while the losers were set back 20.

Sentinels Drive Goalward

Fort Hill began its first touchdown drive when Billy Dean returned Small's punt 14 yards to LaSalle's 46-yard ribbon shortly after the opening whistle. Dean, "Pete" Berryman and Carnell alternated in tugging the leather for a first on the 36, and a pass, thrown by Berryman and falling into the hands of Whitford after deflecting off the fingers of another Fort Hill player, gained eight yards and put the Sentinels in position for Carnell to crack the line for another first on the LaSalle 25.

Dean gained two yards on a reverse and then Berryman faded back and hurled a pass to Dean who was run out of bounds on the LaSalle three-yard line. Berryman made a yard on a whack at tackle and then Dean sprinted over with the first score on his aforementioned reverse. Dean also split the uprights for the point.

Midway in the second round, the Red Devils were forced to kick following a bad pass from center which lost 14 yards, the ball being downed by Berryman on the LaSalle 33. Bill Cavanaugh, one of the Green Wave's backfield stars of the game, picked up a first down on the losers' 46 on two line plays and Bill "Lefty" Smith zig-zagged through tackle for 16 yards and another first on the Fort Hill 38, from which point Malloy fired his long toss to Small for LaSalle's touchdown. Malloy's try for the extra point from placement was low.

Fumble Hurts LaSalle

A LaSalle fumble on the second running play of the second half set the stage for the Hilltoppers' second touchdown march. "Dick" Boyle made eight yards following the Sentinel kickoff, but Malloy, after going through the line for enough yardage for a first, fumbled the leather and Whitford recovered for the winners on the North Enders' 44.

Dean made six at left tackle and Carnell fought his way through the same spot for 12 yards and a first on the LaSalle 26. Dean was stopped for no gain on the next play, but Carnell then shot through left tackle, broke into the clear, and jogged 26 yards for another touchdown. Dean's attempted conversion was blocked.

Small's boot gave The Red Devils the ball on the LaSalle 38 as the final chapter got underway, and it was from there that Coach Johnny Long's gridders blitzkrieged their way for another score.

Tom Harmon Now Drawing 'Em Like Red Grange Did

(Released by North American Newspaper Alliance)

By JOHN LARDNER

NEW YORK, Oct. 11—Remember how they used to follow Red Grange from town to town in the days when the handsome iceman played college football? It's only once in a generation that a college player draws 'em like that. Today the fellow's name is Tom Harmon.

Mr. Harmon is the all-everything who plays halfback for Michigan. This Saturday the hosts will follow Thomas to Cambridge, Mass., where the Michigan team plays Harvard. Michigan is a good team, and Harvard is a mediocre team, and between them they would not draw flies if it were not for Thomas Harmon, now the hottest football player in the United States of America.

Among the suckers proceeding to the fringe of Boston to watch Harmon play will be your correspondent. They have told me so much about Harmon that I can no longer contain my curiosity.

Hopes Harmon Is Stopped Cold

Having done a short stretch at Harvard myself, I naturally will not be rooting for Harmon, the all-everything, to run wild. I hope they will stop him cold. But logic compels me to confess that the situation is made to order for Thomas. In addition to which, the man is red-hot.

He scored some four touchdowns and points after touchdown against California in California territory. After the game, Mr. Stub Allison, the California coach, made a statement.

"Harmon is the best back I ever saw," said Mr. Allison.

The following week, Michigan played Michigan State, as they often do. Harmon scored all the points for Michigan; three touchdowns and three points after touchdown. After the game, the Michigan State coach made a statement.

"Harmon is the best back I ever saw," said he.

Harmon's own coach, Fritz Crisler, offers the same sort of testimony.

"I saw Red Grange," says Mr. Crisler, "and Harmon is better. He's not only a runner. He can pass, block and tackle. Grange was chiefly a ball-carrier, and even in that department, Grange had no edge on Harmon."

Well, up till now, the boys have got me. I saw Grange once. I saw him against Pennsylvania, in his senior year, and the fellow ran wild, though circumstances were piled up against him. In my soul of souls, I have always rated Grange the best running back I ever looked at. But I haven't seen Harmon.

This time I'm going to see him.

A Popular Superstition Recalled

Speaking of Grange, I would like to call attention to a popular superstition that exists today, thanks to the efforts of the super-super football experts. They talk about blocking. Well, blocking is a vital thing in football. But don't believe it when you hear them say that so-and-so would never have gained a yard except for his blockers. That's the popular belief, induced by the experts, but there has been many a character who ran for magnificent yardage without a blocker.

Grange was one. They made a national hero out of Earl Britton, his principal blocker, but Britton himself says no.

"Listen," says Mr. Britton. "I threw some good blocks for Grange, but half of the time he was ten yards ahead of me when I blocked. He was off like a jackrabbit. He ran his own interference."

I was very much pleased the other day when Mr. Lou Little, the canny Columbia coach, spoke the same idea while discussing Harmon. All around him were mournful guys talking of Harmon and saying, "Give me good blocking instead of these highly-touted runners."

Mr. Little looked up suddenly from his bowl of soup.

"Not me," he said. "To hell with these blockers. Give me a runner like Harmon."

That's about the size of it. At least, that's the size of it up till now. Mr. Harmon goes against the Harvards this week-end. I hope they stop him. But if they don't, I'll have seen the man at his hottest, and maybe I'll have seen the greatest back of modern times.

Jimmy Wilson Gets Rousing Welcome Home

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 11 (AP)—Jimmy Wilson, world series baseball hero, was given a rousing welcome home today.

A crowd of 3,000 greeted the 40-year-old Cincinnati Reds coach who went behind the plate when injuries laid low regular catcher Ernie Lombardi.

Many in the crowd accompanied Jimmy to his home where they jammed the house and emptied the Wilson icebox of eatables.

Wilson, who caught six of the seven games and at the end had his creaking joints all taped up to prevent serious injury, is going to "rest" for the next few weeks. As for his winter plans—"I'll rest some more."

East Side League Clubs Plan Series

The Crystal Park and Potomac News clubs of the East Side Softball League will open a five-game series next Monday at Community Park. All contests will start at 4:30. The winning club will receive a trophy.

Ridgeley Hi Tops Hyndman, Pa., for 34 to 0 Triumph

West Virginians Score in Every Period of Contest

Coach Bill Hahn's Ridgeley high school football team took its third scalp of the season yesterday on its home field, defeating Hyndman, Pa., high 34 to 0, while scoring in each period and doing a double dose in the second quarter.

Hyndman kicked off to Ridgeley and with Zimmerman, Lashbaugh and Washabaugh doing the carrying, the latter went over for the touchdown from the five yard stripe. Lookabaugh added the point.

Hyndman made two first downs in the second period then kicked to Ridgeley which lost the ball on a fumble.

Lookabaugh scored but the try for the point in the second, was wide. H broke loose again and scored from the 25 yard line.

Zimmerman's pass to Washabaugh in the end zone was good for a score in the third period and a pass, Lookabaugh to Hartman was good for the extra point.

Hyndman filled the air with passes in the final quarter but an interception halted the hostilities and Zimmerman promptly cut loose with an end run from the 28 yard line for another touchdown. Lookabaugh added the point.

Everett Advances in College Net Tourney

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., Oct. 11 (AP)—Harris Everett, the pace-setting North Carolinan, showed no sign of faltering in the Middle Atlantic Intercollegiate tennis matches today as he easily overcame Richard Feuille in a quarter-finals match 6-2, 6-2.

The University of Virginia entry could find no flaw in the Everett offensive and was all but powerless against the lightning play of the University of North Carolina star.

In the second set, Everett took five straight games before momentarily weakening and extending the frame to eight games.

In doubles play, the North Carolina combination of Everett and Carver allowed the Wagner College team of Ken Axelsen and Carl Shere just 17 points in wining 6-0, 6-0.

Other doubles matches follow:

University of Maryland, Phillip Burkam and Albert Ritzenberg, eliminated Emory and Henry College, C. E. Coney and J. B. Hutcheson, 6-0, 6-1.

University of Virginia, Feuille and Landon Buchanan, defeated West Virginia University team of Hubert Martin and Ansell Knotts, 6-0, 6-2.

Muhlenberg College, Ray Moats and Jack Minogue, turned back Washington and Lee University, Richard Spindle III and Jack Mallory, 6-4, 6-4.

Other quarter - finals singles matches:

Don Martin, Georgetown, refreshed after a hard-won second round victory over Knotts of West Virginia, 11-13, 6-4, 6-1, took Burkam of Maryland, 6-3, 6-1.

Ritzenberg of Maryland had scant difficulty disposing of Washington and Lee's spindle 6-1, 6-4.

Frostburg State Opens Soccer Season Today

Frostburg, Oct. 11—Coach George Carrington's Frostburg State College soccer team will open its 1940 campaign here tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock against Blue Ridge College, which will bring a veteran aggregation to the Mountain City.

Last season Frostburg smothered the Vultures, but Coach "Bill" Terry is confident his experienced crew will get even with the Mountaineers tomorrow.

Coach Carrington has indicated only four boys are certain of starting berths on Frostburg's eleven. They are Johnny Meyers, center half; Bill Merriman and Fred Sacco, fullbacks, and Hal Conrad, center forward.

The other halfbacks will be selected from Bill Houck, Les Eisentrout, Ralph Koontz and John Thomas. There is a wealth of material on the line including Joe Wagner, Bill Thomas and Willie Shuff, all veterans.

Several newcomers are showing up well and the starting lineup may include Jack Thomas, Ed Athey, Bill Lamberson, Jack Junkins or Paul Paugh. The goal position will be filled by "Hank" Bell, Jake Carrington or John Thomas.

The Frostburg Jayvees will open their season today against Grantsville High in the Garrett county town. Tomorrow morning, the Jayvees will entertain Oakland High.

Grid Games Today Offer Good Line On Major Elevens

By BILL BONI

NEW YORK, Oct. 11 (AP)—There is such nice balance to tomorrow's college football program that it is difficult, from here, to pick out any single game as the day's feature. But if the task is tackled by sections, it becomes simpler.

In the mid-west we'd say it was Ohio State against Northwestern, because the Buckeyes are riding high in quest of the "Big Nine" championship and Northwestern proved itself a surprise contender with last Saturday's impressive shellacking of Syracuse.

Front rank in the east goes to Cornell and Army, for the simple reason that the Ithacans seem even more impressive than the all-winning 1939 crew and Army should prove a good test of just how much better.

The south offers three headliners —Georgia-Mississippi, Auburn- Mississippi State and Vanderbilt-Kentucky; Texas against Oklahoma is the southwest piece de resistance, and on the west coast the appearance of last year's No. 1 team, Texas A. and M., against U.C.L.A. is likely to cop the headlines.

Predictions

With a silent prayer for the help of three good blocking backs, here go the week's predictions (home team named first, probable attendance in parentheses):

Northwestern-Ohio State (40,000) —We've seen the Wildcats, and they looked very good. We've read about the Buckeyes, and they sound very good. Taking a flyer on first-hand over second-hand evidence, Northwestern.

Army-Cornell (30,000) — In football, there's nothing better than a good senior team, that's the pick, Cornell.

Notre Dame-Georgia Tech (40,000) —Dixie Hipper-Dipper against South Bend manpower. We'll take the manpower, Notre Dame.

Georgia-Mississippi (25,000)—Taking the young Georgia Bulldogs.

U.C.L.A.-Texas A. M. (60,000)— There was nothing wrong with Kimbrough at last report. The Aggies.

Fordham-Tulane (40,000) — The Rams have been primed for this one since Tulane shackled 'em last year, Fordham.

Illinois-Southern California (35,000)—Word from Champaign says the Illini are set to go. But that Trojan machine is bound to outscore somebody, and this may be the day, Southern Cal.

Texas-Oklahoma (35,000)—Texas looks to have it.

Harvard-Michigan (40,000) — As they might say down south, "Harmon come by but Harvard wasn't ready, Michigan.

Nebraska - Indiana (32,000) — They're building this up a a pitchers' battle. Taking Hal Hursh and Indiana.

Penn-Yale (50,000) — Can't see anything but Penn.

Auburn-Mississippi State (20,000) —Auburn out of a hat.

Vanderbilt - Kentucky (12,000) — Kentucky.

Clemson-Wake Forest (14,000) — As tough as they come, Clemson but close.

Dartmouth - Columbia (8,000) — Columbia, the same way.

North Carolina-Texas Christian (20,000)—T.C.U.

Pitt-Southern Methodist (30,000) —The southwest has a lot of good ones this year, S.M.U. is one of them, and our choice.

Stanford-Santa Clara (45,000) — Stanford, but it could be the other way all too easily.

Princeton-Navy (35,000) — The Tigers have the offense, Navy the defense. The best defense is a good offense, they say, Princeton.

Iowa-Wisconsin (35,000)—Picking Iowa, even without Kinnick.

Arkansas-Baylor — Baylor, by a shade.

Rice-Louisiana State (25,000) — L.S.U.

Oregon - Washington (30,000) — Washington. The Huskies can do other things besides row.

California - Washington State (20,000)—California to keep bouncing back.

Michigan State-Purdue (20,000)— State to win on pass.

Here 'n' there elsewhere:

Mid-West—Missouri over Kansas State, Kansas over Drake.

STAR BACKS UNDER FIRE

PITTSBURGH—By nightfall we'll all get a full report on the afternoon's operations of certain leading backs who have begun to inhabit the headlines lately.

In this list we have Tom Harmon running against Harvard for one of the features—Don Scott and Langhurst of Ohio State matching their stuff with Bill deCorrevont of Northwestern—Dave Allerdice of Princeton meeting up with Navy—John Kimbrough taking aim at U.C.L.A.'s defenses—Preston Johnston of Southern Methodist facing Pittsburgh — and McAdams, the kicking star from Washington, in an Oregon test. Plus Piepul of Notre Dame against Georgia Tech, Franck of Minnesota, the Galloping Gopher, earns a rest before meeting Ohio State next week.

It should be stated here that the list of backs named above doesn't include by any means the complete roster of those headed for national honors. There are many others.

But certainly Harmon, Kimbrough, Scott, Johnston, Allerdice, Piepul, deCorrevont, Franck and McAdams must find a high rating among outstanding performers. They were all good last fall. Each one had a big year in 1939, and 1940, with any luck in the way of injuries, should be even bigger and brighter.

Various Qualities

These backs mentioned carry various qualities into action. Tom Harmon is without question one of the great ball carriers of all time—a big, fast, elusive traveler who is also physically powerful and hard to hold after being tackled.

Many rate Kimbrough of Texas A. and M. as the best back they ever looked at. Kimbrough is more of a power back. He is heavier and even stronger than Harmon but not quite as fast weaving his way along the white chalk marks.

Allerdice of Princeton is the best passer of the lot, although even the sniping Tiger hasn't much on Don Scott, the Buckeye banderillero. Scott is kicker, passer, blocker and runner. He hasn't Harmon's speed nor Kimbrough's drive. But big Don can do quite a number of things exceptionally well.

Piepul of Notre Dame is one of the country's finest fullbacks. I doubt that you'll find any back on any field faster than Franck of Minnesota, as swift as northern lightning.

Other Entries

"And don't underrate my boy, Preston Johnston," remarks coach Matty Bell of S.M.U. "Ask Notre Dame or Texas A. and M. about this man. Here is both a kicker and a runner and whatever else you happen to need."

So Texas has two star entries in Kimbrough and Johnston against the challenge from other campus fields.

What about Bill deCorrevont? He was the most sensational high school star of many generations, Dick Hanley rated him close to Red Grange. Last year he was injured and he was also a trifle green. He has his chance against Ohio State today to show us how far he has come along and just how much he has. Ohio State may find he has plenty.

The best kicker of the lot is McAdams of Washington. Last fall he almost booted Washington into a winning game over Southern California when Jimmy Phelan's team was outnumbered three to one in reserve power.

Great kickers are scarce. There are not many Strongs or Kercheavals or Colwells dotting the landscape. Nor many Eric Tiptons, the Duke entry who offset such backs as Goldberg, Stebbins and Cassiano almost single-footed.

Moving In

Then there is Christman of Missouri, another brilliant passer. The main trouble here is that Christman injured a leg sliding in a baseball game and may not be at his physical peak.

Nebraska has a star back in Herman Rohrig. And there is a back at Marshall College, Huntington, W. Va., who draws more acclaim than even Cliff Battles picked up on his way to pro fame.

"I've seen most of them, including Gipp and Battles," an old Cornell star told me recently. "I'll take Jacky Hunt of Marshall. So would every pro team in the country if he didn't have another year. Two hundred pounds, faster than Battles, kicker and passer, the best back I ever saw anywhere and I've been around twenty-five years."

Langhurst of Ohio State is a fast, hard runner and an exceptionally good man on laterals. He also will have his chance this afternoon against Northwestern.

What about Cornell? The Big Red from Cayuga and Ithaca must have something better than normal. It has. But most of them are too well matched. They are all good, from McCullough all along the backfield cast.

Cornell has no one particular back its opponents must watch—and stop. You never know just which one may break out with a running or passing rash and take charge of the show.

This doesn't mean the backs are everything on a football field. Take that line away and see what happens. Remove that blocker and see how far they go. But given the line and the blocker, see who makes next day's headlines.

Allegany Jayvees Defeat Fort Hill

Paced by Charley Kellogg, the Allegany high school Jayfee football team defeated Fort Hill's Jayvees 14-0 yesterday afternoon at the Campobello field for its second straight of the season. Kellogg scored the first Allegany touchdown when he recovered the opening kickoff behind the Sentinels' goal line. Wilkinson added the extra point.

Kellogg added the second touchdown in the same quarter when he raced 45 yards down the sidelines to score, and Wilkinson again added the extra point.

Fort Hill threatened in the second quarter but was stopped on the Allegany one yard line. Then a pass Wilkinson to Kellogg was good for 43 yards and brought Allegany out of danger. Wilkinson put Allegany in scoring position in the third quarter when his pass to Smith was good for 48 yards.

In the fourth period Troutman of Fort Hill took the ball on a fumble and raced 55 yards but was called back and his touchdown bid voided.

The lineups:

Substitutes: Allegany—Nicholson, Klosterman, Hull, Fast and Lucas. Fort Hill—Redhead, Johnson, Baker, and Wilkons.

U. B. Tossers Capture Sunday Loop Crown

United Brethren tossers, first half champions, staged an uphill battle this week to win the last three tilts of a five-game series with Evangelical ballhawks and capture the 1940 South Cumberland Sunday School Softball League title.

Evangelical won the first battle 3-2 and repeated by the same score in the second. Then United Brethren began its comeback by winning 11-8. The first half champs evened the series at two-all by taking the fourth skirmish 7-4 and yesterday made it three victories in a row, registering an 8-6 decision.

Wharton pitched all five games for United Brethren and allowed 24 runs and 46 hits. N. Breighner and Hobel of Evangelical yielded 51 hits and 30 runs. H. Miller paced Evangelical with ten safeties while Wharton and turner had 12 and 11 blows, respectively, for U. B. The scores:

Frostburg, Keyser in Title Battle Sunday

Bi-State Baseball League honors for the 1940 season will be at stake Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock when the Frostburg American Legion outfit and the Keyser (W. Va.) Moose meet in the third and deciding game of their series at Frostburg's Community Park.

Manager Enoch Price's Legionnaires, who won the first series contest 8-0 behind the pitching of Stanley Stetz, bowed 4-0 last Sunday when the Moose, playing at home, evened accounts and sent the series to the limit.

Price intends to send Southpaw Stetz to the mound in the deciding clash while Al Thomas or Johnny Casey, righthanders, will serve up the slants for Keyser.

Umpire-In-Chief "Bobby" Cavanaugh last night assigned umpires for the grand finale. He placed Dunn behind the plate, put himself on third and stationed Merrbach at first.

Allegany High School's defending champions and Coach Eddie Semler's Hagerstown High eleven will meet at the Fort Hill Stadium this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in a contest which will mark the start of the annual Cumberland Valley Athletic League campaign.

Both squads were hard hit by graduation last spring but in different ways. Allegany lost its entire regular backfield and several linemen while Hagerstown suffered most on the line.

Bill Russell, quarterback; "Pinky" Triesler, captain and right halfback, and Fred Fahrney, left end, were the only 1939 regulars who reported to Semler this fall.

Last year when Jim Gaffney was the Allegany sparkplug, the West Siders and the Hubs put on one of the best games in the CVAL with the Campers winning 12-7.

Strong Passing Attack

The Maroon and Gray of Hagerstown has figured in two games so far this season and in both, the Hubs piled up large scores while keeping their goal line intact. In their lid-lifter, the Semlerites trounced Harpers Ferry 21-0 and last week they romped over Front Royal (Va.) 26-0.

Hagerstown has a strong passing attack with four of the seven touchdowns it has scored this fall either being set up or made over the air route.

Allegany, which blasted Keyser 24-0 last week, will still be weakened by injuries although Fred Sullivan, right end who didn't play against the Golden Toronado because of the death of his father, will be back at his old post.

Tommy Rudd, injured in the Campers' second game of the season, is still out of school while Bill James, hurt against Baltimore City College two weeks ago, has returned to his classes but still isn't ready.

Piedmont at Moorefield

The Alleganians' ball-carrying quartet will be Wayne Abbott at quarter, Milton Athey and Eddie Robinette at the halfback positions, and Bill Yoder at fullback.

The Campobello eleven will be seeking its fourth victory in five starts. The locals defeated Ridgeley 21-6 and westmont of Johnstown, Pa., 7-6 before losing 34-6 to Baltimore City College.

Two other schoolboy contests are scheduled in this section tomorrow. Piedmont and Moorefield will meet in a Potomac Valley Conference engagement at Moorefield and Berkeley Springs will entertain St. Mary's High of Hagerstown. Moorefield bested Piedmont 6-0 and Berkeley won 19-0 from St. Mary's in skirmishes last year.

Golf About Same Old Game It Was Fifty Years Ago

Just Lot of Fancy Gadgets Added To Improve Pastime

By DOUGLAS RICHARD

SAVANNAH, Ga., Oct. 11 (AP) — So you think golf has come a long way since frugal Scotsmen used six clubs to knock about a hide-covered ball stuffed with a peck of duck feathers'.

Well, take it from Robert White, first president of the Professional Golfers' Association, fundamentally it's the same game it was a half-century ago.

A lot of fancy surface improvements, yes. Plenty of bright stuff to give it shine. But essentially no different, for example, than it was when Scotsman Harry Vardon won the U. S. open in 1900.

And as for that, says White, now a golf course and hotel operator, I'd like to see Bobby Jones, with his 14 clubs, and Vardon, using his six, match strokes.

"As a matter of fact, I think Alexa Sterling, United States women's amateur champion from 1916 through 1920, had a better style than Jones ever had. She could match almost any golfer, past or present, in that department."

Pros Scarce as Dice

Golf professionals were as scarce as dice in a gambling hall raid when White came to the United States from his native St. Andrews, Scotland, in 1894. Four to be exact.

"They were the four Willies," he reminisces, "Willie Dunn, Willie Norton, Willie Campbell and Willie Davis."

A typical Scot, with Ruddy complexion and iron-grey hair, the erect 64-year-old veteran of the links still plays par or sub-par golf. In the World War era he played an active part in organizing the P.G.A., and was its president for the first three years of its existence.

"The greatest changes I've seen in golf," he says, "undoubtedly have been in the balls and clubs. When I was a lad, they were still using the old leather ball stuffed with a duck's pin feathers — about a hatful of feathers, it was."

He witnessed the change to gutta percha balls, which proved unsuccessful until golfers learned to notch them, giving them wind resistance. Smooth and slick as they first were, they flew off at crazy angles, dipping one way and then another. His father, he says, invented a machine to groove the balls.

"So when I came to America, I brought one of the machines with me," he explains, "and started making balls myself. Then, in 1905, a fellow named Haskell invented the first rubber-cored ball. They didn't cost much more to make than balls do now, but many golfers — including Scotsmen — would pay up to $5 for them, so scarce were they.

One Ball a Winter

"I played with one ball through a whole Winter," he chuckles. "I lost it about three times, but each time I paid a negro a dollar to find it.

"Clubs were all hand-made until about 1890, and even then they were difficult to play with, for the faces were flush with the shaft, making it hard to hit accurately.

"We used to play with six clubs in the old days—the brassie, driver, niblick, putter, mid-iron and mashie.

"Golfers today, even front-runners like Snead and Nelson, are in the majority mechanical players, using practically the same effort on each swing, regardless of the distance from the hole, and hitting the proper distance by picking the right club," White maintains.

"In the old days, the boys used three, four or five clubs and got the right distance by adjusting the power of their swing. That's the difference."

In White's book there were about four real champions in the late 90's and the early 1900's, while "today there must be 100 or more capable of winning the big tourneys if they're 'right.' "

About 75 per cent of the pros in the early times, when the P.G.A. was organized, were "foreigners"—English and Scotch — while today 90 per cent or more are American-born.

Vardon Fostered Game

"I think Harry Vardon, Scotch golfer who took the U. S. Open in 1900 and won the British open five times, did more for golf in the United States than any other one man," White declares.

The veteran pro estimates he has designed more than 100 courses.

"We used to lay out a course every Sunday," he laughs, "putting up a stake in a likely-looking spot for a tee, ad another one for the hole. Now it is a full-time profession for many people."

White listed among the courses he laid out the Longvue Club in Pittsburgh.

"Why 18 holes? I don't know that there's any real reason, but I imagine it is because that's a good distance for people to walk. After 18 holes they are comfortably tired, but not worn out," he says.

White doesn't like the idea of continually lengthening courses to keep pros from shattering par too often. He feels it's unfair to the average week-end golfer.

"Being a conservative," he says, "the game suits me pretty well as it stands."

The SPORT TRAIL

By WHITNEY MARTIN

NEW YORK, Oct. 11—A group of rabid football fans, still a little goggle-eyed at the way Tennessee Vols had dusted off the Dukes, sat around a hotel room at Knoxville after the game. An eastern game was mentioned.

"They don't play fotball up there the way we play it down here," a drawling lad remarked casually.

Inasmuch as the group, with one exception, was made up of southerners, there was no comment. It was as if someone had said: "birds have wings." To the Dixie fans it was just a statement of an obvious fact.

The lone visitor said nothing. He long ago had learned to take the "Honest, mister, I didn't see a thing" attitude under such circumstances. Besides, we can't run very fast any more.

Anyway, the comment was representative of a sectional pride that is by no means confined to any one section of the country, and there is no quicker way to start a round-robin argument in ageographically mixed gatherin than for a brave loyalist to start extolling the brand of fotball played in his subdivision.

We've heard them all, from the sunny shores of California to the rock-bound coast of Maine, to coin a phrase.

Your easterner will point to the fact his section is the cradle of the game, that Cornell refutes any claim of superiority by other sections. Until recently he would bring in Pittsburgh as an eastern team, but for some strange reason he has suddenly moved Pittsburgh westward.

The southerners maintain that nowhere else do they play the hard, slashing, life-and-death game that is played in Dixie. The southwest, with its air-minded lads and tough competition within the family circle, takes off its hat to no other section and will dive into intersectional records to back its claims.

The midwest, which claims its Big Ten confernce is the toughest league in the country, also claims its stout, hard-charging lines would wreck the southwest's passing before it could get started.

Far westerners point to the Rose Bowl Records and the fact that their bowl representative has its hands full beating its own coast rivals to earn the bowl assignment.

They all may have their talking points, but the fact remains that in recent years no section can claim a monopoly on top-flight football. The game has become too standardized, and it is a little too one-sided to say that the boys in Athens, Ga., are a little more rugged and alert than the lads in Walla Walla, Wash., or Kankakee, Ill.

In fact, with Oklahomans playing on California teams and Ohioans playing at Tennessee and pretty near everybody playing at Wake Forest the sectional pride idea takes a thumping, although there still are some schools, such as Minnesota, Nebraska, Oklahoma, Michigan, and some of the southwest schools, which still grow most of their own talent.

It's a debate which just goes around in circles like a carnival merry-go-round, and the safest thing to say when caught in it is nothing, and very loudly.

Kress Mentioned For St. Paul Post

St. Paul, Oct. 11. (AP)—Ralph Red Kress, Detroit Tiger player-coach and former Minneapolis infielder, is one of the candidates being considered for the vacant position of manager of the St. Paul American Association baseball club, Business Manager Lou McKenna said today.

Kress had been released by the Tigers it was announced in Detroit today.

Woolens	6	6	.500
Rayons	6	6	.500
Crepes	6	6	.500
Tafettas	3	9	.250

Lining dux-men maintained their one-game lead over the runnerup Satin crew by taking two games from the Rayons while the Satins did likewise to the Crepe crew in the Celanese Warehouse Mixed Bowling League on the Savoy alleys. In the other tussle the lowly Tafettas annexed two games from the Woolens.

Although outscored in total pins 1693 to 1690 the league-leaders managed to eke two of the three games from the Rayons who really hit their stride in the final tilt to win with 82 sticks to spare. Fred Lehman's 403 set topped the Linings while Moe Early's 443 paced the Rayons.

Satin pin-poppers kept pace with the league-leaders by copping two of three games from the Crepe crew with Harry Boyer toppling an even 400 maples for high man.

The Tafetta crew pulled the surprise of the evening when after dropping the opening game they bounced right back and knocked the heavily favored Woolens into second division. Paul Johnson's 388 set led the cellar-dwellers while the best the losers could muster was Johnny Carlton's 341 set.

Bethany Bisons Win

BETHANY, W. Va., Oct. 11. (AP)—The Bethany College Bisons romped to their third consecutive gridiron triumph today by swamping Salem 33 to 0.

Chester Gordon, of Rochester, Pa., substitute end, grabbed two of the five passes Bethany completed for touchdowns. Stanley Stitt also made two touchdowns, one in the third quarter after he intercepted a Salem pass on his six-yard line and ran 94 yards. Hart scored the other touchdown and kicked three extra points.

Two Features on Laurel Race Card This Afternoon

Futurity and Laurel Mile Attract Good Fields of Thoroughbreds

LAUREL, Md., Oct. 11 (AP)—Two features, the $5,000-added Maryland Futurity and the $7,500-added Laurel Mile, will be offered racing fans here tomorrow and the overnight fields entered indicate that both will be thrillers.

The Futurity, a six-furlong dash for two-year-olds foaled in Maryland, drew sixteen overnight entries, with Alfred G. Vanderbilt's New World, one of the best juveniles of the season, topping the list and ruling a strong favorite.

Those considered likely to give New World some opposition in his first start in his home state are Mrs. N. K. Beal's Hardy Bud and T. D. Buhl's Le Chat, both recent winners here. New World will carry top weight of 119 pounds.

Others named were Wise Brave, Tamil, Proc, Kothra, Fold Under, Westley A, Becomly, Ler-Lin, Mardi Gras, Fair Hero, Escolar, Greek Jurist and John's Star. The Futurity will be the fifth race on the program.

The Laurel mile drew ten sprinters and routers, with W. L. Brann's Pictod, Joseph E. Widener's Roman and the Brandywine Stable's Masked General ruling the overnight favorites in that order.

Others entered were French Like Spring5s Yale O'Mine, E. K. Bryson's Clyde Tolson, Tall Trees Stable's Early Morn and Bill Farnsworth, Mrs. D. K. Kerr's True Call, J. O. Keene's War Beauty and C. S. Howard's Chanceview.

Cunningham Grocers To Form Grid Team

The Cunningham Grocery Wildcats, who played softball the past season, are attempting to organize a football team for boys from eight to 12 years of age. A meeting will be held Sunday evening at 6 o'clock at the home of Robert Cunningham, 413 Race street.

Catbirds	8	4	.667
Robins	6	6	.500
Flickers	5	7	.417
Canaries	5	7	.417
Eagles	2	10	.167

The Woodpeckers and Catbirds both made a clean sweep of their matches with the Flickers and Robins, while the Canaries took a pair from the Eagles. The triple loss shoved the Robins into third place and Flickers into a fourth place deadlock with the Canaries. The Canaries toppled over 793 pins in their second game to set a new team high for one game. F. Boch with 185 and B. Payton with 188 had high individual scores and also took high three game honors with 365 and 464 respectively. The Woodpeckers took total three game score with 2289.

Golf About Same Old Game It Was Fifty Years Ago

By DOUGLAS RICHARD

SAVANNAH, Ga., Oct. 11 (AP) — So you think golf has come a long way since frugal Scotsmen used six clubs to knock about a hide-covered ball stuffed with a peck of duck feathers'.

Well, take it from Robert White, first president of the Professional Golfers' Association, fundamentally it's the same game it was a half-century ago.

A lot of fancy surface improvements, yes. Plenty of bright stuff to give it shine. But essentially no different, for example, than it was when Scotsman Harry Vardon won the U. S. open in 1900.

And as for that, says White, now a golf course and hotel operator, I'd like to see Bobby Jones, with his 14 clubs, and Vardon, using his six, match strokes.

"As a matter of fact, I think Alexa Sterling, United States women's amateur champion from 1916 through 1920, had a better style than Jones ever had. She could match almost any golfer, past or present, in that department."

Pros Scarce as Dice

Golf professionals were as scarce as dice in a gambling hall raid when White came to the United States from his native St. Andrews, Scotland, in 1894. Four to be exact.

"They were the four Willies," he reminisces, "Willie Dunn, Willie Norton, Willie Campbell and Willie Davis."

A typical Scot, with Ruddy complexion and iron-grey hair, the erect 64-year-old veteran of the links still plays par or sub-par golf. In the World War era he played an active part in organizing the P.G.A., and was its president for the first three years of its existence.

"The greatest changes I've seen in golf," he says, "undoubtedly have been in the balls and clubs. When I was a lad, they were still using the old leather ball stuffed with a duck's pin feathers — about a hatful of feathers, it was."

He witnessed the change to gutta percha balls, which proved unsuccessful until golfers learned to notch them, giving them wind resistance. Smooth and slick as they first were, they flew off at crazy angles, dipping one way and then another. His father, he says, invented a machine to groove the balls.

"So when I came to America, I brought one of the machines with me," he explains, "and started making balls myself. Then, in 1905, a fellow named Haskell invented the first rubber-cored ball. They didn't cost much more to make than balls do now, but many golfers — including Scotsmen — would pay up to $5 for them, so scarce were they.

One Ball a Winter

"I played with one ball through a whole Winter," he chuckles. "I lost it about three times, but each time I paid a negro a dollar to find it.

"Clubs were all hand-made until about 1890, and even then they were difficult to play with, for the faces were flush with the shaft, making it hard to hit accurately.

"We used to play with six clubs in the old days—the brassie, driver, niblick, putter, mid-iron and mashie.

"Golfers today, even front-runners like Snead and Nelson, are in the majority mechanical players, using practically the same effort on each swing, regardless of the distance from the hole, and hitting the proper distance by picking the right club," White maintains.

"In the old days, the boys used three, four or five clubs and got the right distance by adjusting the power of their swing. That's the difference."

In White's book there were about four real champions in the late 90's and the early 1900's, while "today there must be 100 or more capable of winning the big tourneys if they're 'right.'"

About 75 per cent of the pros in the early times, when the P.G.A. was organized, were "foreigners"—English and Scotch — while today 90 per cent or more are American-born.

Vardon Fostered Game

"I think Harry Vardon, Scotch golfer who took the U. S. Open in 1900 and won the British open five times, did more for golf in the United States than any other one man," White declares.

The veteran pro estimates he has designed more than 100 courses.

"We used to lay out a course every Sunday," he laughs, "putting up a stake in a likely-looking spot for a tee, ad another one for the hole. Now it is a full-time profession for many people."

White listed among the courses he laid out the Longvue Club in Pittsburgh.

"Why 18 holes? I don't know that there's any real reason, but I imagine it is because that's a good distance for people to walk. After 18 holes they are comfortably tired, but not worn out," he says.

White doesn't like the idea of continually lengthening courses to keep pros from shattering par too often. He feels it's unfair to the average week-end golfer.

"Being a conservative," he says, "the game suits me pretty well as it stands."

By WHITNEY MARTIN

NEW YORK, Oct. 11—A group of rabid football fans, still a little goggle-eyed at the way Tennessee Vols had dusted off the Dukes, sat around a hotel room at Knoxville after the game. An eastern game was mentioned.

"They don't play fotball up there the way we play it down here," a drawling lad remarked casually.

Inasmuch as the group, with one exception, was made up of southerners, there was no comment. It was as if someone had said: "birds have wings." To the Dixie fans it was just a statement of an obvious fact.

The lone visitor said nothing. He long ago had learned to take the "Honest, mister, I didn't see a thing" attitude under such circumstances. Besides, we can't run very fast any more.

Anyway, the comment was representative of a sectional pride that is by no means confined to any one section of the country, and there is no quicker way to start a round-robin argument in ageographically mixed gatherin than for a brave loyalist to start extolling the brand of fotball played in his subdivision.

We've heard them all, from the sunny shores of California to the rock-bound coast of Maine, to coin a phrase.

Your easterner will point to the fact his section is the cradle of the game, that Cornell refutes any claim of superiority by other sections. Until recently he would bring in Pittsburgh as an eastern team, but for some strange reason he has suddenly moved Pittsburgh westward.

The southerners maintain that nowhere else do they play the hard, slashing, life-and-death game that is played in Dixie. The southwest, with its air-minded lads and tough competition within the family circle, takes off its hat to no other section and will dive into intersectional records to back its claims.

The midwest, which claims its Big Ten confernce is the toughest league in the country, also claims its stout, hard-charging lines would wreck the southwest's passing before it could get started.

Far westerners point to the Rose Bowl Records and the fact that their bowl representative has its hands full beating its own coast rivals to earn the bowl assignment.

They all may have their talking points, but the fact remains that in recent years no section can claim a monopoly on top-flight football. The game has become too standardized, and it is a little too one-sided to say that the boys in Athens, Ga., are a little more rugged and alert than the lads in Walla Walla, Wash., or Kankakee, Ill.

In fact, with Oklahomans playing on California teams and Ohioans playing at Tennessee and pretty near everybody playing at Wake Forest the sectional pride idea takes a thumping, although there still are some schools, such as Minnesota, Nebraska, Oklahoma, Michigan, and some of the southwest schools, which still grow most of their own talent.

It's a debate which just goes around in circles like a carnival merry-go-round, and the safest thing to say when caught in it is nothing, and very loudly.

Kress Mentioned For St. Paul Post

St. Paul, Oct. 11. (AP)—Ralph Red Kress, Detroit Tiger player-coach and former Minneapolis infielder, is one of the candidates being considered for the vacant position of manager of the St. Paul American Association baseball club, Business Manager Lou McKenna said today.

Kress had been released by the Tigers it was announced in Detroit today.

Lining dux-men maintained their one-game lead over the runnerup Satin crew by taking two games from the Rayons while the Satins did likewise to the Crepe crew in the Celanese Warehouse Mixed Bowling League on the Savoy alleys. In the other tussle the lowly Tafettas annexed two games from the Woolens.

Although outscored in total pins 1693 to 1690 the league-leaders managed to eke two of the three games from the Rayons who really hit their stride in the final tilt to win with 82 sticks to spare. Fred Lehman's 403 set topped the Linings while Moe Early's 443 paced the Rayons.

Satin pin-poppers kept pace with the league-leaders by copping two of three games from the Crepe crew with Harry Boyer toppling an even 400 maples for high man.

The Tafetta crew pulled the surprise of the evening when after dropping the opening game they bounced right back and knocked the heavily favored Woolens into second division. Paul Johnson's 388 set led the cellar-dwellers while the best the losers could muster was Johnny Carlton's 341 set.

Bethany Bisons Win

BETHANY, W. Va., Oct. 11. (AP)—The Bethany College Bisons romped to their third consecutive gridiron triumph today by swamping Salem 33 to 0.

Chester Gordon, of Rochester, Pa., substitute end, grabbed two of the five passes Bethany completed for touchdowns. Stanley Stitt also made two touchdowns, one in the third quarter after he intercepted a Salem pass on his six-yard line and ran 94 yards. Hart scored the other touchdown and kicked three extra points.

Two Features on Laurel Race Card This Afternoon

Futurity and Laurel Mile Attract Good Fields of Thoroughbreds

LAUREL, Md., Oct. 11 (AP)—Two features, the $5,000-added Maryland Futurity and the $7,500-added Laurel Mile, will be offered racing fans here tomorrow and the overnight fields entered indicate that both will be thrillers.

The Futrity, a six-furlong dash for two-year-olds foaled in Maryland, drew sixteen overnight entries, with Alfred G. Vanderbilt's New World, one of the best juveniles of the season, topping the list and ruling a strong favorite.

Those considered likely to give New World some opposition in his first start in his home state are Mrs. N. K. Beal's Hardy Bud and T. D. Buhl's Le Chat, both recent winners here. New World will carry top weight of 119 pounds.

Others named were Wise Brave, Tamil, Proc, Kothra, Fold Under, Westley A, Becomly, Ler-Lin, Mardi Gras, Fair Hero, Escolar, Greek Jurist and John's Star. The Futurity will be the fifth race on the program.

The Laurel mile drew ten sprinters and routers, with W. L. Brann's Pictod, Joseph E. Widener's Roman and the Brandywine Stable's Masked General ruling the overnight favorites in that order.

Others entered were French Like Spring5s Yale O'Mine, E. K. Bryson's Clyde Tolson, Tall Trees Stable's Early Morn and Bill Farnsworth, Mrs. D. K. Kerr's True Call, J. O. Keene's War Beauty and C. S. Howard's Chanceview.

Cunningham Grocers To Form Grid Team

The Cunningham Grocery Wildcats, who played softball the past season, are attempting to organize a football team for boys from eight to 12 years of age. A meeting will be held Sunday evening at 6 o'clock at the home of Robert Cunningham, 413 Race street.

The Woodpeckers and Catbirds both made a clean sweep of their matches with the Flickers and Robins, while the Canaries took a pair from the Eagles. The triple loss shoved the Robins into third place and Flickers into a fourth place deadlock with the Canaries. The Canaries toppled over 793 pins in their second game to set a new team high for one game. F. Boch with 185 and B. Payton with 188 had high individual scores and also took high three game honors with 365 and 464 respectively. The Woodpeckers took total three game score with 2289.

Four Local Draft Boards For Allegany County Are Named by the Governor

O'Conor also Announces Appointment of Four Draft Appeal Agents To Handle Cases in County

Members of four local draft boards in Allegany county, and one in Garrett were announced by Governor Herbert R. O'Conor in Annapolis yesterday after they were approved by President Roosevelt. O'Conor also announced sixty-one other boards, tweney-six of them in Baltimore city.

The local draft boards will classify men between the ages of twenty-one and thirty-five for military service under the Selective Training Service Act.

The boards will then classify the men in groups, those single with no dependents, those physically handicapped, those with dependents and those engaged in industries necessary for national defense.

Those who have been appointed to the draft appeal boards, which will receive cases appealed from the local draft boards, have not been announced.

The governor also announced yesterday appointment of sixty-six draft appeal agents, which includes four in Cumberland and one in Frostburg.

Members of the Allegany county draft boards are:

BOARD ONE — Harold A. Powell, Arthur Weber and Matthew Coffey.

BOARD TWO — Oliver H. Bruce, Jr., Clyde D. Lucas and Robert Jackson.

BOARD THREE — Franklin M. Ankeney, Marshall Wolford and William Morgan.

BOARD FOUR — Michael J. Byrnes, John Stewart and Robert Glenn.

Members of the Garrett county board are Gilbert Davis, D. E. Offutt and Terrence F. O'Donnell.

Appeals Can Be Made

The draft appeal agents are charged with the duty of safeguarding the interests of both the registrants and the federal government. They may appeal decisions reached by the local draft boards, either on behalf of the government or on behalf of the registrants.

Those appointed in Allegany county are:

Wilbur V. Wilson, Charles Z. Heskett, Albert A. Doub, Sr., all of Cumberland and Edward J. Ryan, of Frostburg.

The appeal agent in Garrett county will be Neil C. Fraley, of Oakland, state's attorney.

In Washington yesterday, Selective Service officials made public the eight-page questionnaire which men called for service will have to answer, and estimated that only about 2,500,000 of the 16,500,000 in the nation who register for the draft next Wednesday will have to fill it out within the next year.

Only half the length of the questionnaire used for the World war draft, the new one was described by Frederick Osborn, chairman of the president's advisory committee on selective service, as simpler and better. The answers to questions will be used by local draft boards to determine whether men registered for military service are entitled to deferred status.

800,000 at First

Osborn said he based his estimate of the comparatively small number of men who will be required to answer the questions on the fact that the army is going to need only 800,000 men between now and next July 1 under present plans.

Under the regulations, none of the questionnaires will be sent out until after the national "conscription lottery" which will determine the order in which men are drafted. The date for the lottery has not been set, but officials said it probably would be held between October 21 and 26. Local boards have been instructed to mail out questionnaires at the rate of not more than fifty daily, so as to insure their ability to classify them without congestion.

60 Questions Asked

The new questionnaire asks some sixty questions, divided into thirteen series. They deal with subjects as identification, physical condition, education, occupation or activity, other occupational experience, agricultural occupations, dependency, ministers or divinity students, citi-

75 Will Attend Potomac Council "Hob-Nob" Today

Program Is Completed for Scouters' Affair at New Germany

Seventy-five scoutmasters and assistants are expected to attend the Potomac Council Scouters "Hob-Nob" which will be held today and Sunday at Meadow Mountain CCC Camp S-68 in Garrett county. Kenneth Beck, committee chairman, will be in charge of the program.

The program outlined for today is: 1:30 to 2:30 p. m.—Registration, in charge of Alton Fortney, of Piedmont, and Raymond Reel, of Keyser.

2:30 to 2:35 p. m.—Purpose and welcome, in charge of Floyd Davis, chairman of the activities committee.

2:35 to 3 p. m.—Troop camping objectives, to be presented by James Thayer, commissioner of Cumberland district.

3 to 3:30 p. m. and 4 to 4:30 p. m.—Scout circus, expositions and merit badge shows, in charge of Major D. G. Van DeBoe, assistant regional executive.

3:30 to 4 p. m.—Safety monitor drill by scouts of Troop 37, Keyser.

4:30 to 5 p. m.—Comporees, led by Lloyd F. Keller, Cumberland, commissioner of Potomac council.

5 to 5:30 p. m.—Visit exhibits arranged by Howard Ward, Frostburg.

5:30 p. m.—Supper.

7 to 7:45 p. m.—District activities, to be presented by Raymond C. Lalor, scout executive of Cumberland.

7:45 to 8:15 p. m.—Troop activities, by Edgar Duke, of Cumberland, neighborhood chairman.

8:15 to 9 p. m.—Open discussion and movies of a Sea Scout cruise and various activities of scouting, (six reels) arranged by Joe Davis, chairman of Deep Creek district.

9 to 10 p. m.—"Hob-Nobbing."

Facilities for the "Hob-Nob" have been made available at the New Germany CCC camp through the co-operation of Lieut. William Fennell, company commander. Lieut. Charles Brooks, Jr., will cook and serve the supper.

There will be sufficient space available for those planning to stay overnight. Each scouter will take his own spot and blankets.

EAGLE SCOUT—The smiling youth shown above is Robert Twigg, son of Mr. and Mrs. Claude O. Twigg, Braddock Farms, LaVale. He has good reason to smile for Wednesday night he received the highest award Scouting can offer, the Eagle medal. More remarkable is the fact young Twigg has been a Boy Scout only two years and has won every merit badge and award possible. The sash across his chest is studded with twenty-one merit badges. In addifion to his Scouting he is a guard of Allegany high's versity football team. He is a member of Troop 6 at SS. Peter and Paul church.

Illness Is Fatal To LaVale Woman

Widow of Arthur Merritt Succumbs at Home of Daughter

Mrs. Caroline Merritt, 56, widow of Arthur Lee Merritt, died yesterday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Edward A. Reith, of Woodlawn, LaVale.

Surviving, besides her daughter, are three sons, Arthur Lee and William Merritt, of Cumberland, and Harold Merritt, of Arlington, Va.; two other daughters, Mrs. Paul Butts, of Locust Grove, and Mrs. William Ryland, this city; and two brothers, Harry Miller, of Monongahela City, Pa., and Jacob Miller, of Connellsville, Pa.

The body is at the Kight funeral home.

Edward Davis Dies

Edward Grant Davis, 71, retired tinworker, died yesterday at 5 p. m., at his home, 401 Oldtown road, following a lingering illness.

Davis was the son of the late Francis T. Davis and Irene Zimmerly Davis and was born April 22, 1869. He retired from the N. & G. Taylor tinplate mill eight years ago after having worked there for many years.

Besides his widow, Mrs. Cora Valentine Davis, he is survived by four sons, Leonard, Ethelbert, Frank and Edward Davis, all of Cumberland; three daughters, Mrs. Loey Huff, Akron, Ohio; Mrs. Lamont Riley,

600 Workers Are Necessary To Register Draftees

Heads of Precinct Boards Are Authorized To Secure Volunteers

Persons willing to volunteer in the task of registering approximately 14,000 men between the ages of 21 to 36 next Wednesday for possible military training under the selectvie service act, are advised to contact election registrars in their precinct and designate the hours which they can help.

The task of obtaining volunteers to aid the regular men and women has been decentralized, and left to the heads of precinct boards, Lawrence A. Hewitt, clerk to the board of election supervisors, yesterday said each local board will accept volunteers and search for additional workers if needed to aid them in the fourteen-hour job.

About 400 volunteer workers will be needed in the county in addition to the 225 regular registrars. About 375 workers indicated they would report when the first announcement of the registration was made but Hewitt said that the number has been reduced to 225 by eliminating those unable to handle the job.

In all, about 600 registrars will be needed in the seventy-five regular polling places of the county, which will be used for draft registration.

The job of registering each man is estimated to be one that will take about twenty minutes. Besides the card to be filed with the county draft board, yet to be announced, each man is given a pocket-size card to carry for identification purposes.

Fifteen women who volunteered through the Allegany County Chapter of the Red Cross yesterday aided Hewitt in sorting and preparing the cards for use. The cards will be distributed Tuesday with each board getting cards enough for thirty percent of the registered voters in each precinct.

Registrars will sit for revision for the fall election next Tuesday at which time election officials will check with each board to make up the final list of workers for the following day.

All registering booths will be open from 7 a. m., to 9 p. m., the hours set by the president in his proclamation a month ago.

325 Persons Register For Vocational School

Three hundred and twenty-five persons enrolled for vocational evening school classes on the two registration days held this week at Fort Hill high school.

Julius D. Lonnholm, general supervisor of the evening classes, said that 150 enrolled on Tuesday and 175 were registered Thursday.

Registrations also were received at Beall, Bruce, and Barton high schools but not report on the number of persons enrolled for the classes had been received last evening.

Local Resident Asks Police How To Get Rid of Three Skunks

An Evergreen Terrace resident walked into police headquarters last night and asked "how can I get rid of three skunks on my back porch?"

Officers present were slightly set back by the man's question, but soon snapped out of it. Many suggestions were offered, but he shunned all because he didn't want the animals to "kick up a fuss when and 'if' they do leave."

"Besides," he told them, "I've had some experience in trapping skunks while living in the woods. It's a touchy business."

And he sounded assuringly convincing.

Finally, police gave up and called Dr. F. B. McCallum, city veterinarian, to the station. He told the man to purchase a bottle of "aqua ammonia" and sprinkle the contents around the animals' haunts.

The man left headquarters a happier person, but he said he'd be back if the ammonia didn't do the job.

Lewis D. Metz Will Attend Naval School

The local Navy recruiting station in the post office building is informed that Lewis Dalle Metz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Wesley Metz of Cumberland, enrolled this week in Group II School at the Naval Training Station, Norfolk, Va., for a sixteen weeks course of instruction leading to qualification as radioman, quartermaster - signalman, yeoman or storekeeper. He was accepted for enlistment at the local recruiting station and enlisted in the Navy June 25.

An Oakland subscriber of the NEWS was quick to take advantage of a special offer to renew his subscription to the paper for the last month of presidential campaign, and also let it be known in no uncertain terms he was for Wendell Willkie.

The subscription department mailed out a blotter announcing the offer, and it read in part:

ROOSEVELT or WILLKIE
Which one will win?

On one end of the blotter was a picture of Roosevelt and on the other end a picture of Willkie.

The Oakland man returned the card with fifty cents placed over the Willkie picture, fastened securely with red sticker tape which was arranged in the form of an "X", showing he would vote for the Republican nominee.

Much of the charm of the Christmas holiday season in any community is provided by the cheerful decorations and twinkling lights that transforms a downtown business area from the everyday realities of Main street for a few brief days.

The Christmas decoration program sponsored in thousands of towns and cities in the United States every year serves the worthwhile purpose of putting people in a happier frame of mind.

For this reason, the program is quite often regarded as a community enterprise instead of a program just to benefit one individual group. For the program not only

Pettengill Says America Is Drifting Toward National Socialism

Beginning Monday, the Cumberland News will publish "Smoke Screen," by Samuel B. Pettengill, in serialized form.

This book, which has already passed the 516,000 mark in distribution, is being acclaimed everywhere for its incisive analysis of government trends. Asserting that "we are now moving toward National Socialism, and that from now on, we should move away from it," "Smoke Screen" studies step by step the threat of a "Nazi America."

"Smoke Screen" contains hundreds of startling little-known facts about government. Its author served eight years as Democratic Representative in Congress and speaks with intimate knowledge.

Mr. Pettengill asserts that he does not believe Communism is an immediate threat to this country. Outright confiscation of property,

Draft Officials Make Public List Of Questions Draftees Must Answer

The draft questionnaire which Cumberland and Allegany county men, as well as millions of others throughout the United States who will register next Wednesday, must fill out was made public in Washington, D. C., yesterday.

The questionnaire lists some sixty odd questions which are grouped in thirteen series. Here are the major items of information requested, as furnished the NEWS by the Associated Press:

SERIES TWO — (Confidential) your physical condition and whether you are an inmate of any institution. (Claimed physical defects must be detailed.)

SERIES THREE—Your education.

SERIES FOUR—What kind of work you do, how long you have done this work and your pay, and who your employer is. If you are unemployed, what work you are trained to do.

Must Give Occupation

SERIES FIVE—What kind of work you have done in the last five years other than your present occupation.

SERIES SIX—This is for farm workers only and asks whether you are a farmowner, hired man, or share cropper; how long you have farmed and the principal products of your farm.

SERIES SEVEN — (Confidential) your marital status, and whether you have any dependents. If married, you must tell when and where you were married. All dependents

Ervin E. Sisk Is Sent to Jail in Default of Fines

Must Serve Sixty Days for Violating Three State Motor Laws

Playing "tag" with a policeman proved costly to Ervin E. Sisk, 40, of 1009 Kentucky avenue, yesterday in trial magistrates court after he pleaded guilty to violating three state motor laws.

Sisk was ordered held in the county jail for sixty days in default of fines totaling $111 and costs on charges of drunken driving, reckless driving and operating a motor vehicle without a license.

Magistrate Frank A. Perdew gave Sisk sixty days on the drunk charge, one day for reckless driving and ten days for having no license, but the sentences will run con-currently.

Police Sergt. R. R. Johnson testified he noticed Sisk's machine "zigzagging" on Henderson avenue, Thursday afternoon, and gave chase on his motorcycle. He said he blew the cycle's horn for Sisk to stop, but the man just "tooted back and kept going."

Sergt. ohnston said the car driven by Sisk nearly crashed against his motorcycle several times before it was forced to the curb near Knox street.

Sisk admitted that he "had a few drinks," but said he didn't know the officer was chasing him. He testified he was planning to buy the machine he was driving, but admitted that he never had an operator's license.

Four Recommended By Millholland

Company G. Captain Names Quartet for Officers' Training School

Recommendation of four enlisted men of Company G, Maryland National Guard, for an officers' training school which will be conducted in Baltimore for two weeks, beginning November 15, was announced last night by Captain Randolph Millholland. The men will be eligible for commissions if they pass the examinations at the Baltimore school.

Those selected for the school are:

Corporal Edgar Teter, 232 North Centre street, branch manager of the Gulf Oil company.

Corporal Jay Gorman Coberly, 113 Arch street, employed at Celanese plant.

Private Howard H. Dickey, 218 Washington street, employed on Savage river dam.

Captain Millholland said that the names of the four company members will be sent to regimental headquarters and from there to the Military department, State of Maryland a high school education and be of calibre sufficient to make him a commissioned officer. Other names will be forwarded to Baltimore at a late date, Capt. Millholland said.

Motor Club Will Seek New Members

Drive Will Start November 1 and Continue until December 15

The board of directors of the Western Maryland Motor club met last night at Allegany Inn, Baltimore avenue, and decided to start a membership drive Nov. 1.

A goal of 100 new members is expected to be reached before the campaign expires Dec. 15, according to George J. Erling, newly-appointed chairman of the membership committee.

K. A. Wolfe and R. G. Yancy were named to assist Erling.

Members of a newly-formulated bi-law committee are Daniel L. D'Amicol, chairman, Wolfe and Erling.

Directors of the club are A. G. McElfish, G. Gale Townsend, J. Walter Byer, K. A. Wolfe, J. L. Towler, B. Fay Thompson, Thomas Morgan, George J. Erling, Daniel L. D'Amicol, R. G. Yancy and P. E. Myers.

F. H. Rockwell, president of the club, presided at the meeting.

Girl Breaks Wrist While Playing Tag

Barbara Jean Matheney, ten-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Matheney, 709½ St. Mary's street, was treated last night at Memorial hospital for a fractured right arm.

Hospital attendants said the girl broke her arm, above the wrist, when she fell while playing "tag." She was able to return home after treatment.

Grand Jury Returns 53 Indictments; Complete Report Made to Court

Court House, Jail, County Home and Sylvan Retreat Inspected; County Officials Commended

Fifty-three indictments were returned by the grand jury at the October term of Allegany County Circuit Court after 174 witnesses were examined. The jury completed a five day session yesterday.

In addition to examining witnesses, the jurors inspected the Allegany County Home, Sylvan Retreat, the court house, the county jail, inspected the records in the county treasurer's office, heard reports from the county mine inspectors, Fire Chief Reid C. Hoenicka, and police and fire commissioners of various Allegany county cities and towns.

Commends Officials

In its report to Chief Judge D. Lindley Sloan and Associate Justice William A. Huster, the jury commended Morgan C. Harris, state's attorney, Terrence J. Boyle, county investigator, Walter Johnston, auditor, Sheriff Lucien Radcliffe and his deputies, Robert Jackson, clerk of the court and William Izat, janitor.

"First", the complete report states, "we have been in session five days, have examined 174 witnesses, and returned fifty-three indictments.

"SECOND, a committee from our body visited and inspected the Allegany County Home, and found twenty-eight white male inmates, ten white female inmates, two colored male inmates, two cooks, one nurse, one matron and one superintendent.

"The committee reports that the property is well maintained and the inmates appear to be well cared for in housing, food and clothing, and the institution is splendidly supervised by William M. Matheney, superintendent, whom we wish to commend.

"However, we would recommend that the curb at the entrance of the county home be straightened; also that lightening arresters be placed on the superintendent's new residence and the barn. We also feel that a road leading to the entrance of the superintendent's home would be a considerable improvement.

Inspect Sylvan Retreat

"THIRD, a committee from our body made an inspection of Sylvan Retreat, the county hospital for the insane. The committee reports forty-four white male patients, fifty-four white female patients, one colored female patient, three women wardens, three women cooks, one matron, three men wardens, one day man and one night man. The institution seems to be very well supervised by John H. Kemp, superintendent.

"FOURTH, the grand jury, in a body, inspected the Allegany County jail. We found fourteen white male prisoners, one white female prisoner, four colored male prisoners, and three colored female prisoners, making a total of twenty-two prisoners.

"The condition of the jail was clean and sanitary and, from our viewpoint, well managed. We wish to commend Lucien Radcliffe, sheriff, for the appearance of the interior of the jail, as it seems clean, sanitary and apparently well managed. We recommend that either a stoker be placed on the furnace in the jail or a fireman be hired for the winter months.

"FIFTH, a committee from our body examined the record of the county treasurer's office, and in our opinion the books are well kept, in good condition and the records complete. To the best of our knowledge, we find them to be correct. While no effort was made to make a detailed audit, the treasurer's records, in the opinion of the committee, are properly and carefully kept in line with modern accounting methods, and we wish to commend Walter Johnston, the auditor in the county treasurer's office, for the bookkeeping system recently installed, which we believe to be a substantial improvement.

Mine Inspectors Appear

"SIXTH, the mine inspectors for Allegany county appeared before our body and reported that no complaints had been made to them of any serious violations of the mining laws.

"SEVENTH, the fire chief, Reid C. Hoenicka, Cumberland, appeared before our body and reported that

Sportsmen Plan Rally and Dinner At Jockey Club

Outdoor Life Federation To Celebrate Founding October 25

Representative sportsmen of Allegany, Garrett and Washington counties will gather at the Cumberland Jockey Club, Fairgo, Friday, October 25, at 6:30 p. m., for a rally and dinner in celebration of the founding of the Western Maryland Outdoor Life Federation and the inauguration of the federation's campaign to have established the Upland Game and Inland Fish commission.

The federation was organized four years ago upon the principle that closer cooperation between the many sportsmen's organizations in Western Maryland could bring about greater appreciation of wildlife and outdoor facilities, and improve the administration of game and fish regulations in the three far-western counties of the state. Simultaneously the small group of clubs began a campaign to have established in Maryland a Game and Inland Fish Commission, non-salaried, separate and independent of the administration of the commercial Chesapeake Bay interests.

Today the Western Maryland Outdoor Life Federation has grown to include forty-five sportsmen's organizations in Allegany, Garrett and Washington counties, with an enviable reputation throughout the State of Maryland and its neighboring states.

The original "Model Game Law," espoused by this federation, was publicized, amended, criticized and finally pigeonholed in the last session of the Maryland General Assembly, but the salient features of the "Model Game Law" were incorporated in an administration bill which was successful. The non-salaried State Game and Inland Fish commission was created with Fulcher P. Smith, of Cumberland, serving as the local representative on the five-man commission.

250 County Teachers Will Attend State Meeting

Allegany county will be represented by approximately 250 teachers at the state meeting of the Maryland State Teachers association October 25 and 26 in Baltimore, it was announced yesterday by Charles L. Kopp, superintendent of Allegany county public schools.

The meeting will be held at Baltimore Polytechnic Institute.

Personal Items

James J. Condon, Paul Nose, Russell Nierman, William Lippold and Thomas A. Carscaden, Jr., all of Cumberland, will attend the Southern Methodist-Pitt football game today in Pittsburgh.

WPA Builds 119 Miles of Streets And Highways in Allegany County

State WPA Administrator F. H. Dryden, announced in Baltimore yesterday that 119 miles of streets and highways were built or improved by WPA labor in Allegany county between the start of the WPA program in 1935 and last June 30.

The report was part of the regular biennial accomplishment summaries made public every six months by State WPA headquarters.

All of the work was done under state, county, or local sponsors who initiated the projects and participated in their financing and supervision.

Rural roads comprised 97.4 miles of the Allegany county work. Urban street and alley construction improvement with WPA labor over the five-year period totaled 19.3 miles in Allegany.

Twenty-six bridges were built in Allegany county, while a number of other existing spans were renovated and improved.

Other improvements to transportations system in the county covered about four miles.

Eleven miles of sidewalks and paths were constructed in Allegany county along with some twenty-four miles of curbs and nearly eight miles of gutters.

The report showed 49.6 miles of roads and streets were improved in Garrett county, which included 47.6 miles of rural roads, a mile of urban street and alley construction and three miles of culverts.

Four Local Draft Boards For Allegany County Are Named by the Governor

O'Conor also Announces Appointment of Four Draft Appeal Agents To Handle Cases in County

Members of four local draft boards in Allegany county, and one in Garrett were announced by Governor Herbert R. O'Conor in Annapolis yesterday after they were approved by President Roosevelt. O'Conor also announced sixty-one other boards, tweney-six of them in Baltimore city.

Appeals Can Be Made

The draft appeal agents are charged with the duty of safeguarding the interests of both the registrants and the federal government. They may appeal decisions reached by the local draft boards, either on behalf of the government or on behalf of the registrants.

Those appointed in Allegany county are:

Wilbur V. Wilson, Charles Z. Heskett, Albert A. Doub, Sr., all of Cumberland and Edward J. Ryan, of Frostburg.

The appeal agent in Garrett county will be Neil C. Fraley, of Oakland, state's attorney.

In Washington yesterday, Selective Service officials made public the eight-page questionnaire which men called for service will have to answer, and estimated that only about 2,500,000 of the 16,500,000 in the nation who register for the draft next Wednesday will have to fill it out within the next year.

Only half the length of the questionnaire used for the World war draft, the new one was described by Frederick Osborn, chairman of the president's advisory committee on selective service, as simpler and better. The answers to questions will be used by local draft boards to determine whether men registered for military service are entitled to deferred status.

800,000 at First

Osborn said he based his estimate of the comparatively small number of men who will be required to answer the questions on the fact that the army is going to need only 800,000 men between now and next July 1 under present plans.

Under the regulations, none of the questionnaires will be sent out until after the national "conscription lottery" which will determine the order in which men are drafted. The date for the lottery has not been set, but officials said it probably would be held between October 21 and 26. Local boards have been instructed to mail out questionnaires at the rate of not more than fifty daily, so as to insure their ability to classify them without congestion.

60 Questions Asked

The new questionnaire asks some sixty questions, divided into thirteen series. They deal with subjects as identification, physical condition, education, occupation or activity, other occupational experience, agricultural occupations, dependency, ministers or divinity students, citi-

600 Workers Are Necessary To Register Draftees

Heads of Precinct Boards Are Authorized To Secure Volunteers

Persons willing to volunteer in the task of registering approximately 14,000 men between the ages of 21 to 36 next Wednesday for possible military training under the selectvie service act, are advised to contact election registrars in their precinct and designate the hours which they can help.

The task of obtaining volunteers to aid the regular men and women has been decentralized, and left to the heads of precinct boards, Lawrence A. Hewitt, clerk to the board of election supervisors, yesterday said each local board will accept volunteers and search for additional workers if needed to aid them in the fourteen-hour job.

About 400 volunteer workers will be needed in the county in addition to the 225 regular registrars. About 375 workers indicated they would report when the first announcement of the registration was made but Hewitt said that the number has been reduced to 225 by eliminating those unable to handle the job.

In all, about 600 registrars will be needed in the seventy-five regular polling places of the county, which will be used for draft registration.

The job of registering each man is estimated to be one that will take about twenty minutes. Besides the card to be filed with the county draft board, yet to be announced, each man is given a pocket-size card to carry for identification purposes.

Fifteen women who volunteered through the Allegany County Chapter of the Red Cross yesterday aided Hewitt in sorting and preparing the cards for use. The cards will be distributed Tuesday with each board getting cards enough for thirty percent of the registered voters in each precinct.

Registrars will sit for revision for the fall election next Tuesday at which time election officials will check with each board to make up the final list of workers for the following day.

All registering booths will be open from 7 a. m., to 9 p. m., the hours set by the president in his proclamation a month ago.

325 Persons Register For Vocational School

Three hundred and twenty-five persons enrolled for vocational evening school classes on the two registration days held this week at Fort Hill high school.

Julius D. Lonnholm, general supervisor of the evening classes, said that 150 enrolled on Tuesday and 175 were registered Thursday.

Registrations also were received at Beall, Bruce, and Barton high schools but not report on the number of persons enrolled for the classes had been received last evening.

Local Resident Asks Police How To Get Rid of Three Skunks

An Evergreen Terrace resident walked into police headquarters last night and asked "how can I get rid of three skunks on my back porch?"

Officers present were slightly set back by the man's question, but soon snapped out of it. Many suggestions were offered, but he shunned all because he didn't want the animals to "kick up a fuss when and 'if' they do leave."

"Besides," he told them, "I've had some experience in trapping skunks while living in the woods. It's a touchy business."

And he sounded assuringly convincing.

Finally, police gave up and called Dr. F. B. McCallum, city veterinarian, to the station. He told the man to purchase a bottle of "aqua ammonia" and sprinkle the contents around the animals' haunts.

The man left headquarters a happier person, but he said he'd be back if the ammonia didn't do the job.

Lewis D. Metz Will Attend Naval School

The local Navy recruiting station in the post office building is informed that Lewis Dalle Metz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Wesley Metz of Cumberland, enrolled this week in Group II School at the Naval Training Station, Norfolk, Va., for a sixteen weeks course of instruction leading to qualification as radioman, quartermaster - signalman, yeoman or storekeeper. He was accepted for enlistment at the local recruiting station and enlisted in the Navy June 25.

An Oakland subscriber of the NEWS was quick to take advantage of a special offer to renew his subscription to the paper for the last month of presidential campaign, and also let it be known in no uncertain terms he was for Wendell Willkie.

The subscription department mailed out a blotter announcing the offer, and it read in part:

ROOSEVELT or WILLKIE
Which one will win?

On one end of the blotter was a picture of Roosevelt and on the other end a picture of Willkie.

The Oakland man returned the card with fifty cents placed over the Willkie picture, fastened securely with red sticker tape which was arranged in the form of an "X", showing he would vote for the Republican nominee.

Much of the charm of the Christmas holiday season in any community is provided by the cheerful decorations and twinkling lights that transforms a downtown business area from the everyday realities of Main street for a few brief days.

The Christmas decoration program sponsored in thousands of towns and cities in the United States every year serves the worthwhile purpose of putting people in a happier frame of mind.

For this reason, the program is quite often regarded as a community enterprise instead of a program just to benefit one individual group. For the program not only

Pettengill Says America Is Drifting Toward National Socialism

Beginning Monday, the Cumberland News will publish "Smoke Screen," by Samuel B. Pettengill, in serialized form.

This book, which has already passed the 516,000 mark in distribution, is being acclaimed everywhere for its incisive analysis of government trends. Asserting that "we are now moving toward National Socialism, and that from now on, we should move away from it," "Smoke Screen" studies step by step the threat of a "Nazi America."

"Smoke Screen" contains hundreds of startling little-known facts about government. Its author served eight years as Democratic Representative in Congress and speaks with intimate knowledge.

Mr. Pettengill asserts that he does not believe Communism is an immediate threat to this country. Outright confiscation of property,

Draft Officials Make Public List Of Questions Draftees Must Answer

The draft questionnaire which Cumberland and Allegany county men, as well as millions of others throughout the United States who will register next Wednesday, must fill out was made public in Washington, D. C., yesterday.

The questionnaire lists some sixty odd questions which are grouped in thirteen series. Here are the major items of information requested, as furnished the NEWS by the Associated Press:

SERIES TWO — (Confidential) your physical condition and whether you are an inmate of any institution. (Claimed physical defects must be detailed.)

SERIES THREE—Your education.

SERIES FOUR—What kind of work you do, how long you have done this work and your pay, and who your employer is. If you are unemployed, what work you are trained to do.

Must Give Occupation

SERIES FIVE—What kind of work you have done in the last five years other than your present occupation.

SERIES SIX—This is for farm workers only and asks whether you are a farmowner, hired man, or share cropper; how long you have farmed and the principal products of your farm.

SERIES SEVEN — (Confidential) your marital status, and whether you have any dependents. If married, you must tell when and where you were married. All dependents

Ervin E. Sisk Is Sent to Jail in Default of Fines

Must Serve Sixty Days for Violating Three State Motor Laws

Playing "tag" with a policeman proved costly to Ervin E. Sisk, 40, of 1009 Kentucky avenue, yesterday in trial magistrates court after he pleaded guilty to violating three state motor laws.

Sisk was ordered held in the county jail for sixty days in default of fines totaling $111 and costs on charges of drunken driving, reckless driving and operating a motor vehicle without a license.

Magistrate Frank A. Perdew gave Sisk sixty days on the drunk charge, one day for reckless driving and ten days for having no license, but the sentences will run con-currently.

Police Sergt. R. R. Johnson testified he noticed Sisk's machine "zigzagging" on Henderson avenue, Thursday afternoon, and gave chase on his motorcycle. He said he blew the cycle's horn for Sisk to stop, but the man just "tooted back and kept going."

Sergt. ohnston said the car driven by Sisk nearly crashed against his motorcycle several times before it was forced to the curb near Knox street.

Sisk admitted that he "had a few drinks," but said he didn't know the officer was chasing him. He testified he was planning to buy the machine he was driving, but admitted that he never had an operator's license.

Company G. Captain Names Quartet for Officers' Training School

Recommendation of four enlisted men of Company G, Maryland National Guard, for an officers' training school which will be conducted in Baltimore for two weeks, beginning November 15, was announced last night by Captain Randolph Millholland. The men will be eligible for commissions if they pass the examinations at the Baltimore school.

Those selected for the school are:

Corporal Edgar Teter, 232 North Centre street, branch manager of the Gulf Oil company.

Corporal Jay Gorman Coberly, 113 Arch street, employed at Celanese plant.

Private Howard H. Dickey, 218 Washington street, employed on Savage river dam.

Captain Millholland said that the names of the four company members will be sent to regimental headquarters and from there to the Military department, State of Maryland a high school education and be of calibre sufficient to make him a commissioned officer. Other names will be forwarded to Baltimore at a late date, Capt. Millholland said.

Motor Club Will Seek New Members

Drive Will Start November 1 and Continue until December 15

The board of directors of the Western Maryland Motor club met last night at Allegany Inn, Baltimore avenue, and decided to start a membership drive Nov. 1.

A goal of 100 new members is expected to be reached before the campaign expires Dec. 15, according to George J. Erling, newly-appointed chairman of the membership committee.

K. A. Wolfe and R. G. Yancy were named to assist Erling.

Members of a newly-formulated bi-law committee are Daniel L. D'Amicol, chairman, Wolfe and Erling.

Directors of the club are A. G. McElfish, G. Gale Townsend, J. Walter Byer, K. A. Wolfe, J. L. Towler, B. Fay Thompson, Thomas Morgan, George J. Erling, Daniel L. D'Amicol, R. G. Yancy and P. E. Myers.

F. H. Rockwell, president of the club, presided at the meeting.

Girl Breaks Wrist While Playing Tag

Barbara Jean Matheney, ten-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Matheney, 709½ St. Mary's street, was treated last night at Memorial hospital for a fractured right arm.

Hospital attendants said the girl broke her arm, above the wrist, when she fell while playing "tag." She was able to return home after treatment.

Grand Jury Returns 53 Indictments; Complete Report Made to Court

Court House, Jail, County Home and Sylvan Retreat Inspected; County Officials Commended

Fifty-three indictments were returned by the grand jury at the October term of Allegany County Circuit Court after 174 witnesses were examined. The jury completed a five day session yesterday.

In addition to examining witnesses, the jurors inspected the Allegany County Home, Sylvan Retreat, the court house, the county jail, inspected the records in the county treasurer's office, heard reports from the county mine inspectors, Fire Chief Reid C. Hoenicka, and police and fire commissioners of various Allegany county cities and towns.

Commends Officials

In its report to Chief Judge D. Lindley Sloan and Associate Justice William A. Huster, the jury commended Morgan C. Harris, state's attorney, Terrence J. Boyle, county investigator, Walter Johnston, auditor, Sheriff Lucien Radcliffe and his deputies, Robert Jackson, clerk of the court and William Izat, janitor.

"First", the complete report states, "we have been in session five days, have examined 174 witnesses, and returned fifty-three indictments.

"SECOND, a committee from our body visited and inspected the Allegany County Home, and found twenty-eight white male inmates, ten white female inmates, two colored male inmates, two cooks, one nurse, one matron and one superintendent.

"The committee reports that the property is well maintained and the inmates appear to be well cared for in housing, food and clothing, and the institution is splendidly supervised by William M. Matheney, superintendent, whom we wish to commend.

"However, we would recommend that the curb at the entrance of the county home be straightened; also that lightening arresters be placed on the superintendent's new residence and the barn. We also feel that a road leading to the entrance of the superintendent's home would be a considerable improvement.

Inspect Sylvan Retreat

"THIRD, a committee from our body made an inspection of Sylvan Retreat, the county hospital for the insane. The committee reports forty-four white male patients, fifty-four white female patients, one colored female patient, three women wardens, three women cooks, one matron, three men wardens, one day man and one night man. The institution seems to be very well supervised by John H. Kemp, superintendent.

"FOURTH, the grand jury, in a body, inspected the Allegany County jail. We found fourteen white male prisoners, one white female prisoner, four colored male prisoners, and three colored female prisoners, making a total of twenty-two prisoners.

"The condition of the jail was clean and sanitary and, from our viewpoint, well managed. We wish to commend Lucien Radcliffe, sheriff, for the appearance of the interior of the jail, as it seems clean, sanitary and apparently well managed. We recommend that either a stoker be placed on the furnace in the jail or a fireman be hired for the winter months.

"FIFTH, a committee from our body examined the record of the county treasurer's office, and in our opinion the books are well kept, in good condition and the records complete. To the best of our knowledge, we find them to be correct. While no effort was made to make a detailed audit, the treasurer's records, in the opinion of the committee, are properly and carefully kept in line with modern accounting methods, and we wish to commend Walter Johnston, the auditor in the county treasurer's office, for the bookkeeping system recently installed, which we believe to be a substantial improvement.

Mine Inspectors Appear

"SIXTH, the mine inspectors for Allegany county appeared before our body and reported that no complaints had been made to them of any serious violations of the mining laws.

"SEVENTH, the fire chief, Reid C. Hoenicka, Cumberland, appeared before our body and reported that

Outdoor Life Federation To Celebrate Founding October 25

Representative sportsmen of Allegany, Garrett and Washington counties will gather at the Cumberland Jockey Club, Fairgo, Friday, October 25, at 6:30 p. m., for a rally and dinner in celebration of the founding of the Western Maryland Outdoor Life Federation and the inauguration of the federation's campaign to have established the Upland Game and Inland Fish commission.

The federation was organized four years ago upon the principle that closer cooperation between the many sportsmen's organizations in Western Maryland could bring about greater appreciation of wildlife and outdoor facilities, and improve the administration of game and fish regulations in the three far-western counties of the state. Simultaneously the small group of clubs began a campaign to have established in Maryland a Game and Inland Fish Commission, non-salaried, separate and independent of the administration of the commercial Chesapeake Bay interests.

Today the Western Maryland Outdoor Life Federation has grown to include forty-five sportsmen's organizations in Allegany, Garrett and Washington counties, with an enviable reputation throughout the State of Maryland and its neighboring states.

The original "Model Game Law," espoused by this federation, was publicized, amended, criticized and finally pigeonholed in the last session of the Maryland General Assembly, but the salient features of the "Model Game Law" were incorporated in an administration bill which was successful. The non-salaried State Game and Inland Fish commission was created with Fulcher P. Smith, of Cumberland, serving as the local representative on the five-man commission.

250 County Teachers Will Attend State Meeting

Allegany county will be represented by approximately 250 teachers at the state meeting of the Maryland State Teachers association October 25 and 26 in Baltimore, it was announced yesterday by Charles L. Kopp, superintendent of Allegany county public schools.

The meeting will be held at Baltimore Polytechnic Institute.

Personal Items

WPA Builds 119 Miles of Streets And Highways in Allegany County

State WPA Administrator F. H. Dryden, announced in Baltimore yesterday that 119 miles of streets and highways were built or improved by WPA labor in Allegany county between the start of the WPA program in 1935 and last June 30.

The report was part of the regular biennial accomplishment summaries made public every six months by State WPA headquarters.

All of the work was done under state, county, or local sponsors who initiated the projects and participated in their financing and supervision.

Rural roads comprised 97.4 miles of the Allegany county work. Urban street and alley construction improvement with WPA labor over the five-year period totaled 19.3 miles in Allegany.

Twenty-six bridges were built in Allegany county, while a number of other existing spans were renovated and improved.

Other improvements to transportations system in the county covered about four miles.

Eleven miles of sidewalks and paths were constructed in Allegany county along with some twenty-four miles of curbs and nearly eight miles of gutters.

The report showed 49.6 miles of roads and streets were improved in Garrett county, which included 47.6 miles of rural roads, a mile of urban street and alley construction and three miles of culverts.
